Truman Sets Up Materials Policy Group

Paley Heads Commission To Study Nation's Vast Problems Of Supply

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—President Truman today named a new materials policy commission to study the nation's vast supply problems in the years ahead—and keep the growing defense effort from throttling economic growth.

In doing so, Mr. Truman emphasized the long-range aspects of the materials problem as distinct from "immediate defense needs."

Appointing William S. Paley, board chairman of the Columbia Broadcasting System to head the group, Mr. Truman said:

"We cannot allow shortages of materials to jeopardize our national security nor to become a bottleneck to our economic expansion. By wise planning and determined action, we can meet our essential needs for military security, civilian welfare, and the continued emonomic growth of the United States."

Asking the group to make its report in six to nine months, Mr. Truman selected these men to serve with Paley:

Duties Differ From NSRB's

George Rufus Brown, Houston, Tex., Businessman; Eric Hodgins, author and editor of New Milford, Conn. Arthur H. Bunker, New York banker and president of the Climax Molybdenum Co.; and Edwards S. Mason, head of the Harvard University School of Economics.

Specifically the President asked the commission to study:

(1) The long-range requirements outlook; (2) The long-rang supply outlook; (3) the prospect for an estimated extent of shortages; (4) the "consistency and adequacy of existing government policies, plans and programs"; and (5) the "consistency and adequacy of private industry practices.'

A spokesman for the National Security Resources Board told a reporter the Paley commission duties would differ from those of NSRB, which is the top level security policy body. He said it was his understanding the new group will deal with "long-range problems as contrasted with NSRB's role in the present defense program."

The President's action climaxed a series of fast moves today in the defense mobilization effort. Developments included:

Committee Okays Johnston

1. The Senate Banking Committee approved, 9 to 0, the appointment of Eric A. Johnston to head the Economic Stabilization Agency, succeeding Alan Valentine, fired by Mr. Truman last week. The Senate is expected to take up Johnston's nomination quickly.

2. Johnston told the senators he sees no reason for putting off wage-price controls longer but doesn't know exactly when they will be applied.

3. The National Production Authority clamped down on use of tungsten, a vital defense material, for non-essential purposes and announced the scarce mineral will be placed under allocation March 1.

4. The NPA also tightened its entire steel regulations by increasing the amount of steel output that must be used in orders carrying military priorities. It also cut down on the amount of steel products users may have on hand in their "minimum working inventory."

U.S. Could Cope With Invaders, Bradley Says

Retaliation Would Be Swift And Hard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley told Congress today there is "little real danger now" that enemy invasion forces could overrun the United States "so far as we can see."

The five-star General, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said that in the event of war, some enemy bombers might get through to attack American cities, but he declared:

"Our own program of defense against air attack, combined with the efforts of the Canadians, will provide such air defense for this country that complete disaster will not overtake us."

Bradley gave that firm estimate of the nation's readiness to cope with air or land assault in testimony before the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee. The group is studying a Defense Department bill to extend the draft to 18-year-olds and lengthen draft service from 21 to 27 months.

Bradley told the senators what is needed to strike back by air if attack comes. He explained:

"The initial retaliation against an enemy by strategic bombing will be provided if the air power and the necessary Army and Navy support to seize and hold the bases from which to operate are in our hands the moment an emergency arises.

"Our strategy does not include a retraction of all our military power to the continental limits of the North American continent when we are attacked."

Coupled with Bradley's testimony, two big veterans organizations endorsed the administration - backed measure in separate statements to the committee.

Erle Cocke, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, said it would be "unfair and unnecessary" to exempt the present crop of 18-year-olds from service.

Omar B. Ketchum, legislative director of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, told the committee that veterans should not be drafted back into service unless a major war develops.

Ketchum supported the drafting of 18-year-olds, but said non-veterans up to 35 years old should also be called.

Ticket For Parking Leads To $181 Loss

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 22 (AP)—It seemed like a harmless thing, that ticket Edward Brewer of Hagerstown got for double parking. But instead of $1, Brewer soon found $181 charged against him.

While in the City Hall paying the parking fine, his car rolled into another parked vehicle, causing $80 in damages.

When police investigated the accident they found Brewer was operating the car on a revoked license. For that the judge fined him $100.

Withdrawal-From-U. N. Resolution Introduced

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—A resolution to withdraw United States membership from the United Nations was introduced today by Rep. Rankin (D-Miss).

Rankin told the House the U. N. has been one of "the greatest failures in the history of all mankind."

"Ike" To Report To Legislators On Europe Tour

Senate Votes Today On Wherry Proposal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Administration leaders alerted Congress today for a report by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower on the outlook for reinforcing the defenses of Western Europe.

Senate Democratic Leader McFarland (Ariz) said Eisenhower is expected to report informally to the lawmakers Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, following his return from a European inspection tour in his capacity as supreme military commander for the Atlantic pact nations.

What Eisenhower says is expected to bear compelling influence on the attitude of Congress toward committing more U. S. troops to duty east of the Atlantic.

Big Question Is How Many

It is beginning to seem pretty sure that a majority of the 531 members of Congress will support the dispatch of additional American forces abroad to join the international army of the pact allies. The big question now appears to be how many, and under what conditions.

Even Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Republican policy leader who favors placing America's main dependence on absolute controls of the sea and the air, conceded over the weekend that he is willing to dispatch some U. S. troops to Europe.

He emphasized, however, that he will insist on some sort of a limit, set by Congress, on the number sent

Vote On Wherry Proposal

The prospective Eisenhower report to members of Congress was disclosed by Democratic leaders from Capitol Hill after a conference with President Truman this morning. House Speaker Rayburn said the General would not address a formal joint session of Congress, but instead probably would speak informally to the members of House and Senate in the auditorium of the Library of Congress, at a session open to the press.

The Senate has agreed to vote tomorrow on what to do with a proposal by Sen. Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, to forbid sending any further U. S. troops to Europe until Congress acts on the policy involved.

Dulles Tokyo-Bound For Peace Pact Talks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP) — John Foster Dulles left for Tokyo today to speed the completion of a peace treaty with a bid to the Japanese to join the free world in meeting "new armed aggression."

Dulles voiced confidence that the Japanese people, "now that their militaristic ambitions have been buried," will become worthy members of the free world and share its "common purpose to surmount the dangers."

Accompanied by a group of State and Defense Department officials, Dulles plans a series of talks with Japanese leaders to clear the way for a final peace settlement before the end of the year. The group is due at Tokyo at 5 p. m. Wednesday (Japanese time).

At Least Three Russian-Made MIGs Downed

Flareup Reported In Ground Fighting

TOKYO, Tuesday, Jan. 23 (AP)—American jet pilots shot down at least three Russian-made jet planes over the Yalu River today in what may have been the largest air battle of the Korean war.

On the ground, Allied forces thrust searching steel fingers from seven to 20 miles into Communist territory across the width of Korea without finding reds in strength.

The Allies pulled out voluntarily from recaptured Wonju airfield in the central sector at dusk Monday. There was no enemy pressure. The U. N. troops had taken the field and surrounding hills Monday morning —the fifth time in six days they have moved in and out of the vital transport area.

The sharpest ground action Monday was a clash between Allied troops and a force of about 2,000 North Korean Reds southeast of Tanyang. That is 37 miles southeast of Wonju. The U. N. force killed 400 reds.

ROK Battalion Cut To Pieces

A battalion of South Korean engineers was cut to pieces by North Koreans in an ambush near Andong. Andong is 34 miles southeast of Tanyang and 50 miles North of Taegu, Northwest corner of last summer's Pusan beachhead.

Elements of two North Korean divisions—the Second and Tenth—have been identified in hills north of Andong. At full strength this would indicate 20,000 Reds were sifting southward.

U. S. Seventh Division elements and other Allied troops have been fighting in this barren east-central area against infiltrating Red Korean regulars and local guerillas.

In startling contrast, reinforced Allied hunter-killer teams on the Central and Western Korean fronts slammed back into Wonju airfield and three other key towns within 25 miles of Seoul without finding the fight they were seeking.

Other towns reentered and then again abandoned at nightfall included Osan, Ichon and Kumyangjang.

Reds Are Reluctant

The Chinese and Korean Reds, massed on those fronts for the past fortnight, showed marked reluctance—at least for the present—to give battle to the strong tank-infantry columns of the U. S. Eighth Army.

Around Yongwol, where only North Koreans have been reported, small but bitter struggles were reported. An intelligence officer there said, "the enemy is showing a desire to make and maintain contact."

AP Correspondent Tom Stone reported from the Yongwol front that "thousands of enemy troops already have slipped through the Allied lines and vanished in the barren country to the south."

Stone reported a missing American platoon (normally 40 to 50 men) evidently had been ambushed by a strong force of North Koreans and wiped out. There were no details, but a wounded survivor was found, and the platoon was 24 hours overdue in returning to its lines.

Discuss Reds' Cease-Fire Plan

India's Sir Benegal N. Rau (left) discusses Communist China's limited Korean cease-fire plan which he read to the U. N. Political Committee yesterday with Lester Pearson, chief Canadian U. N. delegate who was a member of the U. N. Committee which tried to arrange a cease-fire with Peiping.

Pearson Target Of New Charges By Sen. McCarthy

Printed Decoded "Secret" Message

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) told the Senate today that Columnist Drew Pearson had printed without change a decoded "secret" message received at the Pentagon from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

McCarthy gave a date which he said the message bore, and said it was stamped with a red-ink warning that it contained information affecting the security of the United States within the meaning of the espionage laws.

Pearson's Reaction

Pearson, reached at his home here, promptly retorted that McCarthy had opened the way for Moscow to break the U. S. secret code by disclosing the date of the message.

"Sen. McCarthy has now given the Russians a real chance to decipher our secret code because he now has given the date of one of the messages which I hitherto had kept secret," Pearson told a reporter.

"In other words, he has played directly into Moscow's hands. It is impossible to break down a code unless the other side knows a date. This I never gave."

Pearson said he also "paraphrased" the messages he published in his syndicated column.

"Not One Word" Changed

In his Senate speech, McCarthy contended that despite Pearson's previous statements to the contrary, "not one word or punctuation mark" in the message published by Pearson was "at variance with the decoded message."

McCarthy also gave a number which he said was on the message. He termed it a daily intelligence summary from Gen. MacArthur's Far East headquarters. He did not say when Pearson published it.

U. S. Asks Russia To Cease Showing 'Mutilated' Films

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22. (AP)—The State Department today demanded Russia stop showing two "mutilated versions" of American movies, saying they distort life in the United States.

The Russians are displaying the films in an effort to prove their favorite propaganda theme — that all Americans are money-grubbing, scheming villians, the department said.

The two Hollywood productions—"Mr. Deeds Goes To Town" and "Mr. Smith Goes To Washington"—are luring thousands of Russian movie fans to Moscow theaters even though they date back to 1936 and 1939.

As "Mr. Deeds" unreels in Moscow, it was stated, the story pictures the hero being sentenced to a mental hospital for wanting to give away his money to farm victims of the depression.

Actually, the movie left the hero in no such plight. He turns the tables on a crooked lawyer and a psychiatrist.

'Let-Japan-Help' Sponsor In U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The governor of the Bank of Japan, Hisato Ishimada, arrived in Washington today to discuss a "let-Japan-help" program with American government officials.

He said Japan now has reached a point where it can begin to assist the United Nations "to meet the threat in the Orient."

Ishimada is on a private mission. But because of his position, he undoubtedly represents the official Japanese government view. He said he would see Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of Defense Marshall and Secretary of the Treasury Snyder during his 10-day stay here.

He said, "Chinese intervention in Korea has entirely changed the situation in the Far East. This is a definite threat to Japan and in fact to all of East Asia. I am not here to ask for any more American assistance but to discuss ways and means that Japan can help.

"We think we are strong enough to stand on our own feet now."

Four-Country Avalanche Toll Nears 200 Mark

Swiss Say Relief May Be In Sight

VIENNA, Austria, Jan. 22 (AP)—The death toll from an unprecedented series of avalanche disasters in Austria, Switzerland, Italy and France climbed to 198 tonight. New avalanches claimed more lives in Austria, but first word that relief may be in sight came from Switzerland.

A three-day snowfall over the alpine region abated and the Swiss federal institute for avalanche research said in a bulletin "with the setting of the snow and the drop in temperature tonight the avalanche danger had decreased sharply."

112 Dead In Austria

In Austria 112 have lost their lives; Switzerland 68; Italy, 15; France, three. New avalanches tonight in Styria in the British zone of Austria claimed additional victims, includng a two-year-old child.

Most of the casualties and destruction struck small communities in isolated valleys, but tonight a large city was threatened in a new way.

Innsbruck, capital of the Austrian Tyrol, suffered a serious drinking water shortage because slides of snow, ice and rock had destroyed the greater part of its waterworks. Innsbruck has a population of 100,000, not counting occupation troops.

45,000 Isolated In Austria

The troops of seven nations, including the United States and Britain, were offered to the authorities or were called out for rescue service and in restoring communications.

Austrian authorities said 45,000 persons in Austria's Alpine districts were cut off by snowdrifts and enormous masses of snow and debris. Among the isolated were 20,000 foreign tourists, 1,000 of them Americans.

Several thousand tourists at Swiss ski resorts also were cut off, but they were believed in no danger. However, some of the Austrian resorts were reported without light, power and telephones.

Two Soap Companies Hike Prices 6 Per Cent

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (INS)—Two of the nation's "big three" soap companies announced today a six per cent price boost on household soap.

Procter & Gamble and the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company said the price boost was necessitated by the rising costs of raw materials.

The third company, Lever Brothers, advised the Economic Stabilization Board last week that it intended to raise its prices but has not yet done so.

Arrangements Could Be Made At Conference

Austin Denounces Surprise Message

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 22 (AP)—Communist China agreed in a surprise message today that a cease-fire could be arranged by a seven-nation conference on Korea, Formosa and all Far East problems. The United States branded it a "transparent attempt to divide the free world" but lost a passionate move for a quick aggressor verdict against Peiping.

The U. N. Political Committee thus put off for 48 hours any possible action on an American resolution which calls Red China the aggressor in Korea and opens the way for eventual action against Red China. Warren R. Austin, United States scornfully told the committee that it was "extending 48 hours the time in which our sons will be shedding blood on the field of battle."

The vote was an unprecendented 27 to 23 in favor of a move by Sir Benegal N. Rau, India, to meet Wednesday after delegates have time to study Peiping's answer.

Day Of Tense Debate

The vote was taken immediately after Austin capped a day of tense debate with a demand for the committee to continue discussion tomorrow of the U. S. resolution.

The Latin American countries, Turkey, Greece and the Philippines alone stood with the United States against delay. Canada, Britain, France, the Scandinavian countries and others favored time for further examination of the Chinese Communist statement.

Using bitter words, Austin said the Chinese statement "is not even new. It is not a proposition. It is not addressed to the United Nations.'

He said those who want to study the statement "will have plenty of time." He said while those who have not yet spoken or who want to speak again are talking, "the can be hugging this to their bossoms—they can extract from it what comfort that is in it for their purpose."

Communist China said a limited Korean cease-fire could be arranged at the first meeting of a proposed seven-nation conference on Korea, Formosa and other Far East problems.

Reds Answer Questions

The point was contained in a series of answers to questions addressed to Peiping by the government of India which had asked for clarification of Peiping's latest reply to U. N. cease-fire efforts. The statement was read to the U. N. Political Committee by Rau, who has been trying for weeks to hit upon a way to end the fighting in Korea and settle all Far East problems.

Some delegates in the Political Committee hailed the Peiping answers as an important concession. Others said they did not go far enough.

The Chinese Communists made the following major points:

1. A cease-fire for a limited time period can be agreed upon in the first meeting of the seven-nation conference and put into effect so that the negotiations may proceed further.

2. All conditions for concluding the war in Korea and for peace in East Asia must be discussed in connection with the political problems as follows:

A. Steps for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea.

B. Measures for the Korean people to settle their own afafirs.

C. Withdrawal of United States armed forces from Formosa and Formosa Straits in accordance with the Cairo and Potsdam declarations, both of which recognized Formosa as Chinese territory.

D. Other Far East problems, not specified in this statement.

Finally, Peiping said that the definite "affirmation of the legitimate status of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations must be insured."

Probe Of Princess Anne Building Mystery Takes Assembly Spotlight

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 22 (AP)—A Senate investigating committee hoped to clear up tonight the building mystery of Princess Anne.

A five-member group headed by Sen. Redden (D-Caroline) scheduled a conference with Charles E. Brohawn, Cambridge contractor who estimates he completed $30,000 worth of construction without a contract on a new agricultural building at the University of Maryland's College for Negroes.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, also was asked to appear, as were John B. Funk, former state engineer, and Wilson Booth, architect for the building.

Delegate Whitworth (R-Allegany) said he also wants to appear before the committee.

He offered to present the probers with copies of monthly reports from the Department of Public Improvements which showed work began in November on the projected $271,000 agricultural building.

The Board of Public Works had that information available when it turned down all bids, including Brohawn's, at a meeting on Jan. 5, Whitworth said.

The committee wants to find out who told Brohawn to proceed with construction at the Princess Anne institution. Neither the board nor any of the state agencies involved has accepted responsibility.

The committee's scheduled meeting with Brohawn overshadowed Senate and House sessions which opened the fourth week of General Assembly deliberations.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a measure to give state workers who failed to join the employes retirement system when it was set up in 1941 a chance to join now. They would have to pay into the system the amounts they would have contributed if they had been members for the last nine years.

The House brushed off its Monday night meeting in just 14 minutes.

Delegate Tawney (D-Balto 3rd) introduced a bill to make a jail sentence of from 30 days to a year, plus a heavy fine, mandatory for persons convicted of hit-and-run driving resulting in injury.

USAF To Open Sixth English Base In March

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP) — The United States Air Force will open its sixth big English base in March, the British Air Ministry announced today. The field is Sealand, Cheshire, 180 miles northwest of London.

Both the ministry and U. S. air headquarters declined details, but it was reported that up to 3,000 airmen will be sent to man the field as an aircraft engine maintenance center. It was used for this purpose by the Royal Air Force during World War II.

The maintenance personnel, together with 3,000 antiaircraft gunners expected here in the next few weeks, will increase U. S. Air Force strength in England to around 21,000 men.

Peruvian Plane Missing

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 22 (AP) — A Peruvian air force special military transport plane, with 15 persons aboard, has been missing since Saturday on a 475-mile flight to Arequipa, in southeastern Peru, it was disclosed today.

Situation On Wonju Front "Perfect," Ridgeway Says

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea, Jan. 22 (AP) — Lt. Gen. Matthew B Ridgway said today the United Nations situation on the central front is "perfect — and getting better all the time."

The U. S. Eighth Army commander landed at Wonju a few hours after Allied forces, for the fifth time in six days, retook the airstrip and a hill nearby. In enthusiastic mood, the General told a news conference:

"I've just learned that the company I commanded 25 years ago has retaken a strategic hill near the Wonju airstrip."

This was the first announcement that Hill 233 had been reoccupied. The hill and airstrip were wrested from a reinforced Communist platoon after a fight which began at 11:30 a. m. (9:30 a. m. EST, Sunday) and continued until 2:30 p. m.

Allied troops still held the area tonight. Eight Reds were killed in the fight. The others fled northward.

Rock Hurled By Blast Kills Child, Injures Grandmother

WOODBINE, Md., Jan. 22 (AP)—A chunk of rock from a road blasting job sailed through the air about 800 feet and crashed through two walls of a home today, killing a five-year-old girl and critically injuring her grandmother.

The girl, who was playing in the living room was Jeanette E. Davis, 5, daughter of Mrs. Naomi Davis.

In critical condition in University Hospital in Baltimore is Mrs. Annie E. Davis, 54.

Dr. Jens W. Hentzen, Sykesville, said the victims must have been close together, since both were struck in the face. He said the boulder, weighing about 30 pounds, ripped through one outside wall, sailed through another wall and into the living room.

The doctor said both the child and Mrs. Davis suffered compound skull fractures of the skull.

Father Admits Hammer Slaying To Absolve Son

DETROIT, Jan. 22 (AP)—The father of a 30-year-old son who previously confessed the hammer-and-meat cleaver slaying of a Detroit man today absolved the son, police said, and confessed he killed Rocco Aronne, 48.

The father is Luigi Castelveter, 55, the son, Joseph Castelveter, 55, the son, Joseph Castelveter, 30.

Aronne's body, the head bashed and throat slit, was found in his burning car near Martin's Ferry, O., last week. Joseph, police said, still admits he drove the body to Ohio, spilled gasoline in the car and set it afire.

Previously, Joseph had accepted full responsibility, Detective Sgt. Glenn Coller said, claiming that Aronne had threatened members of his family and that he thought he was reaching for a gun when he hit him with a hammer Jan. 13.

Finding discrepancies in the son's story of the slaying, Detective Sgt. Arthur Anderson accused the father, who, he said, confessed.

"I met him with a hammer," Anderson quoted Luigi as saying. "He wanted to run my house. He made me mad. I hit him with a hammer. He yelled and then fell down. Then I hit him with an axe. I tied him up and put him in the coal bin."

Remington Says He Never Was Communist

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP)—William W. Remington told a federal court jury today that his college-day acquaintances used to call him a Communist, but that he never was one—then or later.

Taking the stand in his own defense at his perjury trial, the former Commerce Department economist said his ideas were "quite left" in his youth, and he belonged to so-called "radical groups" in college.

But he said he never condoned Communism. Nor approved the Marxist theories of "revolt and revolution."

The debonair, 33-year-old Remington, center of two-and-a-half years of investigation, is accused of falsely denying to a federal grand jury that he ever was a Communist.

Howser Fails To Win Suit Against Pearson

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—A federal court jury tonight ruled against Fred N. Howser, former California attorney general, in his $350,000 libel suit against Columnist Drew Pearson.

The jury decided unanimously that Pearson proved that the statement he made about Howser in a radio boardcast Sept. 12, 1948, was true.

Pearson said in the broadcast that he had an affidavit that Howser accepted a $1,200 bribe passed on to him by a Long Beach, Calif., gambler for protection.

Trolley Motorman Fined $100 And Costs

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22 (AP)—Jonas H. Geatty, 64-year-old Baltimore motorman, today was fined $100 and costs for operating a trolly car while under the influence of liquor or drugs.

Geatty was also assessed $10 and costs on a second charge of failing to use reasonable care and caution to avoid an accident.

He pleaded innocent to the charges but testified in court that shortly before the accident he took three aspirin tablets in a cola drink, and "had a little liquor put in."

Police testified that the trolley operated by Geatty Saturday crashed into the rear of an auto which in turn struck another car. Then, the court was told, the trolley careened across a street and smashed into a vehicle in a filling station.

Hound Keeps Vigil

WILLIAMSPORT, Ind., Jan. 22. (AP)—A lonely mongrel hound dog has maintained a 'round-the-clock vigil near here for two weeks, waiting for a party of hunters who left without him.

The hunters parked their car where a road crosses Pine Run Creek and entered a woods with the dog, nearby farmers said. After they left, the farmers saw the dog run from the woods and start a watch at the place where the car was parked.

AFTER NIGHT OF HORROR—Nurses Aide Kay Langdon comforts Miss Bess Christy in a Huntington W. Va., hospital after the 66-year-old woman was rescued from under a five-ton rock which crashed into her home and pinned her for more than eight hours. Miss Bess suffered a broken wrist, broken hip and possible other injuries.

Spinster Tells Of Her Night Of Horror Under Huge Rock Which Crashed Into Home

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Jan. 22 (AP)—A little, gray-haired old woman told in a hoarse whisper tonight of her night of horror after a five-ton boulder crashed from a hillside into her small home, pinning her for more than eight hours.

Miss Bess Christy, 66-year-old pensioner who lives alone in a one story, four-room house at Lesage, about 10 miles up-river from here, came through the ordeal with a broken wrist, broken hip and suffering from exposure, shock and possible other injuries.

She was rescued earlier today from underneath the hugh rock which rolled 300 feet down a steep hillside, made her frame home a shables and nearly crushed her to death.

More than 15 rescuers, state police, sheriff's deputies and others, wrestled with the boulder for more than two hours after a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad section crew found Miss Christy.

From her hospital bed, the heavy-set little woman told a newsman of the harrowing experience.

She was awakened from a sound sleep about 2 p. m., she judged, by "a crashin' in the bushes outside."

"I had the covers off and my feet on the floor," she said, when suddenly the whole house shook.

The back wall just caved in, Miss Christy said, and she threw her arms in front of her face.

The big boulder bent a wall board which snapped against her arms pinning them in an "x" in front of her face.

The bed collapsed and the next thing she knew she and the bed were flat on the floor. The big rock pressing down.

"It was restin' agin my hip," she said, "I couldn't move any."

Hoped For 33 Years

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 22 (AP)—A Kearny man applied today for a divorce from his wife, claiming she deserted him 33 years ago—one month after their wedding on April 1, 1917.

"Why did you wait so long to apply for a divorce?" the court asked.

"I had hoped she would come back to me," replied Charles J. Sotile.

Divorce granted, the court ruled.

Sen. Douglas Defends Acheson Position

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 22 (AP)—Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) tonight defended the foreign policy position of Secretary of State Dean Acheson, saying "since Korea he and Mr. Truman have been the strongest opponents aggressive Communism has had."

Douglas, in what he described as his first public defense of Acheson, declared that "Acheson's attitude is one of uncompromising opposition to aggression by the Chinese Reds and Communists elsewhere."

"His attitude has been misunderstood," the Senator added.

His remarks about Acheson came during a question and answer discussion following his regular talk at the opening of the 12th annual Institute of Religion here.

"Ike" Completes His Appraisal

FRANKFURT, Germany, Jan. 22 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower completed his military appraisal of Western Europe tonight after private talks with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, two generals and other German leaders.

The meetings were described by the Germans as friendly and communicative, so much so that Carlo Schmid, top parliamentarian of the Socialist Party, said afterwards:

"World War III will not take place."

Eisenhower flies tomorrow to France, with whose officials he already has conferred at great length. His two-day stay in France will see the completion of arrangements for setting up at least an interim headquarters in Paris or its environs. He expects to return to Europe in mid-February.

The supreme commander's talks with the Germans were at a reception in the home of U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy, at Bad Homburg, 10 miles from Frankfurt.

A cold and sore throat, which had obliged Eisenhower to cancel formal afternoon conferences with the three western high commissioners, appeared not to bother him.

Copies Of Md. Constitution For Students Proposed

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 22 (AP)—Senate Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert), wants every Maryland student to have a copy of the state constitution.

He drew up a resolution tonight that would give a copy to all children from the ninth grade up. College students would be included.

Goldstein said copies would cost 23.5 cents apiece. That would amount to a total of more than $25,000 for the initial distribution on the basis of a schools' department estimate that 106,000 youngsters are eligible.

FACES LIE TEST—Kenneth Scholz (above), 17-year-old Crete, Ill., high school student charged with murdering a 13-year-old schoolmate, left for Chicago yesterday for a lie test. Scholz has signed a statement that he killed Billy Rodenberg but police are not satisfied with his explanations of his motives and are investigating the possibility that more youths may be involved. Billy's body was found in a ditch beside a road. In his confession, Scholz said he killed Billy because he was afraid the younger boy would tell about being held captive in a shack near the Scholz home.

23 Killed When Volcano Erupts

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 22 (AP)—The first survivors told today how a terrific eruption of Mt. Lamington in New Guinea's equatorial jungle caught them in a huge ash cloud and took at least 23 lives.

Ashes sifted an inche deep on the streets of Port Moresby, famous as an Allied base in World War Two, 100 miles away.

The surprise eruption last Thursday was the first recorded for the four-peaked mountain, known locally as the "Marx Brothers." A government spokesman at Port Moresby put the death toll at 23, with 34 missing.

Other unconfirmed radio reports from the area said up to 50 Europeans were killed, along with at least 30 New Guineans. The radio reports said 68 Europeans and whites including Anglican, Catholic and Seventh Day Adventists missionaries, traders and officials were in the eruption area.

Accused Slayer To Be Baptized

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 22 (AP) — Millard Cochran, white-haired father of six who allegedly killed his wife and 19-year-old son because they attended church at night, will be baptized Sunday into the Church of Christ.

But the 58-year-old Cochran, who keeps a Bible and a New Testament handy in his Pike County jail cell, denies that he "got religion" after the shooting orgy in which he also wounded a second son and a daughter.

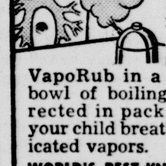

He told Jailer Lacy Goodman that he's been a Christian nine years — just never got around to joining the church.

The church he'll join is one of two in the Feds Creek community where he resided. It's the same church to which his murdered wife, Cynthia, 51, and son, 19-year-old Chester, belonged.

But it's not the one that he objected to them attending.

Furniture Trend Swings Toward Cooler Colors

CHICAGO—(AP)—The trend in interior decoration is toward cooler colors, a New York fabric designer reports.

The so-called "hot" colors of the Southwest, which have gained greatly in popularity in recent years, will be modified toward more restful shades. And you'll see a lot of white and off-white in fabrics and furnishings. Even blue, once shunned as a cold color, is regaining adherents.

That was the statement today of Miss Tammis Keefe of New York, at a news conference at the 1951 winter furniture market.

The only possible stumbling block to ascendancy of the muted shades would be all-out war, she said. In that event, purer tones would remain the rage—not for a psychological boost, but because the softer colors require top quality dyestuffs and fabrics, both short in wartime.

Miss Keefe and two New York furniture designers, Harold Schwaryz and Paul McCobb, said the "monotone look" would be important in home decoration, with whites and beiges for background colors because "they are the most flattering to the human being." The monotone look would avoid monotony by accents of color in small accessories.

The trend toward muted shades, McCobb said, means "simply that we are going to use better taste in color."

"A few years ago," he stated, "the housewife was practically limited to buying bottle green, chartreuse and lipstick red. Then we began to bring in mustard and tangerine. Now we're becoming more subtle and thus in better taste."

William Lyon Phelps, who delivered an average of one hundred paid lectures every season, also made a number of appearances "on the cuff" at church bazaars, benefits, and the like. In one courtesy appearance at a New Haven church, Dr. Phelps had the audience in stitches with some choice anecdotes, then begged reporters present not to include them in printed reports of the meeting.

"I'll be using these stories all season," he explained, "and it would take the edge off them if they appeared in print."

The reporters respected his entreaty. One, in face, wound up an extremely complimentary review with the statement, "Dr. Phelps punctuated his remarks with a number of hilarious stories that cannot be published here."

The lady obviously found the proximity of the seedy gent highly objectionable. In fact, she took the extraordinary step of leaning across the aisle and whispering, "I think you should know that my little girl is just recuperating from a bad case of small-pox, which is still probably contagious."

"Don't let that worry you for a moment," said the seedy one mournfully. "I'm going to cut my throat in the first tunnel anyhow."

Early Use Of ACTH Lessens Heart Damage In Rheumatic Fever Cases

By ROBERT N. SCHWARTZ

CHICAGO (INS)—Two New York physicians report that early use of ACTH, the hormone drug from swine glands, lessens damage to the heart in cases of rheumatic fever—public enemy No. 1 among childhood diseases.

Drs. May G. Wilson and Helen N. Helper, of Cornell University Medical Center, New York City, reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association a study of 11 patients, aged 6 to 18, treated with ACTH. They wrote:

"From this limited experience it would appear that the early treatment of acute carditis with adequate amounts of pituitary adrenocorticotropic hormone (ACTH) should shorten the course, result in minimal cardiac damage and prevent death due to progressive cardiitis and resultant congestive failure."

Origin of rheumatic fever is a mystery. Until the advent of the two hormone drugs, ACTH and cortisone, there was no really adequate treatment for the disease, the number one killer of children.

It results in calification (bony growths) in and around the heart valves, leading in many cases to permanent damage to that vital organ—and early death.

Extent of damage to the heart is marked by the degree of inflamation of the heart—acute carditis.

According to the two physicians inflamation of the heart stopped within three to seven days after administration of ACTH was begun.

They added that after treatment they found:

1—Diminished enlargement of the heart chambers; 2—Disappearance of heart murmurs, denoting weakness of the valves; 3—electrocardiograph tracings showed disappearance of disturbances to the muscular walls of the heart; and 4 an increase in the heart reserve.

Within two to four weeks after treatment was begun all the patients were able to walk about freely. This is in sharp contrast to prehormone treatments when many children were forced to spend months flat on their backs in bed.

"Some degree of heart damage was possibly sustained by all patients," the two specialists observed, but after a period of from four to 12 month after the illness, five showed no increased damage, three showed what might possibly be damage and two had no visible damage. No check was made on the 11th patient.

Nature of the chemical action by which ACTH and cortisone alleviate rheumatic fever, the doctors pointed out, "remains obscure."

Any Use Studying?

Uncertainty about the immediate future is deeply troubling young American college students. Will they be drafted, and if so, how soon? They are troubled, just as young men were in 1940 and 1941. That was the period of another semi-emergency, the training with wooden guns, the gradual welding of the will to enter the war. There was still hope that the U. S. would stay out of it.

A decade later the students—and the country—are in much the same state of mind again. Now, as then, the best and sanest counsel is what young men deserve but do not always get. Those who need it most, of course, are the ones in danger of becoming quitters. They are saying all over the country, "What's the use of studying? The draft will get me anyway."

Some eloquent counsel has been offered students by the president of the University of Delaware, Dr. John A Perkins. He led his hearers back beyond the scientific miracles to the human brains that designed them. He noted that "the Russians are seeing to it that all their ablest young people are being given the maximum educational opportunity." And he added:

"America needs educated young people desperately . . . We must continue to emphasize in our educational processes not only chemistry, physics, mathematics, or engineering, but the modern counterparts of what once was called moral philosophy. . . . Should you forget or not acquaint yourself with the cultural heritage of Western civilization, we might win a war but emerge from it just as uncivilized as those we war against."

Courage and faith Dr Perkins called upon his students to have—and to show by earnest study in college. His words may have been aimed at those lads whose maturity is still to be attained. The same words can reinforce the spirit of the rest who will always do their best, in college or in battle.

Europe's Troubled Past

Addressing the freshmen members of Congress, President Truman compared our present peril to the time of the Mongol invasion of Europe in the Middle Ages. He pointed out that the threat was halted.

It was the Turks and not the Mongols, however, who were stopped only at the walls of Vienna. The 13th century Mongols conquered Russia, overran Poland and Hungary, and won a battle at Liegnitz in German Silesia. Then came word that their emperor had died in far off Asia, and the Mongol army returned home to take part in possible disputes over the succession.

The Turks threatened not once but twice. In 1529 the greatest of all Turkish sultans, Suleiman the Magnificent, besieged Vienna, hoping perhaps to transfer his capital there from Constantinople. Earlier sultans had similarly transferred the capital to Constantinople from the far less noted town of Brusa. The siege failed; it was one of Suleiman's few rebuffs. This ranks as one of history's decisive battles; had it succeeded, there is no telling when the Turks would have been ejected from the heart of Europe.

A second siege of Vienna, in 1683, was more a raid than a systematic attempt at conquest. Neither the Turks nor the Austrians were then at top strength, so that had the city been captured, it might not have been held for long. The siege was lifted through rescue brought by Poland's most famous king, John Sobieski. This was the last great venture for both Poland and Turkey on the international stage.

Turks and Mongols alike threatened the liberty of Europe. Both finally had to give up their planned conquests.

For The Long Pull

Before the trouble in Korea burst into our lives last summer, a number of careful observers of the world scene had been advising that Americans must accept the prospect of a long period of international tensions and recurring critical situations. During the last few months this advice has been pushed into the background as we have struggled with the problems of fighting a war actually begun and wondering if a bigger war is inevitable. The war and the question of bigger war are still with us, but once more we are beginning to hear counsel to prepare for a long period of troubled times.

If a great war can be avoided, the alternative probably is the long period of uncertainty and stress. Some estimate that conditions of world relations like those of the past few years may continue for 25 years or more. Some prophets also believe that the troubles will not be merely diplomatic, but will include small wars in various areas.

This is a grim outlook, whichever way the immediate situation turns out. But it is hard to find flaws in the reasoning which produces these prophecies. Until events take a course which promises more cheer, we should do well to consider the theory that we are at the beginning, not the climax, of a time of world trials and uncertainty. This may affect the attitude toward the more immediate questions of specific policy and plans for the present situation.

No Ration Books

The American people share the hope of Charles E. Wilson, director of Defense Mobilization, that consumer rationing can be postponed indefinitely. Their memories of that sort of thing — shortages, coupon books, long lines of waiting customers — are recent enough and unpleasant enough to make them shudder at the very thought of it.

So long as the international conflict remains as it is at present, tense but not punctuated by global shooting there is no reason for contemplating restriction of the purchase of such essential household commodities as food, clothing, gasoline, fuel oil, etc.

It is true that a growing army will make larger and larger demands on the nation's agriculture and productive facilities, but it is also the fact that the country is raising more and creating more than ever before.

The waste of war makes it inevitable that there will be scarcities. In some fields they are already apparent. Building materials are in short supply. The manufacture of automobiles is being curtailed somewhat, although it is still above the best prewar figure. But there is no need for consumer rationing, and its imposition would only create chaos.

Cod liver oil is one of those foods which seems inclined to defeat itself. It raises objection among youngsters when they begin to be aware of taste in their foods, and at the same time gives them more energy with which to object.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Wasting Muscles In Children

SEVERAL YEARS AGO I was sitting in the living room of patients of mine who were questioning me about their 4 year old son. He had developed normally until three months previously, when he began to have trouble maintaining his balance in walking. In addition, it was becoming increasingly difficult for him to go upstairs and a few days before this condition had become so acute that the lad asked to be carried.

The youngster was sitting in the middle of the living room. He was stocky and looked healthy, was smart as a whip, and had the calf muscles of a boy twice his age. There was nothing in his appearance to suggest muscular weakness or clumsiness. But when he decided to stand, he rolled over on his stomach and gradually got on his hands and knees. He extended his legs so that the weight of the body was resting on his hands and feet, with the knees slightly bent. With great effort he worked his hands back to the legs and by grasping them at higher and higher levels was able to assume an upright posture.

It was this maneuver of climbing up on himself by pushing his body upward with his hands that suggested muscular dystrophy, a disease characterized by progressive wasting and paralysis of the muscular system. He had difficulty maintaining balance, walking upstairs, and rising from a sitting or lying down position because the muscles of his legs, pelvic girdle, and back were weak. The overdevelopment of the leg muscles was more real than apparent; the enlargement consisted of connective tissue and fat deposited between weakened muscle fibers.

It is estimated that there are more than 100,000 victims of muscular dystrophy in the United States; the majority are between the ages of 3 and 13 years. Unless a remedy is found, few will reach maturity because the disease invariably is fatal. The cause is not known except that heredity plays a role; in some instances the trait has been traced thru many generations. A metabolic disturbance is believed to be responsible for muscle weakness. Some authorities implicate creatine; others, lack of vitamin E.

The malady starts so gradually that most parents are vague as to when it began. The most noticeable symptoms are the clumsy gait, difficulty in climbing stairs, and an unduly prominent abdomen. There is no pain. The exact manifestations vary depending upon the muscles affected. The boy mentioned above exemplifies one of the more common types. Involvement of the shoulder girdle affects the arms. The weakness may become so pronounced that when the physician lifts the child by placing the hands in the armpits, the shoulders are brought up to the ears and the youngster tends to slip thru the hands. It is almost inconceivable that muscles are capable of becoming so flabby that the shoulders collapse in this fashion. As the youngster becomes weaker and weaker he is confined at first to a wheelchair and later to bed.

There is no specific remedy. Massage and exercise improve the efficiency of the remaining muscle tissue. Many drugs have been used, including glycin, curare, insulin, ephedrine, ACTH, and vitamin E. Dr. S. Stone, for example, used the latter product in combination with vitamins B and C on 25 patients. None was cured by the majority showed improvement while under treatment; they were able to get up faster from a sitting position, walk longer distances without giving out, and appeared more lively generally. When the medication was discontinued, symptoms returned.

GALL BLADDER INFECTION

Mrs. H. D. writes: Would any of the antibiotics be effective against a chronic gall bladder infection? I have been on a low fat diet for many years.

REPLY

The antibiotics have been used in the treatment of gall bladder infections but are more useful in the acute than the chronic varieties. Infection over a long period of time leads to thickening and scarring of the walls of the gall bladder, a condition that will persist even tho the infection is brought under control with the antibiotics.

DELAYED DIAGNOSIS

Mrs. O. writes: Is it possible that congenital syphilis would not show up in a blood test until a woman became pregnant?

REPLY

Not if a blood test had been taken previously. Evidentaly, in the case you mention, a Kahn or Wassermann had never been done. One of the advantages of taking a blood test in pregnancy is that syphilis can be detected and treated in cases where the blood had never been tested.

Small Towns Are The Foundation Of America; Perhaps My Police Records Burned With Old Town Hall; Watch Concentration Of Power In Washington

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON. — Last week I went up to the little Pennsylvania town where I spent most of my boyhood, to help dedicate the beginning of a new town hall. It brought back a lot of memories. It also set me thinking about what forms the real foundation of government in this country—namely, the small towns of America.

Swarthmore boasted about 2,000 people when I grew up there, and it still isn't much bigger now. The houses are of that early penitentiary, mansard-roof type; solid, a little ugly, but both the hearthstones and the hearts of the people inside are warm.

A few things about my town have changed in the 30-odd years since I moved away—but not many. There's a new movie house—unheard of in my day. And an underpass has replaced the old railroad grade crossing where watchman Mike McCarthy, friend of every kid in town, used to fret and fume until school was out and all the children had been herded across the tracks.

Some swank new homes have been built in the cow pastures and woods where I once trapped skunks; but Frank Gettz, now the town tax asessor, greeted me with the observation: "The skunk-catching isn't so good up here any more, but I see you're still catching them down in Washington."

Pearson's Police Record

Biggest change in Swarthmore, however, is going to be the new town hall, for which—with proper ceremonies—be broke ground. The old town hall, a gaunt, ungainly eyesore, caught fire last year, which reminded me that maybe the police records had burned with it, thereby removing from the clutches of my senatorial well-wishers the criminal evidence they have been so diligently trying to find.

A certain senator has been eagerly digging into my past of late, and last week an attorney close to the McCarthyites stood up in court and indicated by his cross examination of me that they were even trying to track down an incident in Reidsville, N. C., where, after taking down a chautauqua tent, I was arrested at 3 a. m., for taking a sponge bath in the murky Southern Railroad yards.

This is a story which I tell every time I go to North Carolina, the last time having been to the North Carolina Press Association in Chapel Hill about a year ago. I also get humorous letters from Judge Ira Humphries who presided over the court, and Rev. William A. Lambeth, then Methodist minister in Reidsville, reminding me of my wicked past.

I have also had kidding reminders from Attorney P. W. Glidewell of Reidsville, who kindly volunteered to defend me and who predicted that, if I ever became a public figure, my enemies would investigate my seamy past.

Grist For Sen. McCarthy

Presiding at the town hall ceremonies in Swarthmore was William H. Ward, now a top executive of the duPont Company, who, like me, worked his way through college by spending his summers on a chautauqua tent crew. And I couldn't help but remember how Bill Ward and Gibson Bradfield, now Barnesville, Ohio's, leading banker, once took advantage of the liquid coolness of the fountain in the public square at Wellsboro, Pennsylvania, to remove the all-night grime of taking down a tent.

I hope Senator McCarthy doesn't go after them, too!

At any rate, I was acquitted in Reidsville, N. C., and there was even a little lecture by the judge to the arresting cop that was the duty of very citizen to keep clean.

What Senator McCarthy doesn't know, however, is that the burned records in the old town hall at Swarthmore would have showed that I was also arrested on an entirely different charge at an earlier age (about 15) and that time found guilty.

It was after a college football game. Swarthmore had beaten its old rival, Haverford. The two Quaker colleges were supposed to practice brotherly love, but didn't. Afterward, I rang the village fire bell and got caught. Fine: $5.

Backbone of America

Well, all these memories and a lot of others came crowding back at that dedication ceremony last week. And among them was the realization that our small towns are the backbone of America, and that if we ever lose our small-town independence, and the community spirit that goes with it, then we might really be in danger of going the way of Russia.

The tendency of our modern, streamlined nation is to concentrate too much power in Washington. Most people blame Washington for this, though actually part of the blame belongs at home. For, when some towns can't or do not raise enough taxes to build new schoolhouses or pay their teachers, then they come to Washington for federal aid to education. And when states want new roads, they are eager beavers in tapping the public roads subsidy in Washington.

So Washington can't be blamed for exercising the power which local communities abdicate.

Meanwhile, the most centralized government in the world today is the Soviet, where local communities have almost no power and where only 14 men sitting in the Kremlin can throw a nation and the world into war. The more we copy that scheme of things the greater chance for us someday to fit into the Soviet pattern.

That's why I got a kick out of playing a part in launching a new town hall for the small town where I used to live. That's why every town and city should keep its vigor and independence. That's why the John Pitmans, and the Dillwyn Durnalls and the E. C. Waltons (he caught me ringing the fire bell) and the others who serve faithfully on town councils are the nation's greatest bulwark against Communism.

As long as our communities have folks like the Joe Seals, for whom I once delivered newspapers; and the Joe Celias, who mend a pair of shoes as carefully as Michelangelo painted a fresco; and the J. Russell Smiths, friends and teachers to mankind, I am not much worried about the country's future.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

The Chance Of War—1

WASHINGTON—

WITHIN THE LAST six months, the Kremlin has quietly taken a series of steps which at least look like preparations for an attack in Europe in the spring or summer. This is really the central fact in the existing world situation, transcending in possible significance all the more immediate news. It is time — indeed it is past time — to have a look at what the Kremlin has done, and to try to see what it may mean.

Among many changes in the European pattern, the most alarming have occurred on the borders of Yugoslavia. Until six months ago, there was no doubt that Marshal Tito's army of 400,000 men could defeat the combined forces of the Kremlin's Hungarian, Romanian and Bulgarian satellites. This is no longer the case.

Beginning shortly after the opening of the Korean War, the satellite armies have been progressively strengthened. The 1927 class, which should have been demobilized by now, has been kept in uniform. Selected specially trained men have been called up from the reserves. Thus the armed forces of the satellites have been expanded by over 50 per cent, to the combined total of 660,000 men given by Tito himself in a recent speech. Meanwhile, the Soviets have also sent heavy shipments of tanks, artillery pieces, other arms and ammunition to remedy the satellite armies' formerly grave deficiencies in equipment.

In addition, although the Soviets have not as yet reniforced their Hungarian, Romanian and Bulgarian garrisons, they have significantly strengthened their forces in the Carpatho-Ukraine. This new Russian province lies west of the Carpathian Mountain chain. Mechanized spearheads striking from the Carpatho-Ukraine, across the Pannonian Plain and down the Danube Valley, could reach Belgrade in a matter of a couple of days.

Views Have Some Credibility

On their face, these seem to be preparations for an attack on Yugoslavia by the surrounding satellite, followed up, if Yugoslavia resistance should prove too stout, by the Soviet Army itself. Such at least is Marshal Tito's belief. Such is the reason for his effort to be ready for War in April or May. His view gains credibility, moreover, from other steps taken by the Kremlin in Eastern Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Here the forces that the Kremlin can move on short notice remain approximately the same, except for the strong measures taken in the last twelve months to make sure of the political reliability of the Czech and Polish armies. There are still 25 Soviet divisions in Eastern Germany and ten in Poland, most of them either mechanized or armored. Here, in fact, the change in the picture takes the form of seeming preparations to move these forces, which of course are far stronger than any that can be mustered in the West.

Until last summer, only very ignorant persons parroted the cliche that Russian armies could occupy Western Europe in a matter of weeks.

Great modern armies require transport; and at the end of the war, the Soviets tore up and carted home as loot most of the railroad trackage in their new Eastern European Empire. While this situation had not been improved, Western Europe could feel reasonably secure.

Form Startling Pattern

Now, however, the work that began last year, with the construction of the Berlin rail by-pass, has been greatly extended. According to authoratative information, the line from Berlin to the important junction of Frankfurt-on-Oder has been quadruple-tracked, while the line from Frankfurt-on-Oder to Ngorelye, where the change to Russian guage occurs, is being double-tracked. It is also probable that the autobahn from Berlin to Warsaw, of which Hitler laid the foundations, is now being completed by order of Marshal Rokossovski.

Concurrently, the program of building new airfields and strengthening and lengthening existing runways for jet aircraft, revealed in this space last year, is being completed under forced draft. And in Eastern Germany, particularly, the most worrying of all signs has recently appeared. Large military dumps have been established of gasoline, ammunition and other supplies.

All these meaningful developments form a startling pattern. No one in the Western World, unless the secrets of the Kremlin have been penetrated, can tell whether or not the pattern indicates a genuine Soviet intention to attack in Europe.

The fact must be squarely faced, however, that almost every obstacle to a Soviet move in Europe has now been, or is now being removed. The preparations in Eastern Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland are still on a small enough scale to have a "just-in-case" look about them; but those on the borders of Yugoslavia are at least indistinguishable from the real thing. In short, the situation requires most careful analysis, which will be attempted in a second report.

Red China's Defeat Now More Probable Than Ever

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 — The "flower" of the Red Chinese Army has been taking such intensive punishment in Korea that all previous appraisals about the future course of events there now must be revised. This is what's really behind the stay-in-Korea statements flowing lately out of the Far East and Washington.

The general impression heretofore has been that Red China has an unlimited number of troops ready to be committed to the fighting in Korea. But what has been overlooked is that most of these are untrained and badly equipped and that it is risky business for Red China to take the devastating losses which she is now taking among her trained and best-equipped troops.

The announced decision of the high command to stay in Korea is based upon a firm belief that the Red Chinese cannot afford a prolonged action and that some peaceful outcome must eventually emerge in which the objectives of the U.N. in protecting an independent Korea will be realized.

Political Question Too

It's all a question now of how long the occupation should last. Shall it be months or perhaps years if necessary as in the case of the occupation of Japan? The Red Chinese in the last few days have shown an unwillingness to press the fighting southward in Korea and the lull has been variously interpreted throughout the world. It could mean that Red China is up against some top-level decisions too and that last week's defiance of the "cease fire" proposal was really an attempt to outbluff and outmaneuver the allies and bring about, if possible, a voluntary withdrawal from Korea.

Thus the question of withdrawal itself has become political as well as military. So long as the Chinese Communists thought a growing American opinion strengthened by policies of the British Commonwealth of States would result in a voluntary withdrawal of troops there was no sense in accepting the "cease fire" proposal. Now, however, that the American attitude has stiffened and the high command here has been permitted to say publicly in positive terms that we intend to remain in Korea, the Red Chinese know the fighting must continue.

The calculation here now is that Red China cannot take the losses or the punishment being given the flower of her armies by our air and naval pawer and ground forces and that a change in the political attitude of Red China soon will emerge.

Helping Red China

In the meantime those nations in the UN which are counselling delay and are hesitating to vote for a resolution condemning Red China as an aggressor are playing into the hands of the Red Chinese. If these nations were really united behind the resolution, the Red Chinese would face up to a serious set of circumstances. Here is how our high officials view it:

1. If Red China isn't an aggressor then there is no sense in maintaining any allied troops, including Americans, in Korea and the UN might better announce now that invasion of Hong Kong, Indo-China, Japan and the Philippines will not be resisted and that Red China can take them all at her pleasure.

2. But if Red China is an aggressor, then the UN must support vigorously the program to resist aggression. This means more troops from UN members to help carry on the fighting in Korea where the punishment will be inflicted against the aggressor. In other words, the UN can content itself with localizing the air, naval and ground operations to Korea itself and wage the battle there as long as is necessary to bring Red China to terms.

The whole situation is not one that need be resolved at this moment from the military standpoint. It's the political side that needs the showdown. Each month the situation can be examined in the light of the progress made by our armies in Korea toward punishing the aggressor. Meanwhile Red China runs the risk of counterattack from within and she will not be able to supply equipment to her millions of troops without draining Russian sources of supply. It is getting to be a pretty costly war from the Soviet standpoint, too.

So time and this policy of attrition must eventually bring a favorable result to the UN. The critical decision comes now in branding Red China an aggressor for, if approved, its sequel will be continued military pressure until such time as the Red Chinese government is defeated and admits its defeat which is now much more probable than any time since the Chinese intervention began on October 20 last.

There is every reason to reiterate now the statement made in these dispatches last June that the prompt action taken by the UN in general and the United States in particular in resisting aggression in Korea may have truly prevented World War III from being fought in the immediate future—and perhaps from being fought at all.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Where Do We Stand?

A NATION has to face up with reality sooner or later. We can wander in a miasma of hopes and wishes, but sooner or later we come up slap-bang against cold facts. No twisting and squirming helps.

No matter how much we talk about what we need to do in Europe, we are actually fighting in Asia. Americans are being killed there. Our troops have been at it since June 25, six months of heart-breaking, mind-searing, deadly fighting. Many have been killed; many are permanently disabled. I recently saw a preview of a motion picture, "Steel Helmet," which, with rare realism, describes our Korean War as a fact.

While we sit comfortably ruminating on what General Eisenhower may or may not succeed in doing in Europe, General MacArthur is actually, day by day, hour by hour, facing a merciless and formidable foe. Nor is it possible to forget Korea, while we wait for Eisenhower to make his deals in Europe. There is no waiting time while our boys are being killed.

Maybe we should never have gone into Korea! Maybe we should, in humiliation and abjectly, cut our losses there and get out! Maybe we should recognize the Soviet world as our masters!

Is not all that academic? The fact is that we are in Korea and that we cannot accept the indignity of humiliation and defeat without suffering diplomatically and economically throughout the world. A licked nation has no standing. Nor can we long remain an independent people if we accept the Soviets as our masters.

Therefore, Dean Acheson has taken the correct step when he rejected the counter-terms of Soviet China in the matter of the ceasefire. Their counter-terms involve total humiliation for the United States. They are insulting terms —the offer of a conqueror to a defeated foe who is tolerated.

Our government has no alternative but to acknowledge that Soviet China is an enemy nation making war upon the United States. That nation has rejected every effort on our part to meet them three-quarters of the way. They demand total humiliation.

If the United Nations deserts the United States at this point, there is nothing for Congress to do but to abrogate the treaty which makes us a party to the United Nations charter.

Therefore, the next step is up to the United Nations. Either that body declares Soviet China to be an aggressor or it denounces itself to be a congregation of cowards, unworthy of our membership. It seems to me that those are the alternatives.

True, if the United States abandons the United Nations, that parliament of states would have little reason for existence. Nevertheless, it would be an interesting legal point as to whether they could not, in such circumstances, continue to meet in New York. They are housed in this city by the terms of contracts with the Government of the United States and the State of New York, fully covered by acts of federal Congress and the New York State Legislature.

Would our withdrawal from the United Nations affect those contracts? One of the clauses of the contract with the Government of the United States guarantees to those who have business with the United Nations free access to it. That includes spies and saboteurs if they have the proper credentials. The United States is not the judge of the credentials, although such agents of foreign governments must live in our cities and move about in them.

In our present troubles with Soviet Russia and Soviet China, this can become tremendously important whether we remain in the United Nations or withdraw from it. Thousands of Europeans and Asiatics, in one way or another, have proper business with the United Nations who may, as a sideline, have other highly improper business in the United States. How

Mineral County Court Opens January Term

McAvoy May Be Tried In Hampshire County

KEYSER, W. Va.—The current term of Mineral County Circuit Court has the appearance of a short term of action, since the first case set a pattern for quick disposition. The first case was the only criminal action set for hearing at the term, but at the session Monday morning, Prosecuting Attorney Donald C. Hott moved that the case against William Carl McAvoy be nolle possed and referred to the Hampshire County Circuit Court for action.

The prosecutor explained that since the case was set, information had been received by him that the wool alleged stolen in the indictment returned against McAvoy, had been taken from the farm of Creed Mott, in Mineral County, and removed to a point less than 100 feet within Hampshire county. The case should be tried there, as it is charged that McAvoy's part in the case was disposition of the wool through sale, from the place in Hampshire county where it had been hidden after its theft.

Carl Lee Baer and Alvie Harold Mayhew were indicted with McAvoy in the theft, and these two entered guilty pleas and were given sentences at the last term of court, but McAvoy pleaded not guilty and the trial date was set for yesterday. McAvoy was freed by a jury at the last term of Mineral County Circuit Court on another indictment on which the other two defendants also pled guilty.

The second case set for hearing yesterday in court, Cumberland & Allegheny Gas Company vs Hilda B. Crawford, was continued when attorneys said they believed it could be settled without trial.

At today's session the case of Lelia D. Wendell vs G. C. Murphy Company will go to trial before a jury. Repossession of equipment claimed to have been sold to the defendant and not paid for is the basis of the action.

On Wednesday morning, the jury will be called to hear evidence in the case in which the Potomac Light & Power Company is plaintiff in a condemnation proceeding against Lillian F. Wagoner. The case involves placing of poles and a transmission line through the property of the defendant. The case was heard at the last term of court and resulted in a jury disagreement.

At yesterday's session, attorneys met to discuss several pending court actions and it is believed that several more will be settled out of court before the term ends. However there is one more case in which the fatal accident of Thomas Daskal will be brought for jury action. There were five cases filed by the heirs of Thomas Daskal, who died as a result of injuries sustained when his car and a truck owned by the Schriver Company, Cumberland, collided last summer on the Knobley Mountain Road just outside the city limits of Keyser.

The case to be heard at this term is brought by James Daskal, a son of the deceased. He is asking $15,000 damages.

The case docketed as Guy L. Reel, vs Beatty Motor Express, Inc., which is a joint action in which three other suits were joined with this one, has been continued for the term, with the belief that a settlement may be reached out of court. The Reel case is the result of an automobile accident and damages in the amount of $25,000 are asked by the plaintiff.

Girl Scouts Aid Polio Campaign

FROSTBURG—Mrs. W. O. McLane, Jr., chairman of the annual March of Dimes campaign in this community, announced that the theatre collections for the drive are now underway at local theatres and will continue all this week. Receipts from the Palace and Lyric Theatres last year amounted to $540.

Girl Scouts who will assist in the theatre collections this year are Gloria Keedy, Judith Jenkins, Yvonne Miller, Lois Patterson, Patty Bean, Blanche Filer, Louise Downton, Sue Jones, Ellen Richardson, Barbara Rankin, Betsy Bampton, and Judith Devore, all members of Wild Rose Girl Scout Troop.

Dr. W. O. McLane, who serves in an advisory capacity to the local committee in charge of the drive, stated that of all the diseases that ravage children and adults, polio is the most devastating and the most expensive of all to treat. He urged the local committee to put forth every effort to make the 1951 drive a success.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—(INS)—Gene Kelly is really an amazingly talented lad. He did most of the choreography on "American In Paris," did the narrating, and is an author of considerable ability. That was evident when he wrote one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's top musicals, "Take Me Out To The Ball Game," a few years ago.

Gene Kelly

Now Gene comes through with another idea about the New York Fire Department, probably to be called "Take Me Out To The Fire!" He and Director Stanley Donen, Elizabeth Taylor's boyfriend, have written this story, which was inspired by Maurice Evans.

The idea came after Maurice told Gene that he lives in an old firehouse in New York which he has converted into a studio.

On his way to Paris, Gene will stop in New York to get more data for his musical, which will be made later in 1951.

While Sam Goldwyn is in New York he's doing advance work on his next two pictures. One of his contracts is getting George Balanchine to do the choreography on "Hans Christian Andersen" with Danny Kaye and lovely Ballerina Moira Shearer.

Sam couldn't have got a better boy. Balanchine is thoroughly familiar with creating ballets for the screen camera. He worked with Moira in London. When he was married to Vera Zorina they spent a good deal of time here and he created many sensational dances for musical pictures.

Since their divorce, both have remarried and are very happy (at least at press time) with their respective mates.

● — ● — ●

The long gone, but not forgotten, Luise Rainer, two-time winner of the Academy Award, is coming back to Hollywood—but ironically enough, not for a movie. She'll star on the stage in "Joan Of Lorraine" at the new Ivar Theater. She has promised Producer-Director Harold J. Kennedy that she will be here about February 5.

What a strange career Luise, the dark-haired, dark-eyed European actress, has had. For two years she was the darling of Hollywood—hailed for her wonderful acting in "The Good Earth" and "The Great Ziegfeld." Then, flooey—for some reason she couldn't get a job.

Chit-chat:

Next month Irene Wrightsman becomes the bride of Kirk Douglas. His divorce becomes final February 9. When they were both east, they received the blessings of her father, Oil Millionaire Charles Wrightsman.

Even before she becomes Mrs. Douglas, Irene will make her stage debut with her future husband in "Detective Story" when it opens at the Sombrero Theater in Phoenix, Ariz., on January 23. She'll play a minor role, which will give her an excuse to be close to her fiance.

There was a report going the rounds a few days ago that Judy Garland is going back to M-G-M to make a picture—weight and all.

This, of course, is fantastic, but the story (which was pretty widely circulated, too) said that it was decided that M-G-M had taken too much criticism in requesting her to diet—hence the new contract.

The movie would be made showing Judy with all her poundage. I don't know what a such a move would serve to prove—if anything.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Faye Emerson is shopping for the right script to make a movie comeback. Well, she's certainly the queen of the TV field.

Ginger Rogers, who went to Miami for the premiere of "Storm Warning," will return by way of New York—bet she'll see Greg Bautzer there.

The MacDonald Careys are adding a third room to their house for their third baby due March 9, which is, incidentally, Mac's birthday.

Releases of Arthur Kennedy's picture, "Light Out," are being held up by Universal-International because U. I. thinks he has a chance for the Oscar in 1951.

Dorothy Kirsten returned from New York today after finishing the Met season. She will open her house in Hollywood and get ready for her marriage to Dr. Gene Chapman.

The Brown Derby has bought $300 worth of tickets to the premiere of "Mudlark" and has given them to veterans. That's a wonderful thing to do.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

For tasks that can be performed while sitting, choose your chair carefully. Here are tests for its fitness!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

WHEN you can sit, why stand to perform household tasks? This is not an invitation to laziness but to freedom from fatigue!

Many household chores can be sedentary ones—ironing, dishwashing, vegetable preparation, silver and metal polishing, just to mention a few. The stress and strain you can avoid by sitting for these jobs will pay handsomely in a prettier face and disposition when evening rolls around.

But to gain this goal, you must be fussy about your work chairs. You must select them to fit your figure requirements—try them for size!

Does the Chair Fit?

To test the suitability of your present work chair, sit in it this way: Slide your hips back until they touch the back of the chair, and place both feet on the floor.

Now notice whether the backs of your knees are being hard pressed by the front of the seat. If they are, the chair seat is too long for your build. The pressure will slow up your circulation to the point where you will have to slide forward to relieve the constriction in your legs. Then, with no support for you back, you'll slump into poor posture, which is a guaranteed fatigue maker. That's not the chair for you!

If the depth of the seat is adequate, note next whether your feet are resting comfortably on the floor so that your thighs are parallel to it. You need to have the legs cut down if the chair is too high for you. Or, if you require an elevated chair to work comfortably at a high sink, shelf or table, have a platform attached to the legs at the height to which your feet reach with ease.

For Restful Support

Very tall women, of course, have the reverse problem. They are forced to place their feet in an ungainly and tiring sprawl if the chair is too low. Their best solution is a new chair that is right for both figure height and work surfaces.

The third check of how well your chair fits you is made in two areas of the back: Your chair must touch you across the small of the back and between your shoulder blades.

Last and most important, no chair is better than the use you make of it. Sit erect to do your tasks, hold your back straight, keep your abdomen in and your shoulders relaxed. You'll look and feel like a million when you hear the key in lock just before dinner!

Ordinary Western Europeans Have Desperate Time Making Ends Meet

By JOHN RODERICK

LONDON — (AP) — The ordinary Joes and Janes of Western Europe, soon to be asked to dig deep into their pockets to pay for more and bigger guns, are having a desperate time making ends meet.

All over non-Communist Europe, the reports are the same: Soaring commodity prices and less money than before to meet them.

Thus, Western Europeans find themselves in the same boat with the Americans, who have been sending funds and goods to Europe for many kinds of aid almost since the war. If it were not for Marshall Plan aid, Truman Plan aid to Greece and Turkey and arms aid under the military assistance program over the last few years Europeans might be feeling the pinch even more than they are.

Only in the controlled economies of Communist Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland and Albania is the trend apparently in the other direction.

With billions of dollars needed to build up defenses against Communism, the West's leaders are confronted with a vexing problem:

How can the rising cost of living be checked in time?

Most European nations are turning to more and more controls in a desperate attempt to stay the worsening economic crisis.

They are thus, paradoxically, forced to adopt temporarily forms of state interference in labor and industry which communist nations already have on a permanent basis

Even in Socialist Britain, where controls are comparatively familiar, the man in the street is struggling to cope with rising prices. Rocky as the road now is, Britons have been given even more disconcerting news. They are due for the big blow in retail price increases sometime soon when wholesale hikes now underway are put into effect.

To this burden will be added more and bigger taxes to float the defense program.

In Britain, as elsewhere in Western Europe, these developments have been accompanied by demands for higher wages. Even the government-dominated Trades Union Congress, which controls most of Britain's workers, was unable to stifle the hue and cry which recently went up on that score.

Its rank and file voted to overthrow a year-old agreement to keep all wages frozen.

With Communists active in most countries on the continent, especially so in France, Italy and Belgium, what this wage rebellion may mean can be spelled out in one word—strikes.

Unless western governments are able to bring wages and living costs nearer together, the prospect of work stoppages which could paralyze vital defense production is a real one.

And, while Western Europe's factories grind to a halt, the industries of Communist nations — where strikes are illegal—are sure to keep humming.

What is the reason for the present startling upswing in commodity prices? Most sources agree that the primary one is the Korean war and the dislocations it produced.

Though the shock of ballooning prices was universal throughout Western Europe, its effect was not uniform.

In France, for example, a 15 per cent jump in wages throughout 1950 cushioned the blow. As a result, there has been little pressure for wage increases since the government knocked the ceiling off wages last February.

Though prices in some Communist countries are undeniably high—travelers to the recent peace congress at Warsaw reported astronomical charges for food and some services—reports indicate that there is no grave cost of living crisis.

In Czechoslovakia, the general trend of consumer prices is downward. Meat has dropped an average of 43 per cent, sugar 12, and butter nine during 1950.

Trucks' Salary Cut 25 Per Cent

DETROIT, Jan. 22 (AP)—Fireballer Virgil Trucks took a 25 per cent salary cut today in signing his 1951 contract to pitch for the Detroit Tigers.

Trucks balked last week at taking the maximum cut allowed by baseball law and said he wouldn't do it, but Tiger General Manager Billy Evans said Virgil inked the original contract after a conference today.

He made $30,000 last year. The new contract cuts him to $22,500.

Trucks, bothered by a sore arm all season, won only three games for Detroit last year. He lost one.

In 1949 Trucks won 19 and lost 11.

SPORT SLANTS

Why Whistle Is Blown • • • League Heads Pleased • • • Matty's Average Is 15 • • • Schools Meet 31st Time

By C. V. BURNS

Arthur G. Ramey of the Allegany County Board of Education ran across an amusing sports article the other day and he mailed it to the writer for publication, figuring it would get many a chuckle out of our readers.

The item entitled "The Basketball Official," appeared in Fred Russell's sports column in the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner and quotes an account written by Harry Kiehn, editor of the Lamberton (Minn.) News after a conversation with a gentleman who had just seen his first basketball game.

"I didn't have the opportunity to play basketball when I was a kid, so I don't know much about the game. But the other night I bought a ticket and went.

"Well, a bunch of boys came out and two men with shirts like a zebra came out with them. They stood and talked in the center of the floor and then the zebra shirt guy gave them a ball and all the boys dashed to one end of the hall and tried to throw the ball in a contraption that looked like a landing net.

"They finally got it in all right, but it fell right through, so they dashed to the other end of the hall, and they couldn't make the ball stay in that landing net either. So they kept running from one end to the other, and the guy in the zebra shirt would run after them.

"When he couldn't keep up with them, he'd blow a whistle and the boys would wait for him to catch up. Then one boy would hold up his hand like I used to when I knew the answers. Mr. Zebra Shirt would point to the ceiling and the boys would start running again.

"When the boys left the floor I figured everything was over. Nobody told me that was half a game, otherwise I wouldn't have walked out."

Mr. Russell made only one comment:

"Now there's an angle I have overlooked . . . when the official couldn't keep up with the players he'd blow a whistle."

Officers of the Interstate Baseball League — John J. Long, Frank J. Davis and Roy Clites — are pleased with the 1950 financial report and stress that it shows the circuit is making definite progress.

The 7-team loop started the year with a bank balance of 582.37. Receipts for 1950 were 604.88 and disbursements 740.04, leaving a balance of $447.21 for 1951.

Two all-star games at Hyndman and Moorefield netted the league $107.65 and the playoffs brought in $117.94.

Every club showed a balance at the close of the season — totaling $328.55.

Five of the 1950 clubs are expected to be back for this year's campaign. It is hoped that a 6th club joins the race.

Harry J. Barton, Pinto dairyman and sportsman, reports that Jonathan Longfellow of Salisbury has been appointed to fill out the unexpired term of chairman of the State Department of Game and Inland Fish. He replaces A. Gordon Fleet of Annapolis, resigned.

The annual meeting and election of the commission is set for July when the term of Barton, who replaced Fulcher P. Smith, resigned, in 1949, expires.

There's no pay connected with the job of fish and game commissioner, therefore no foot race to Annapolis to get such jobs.

Barton often has remarked that the work is "right up his alley" even though it's expensive to hold such a post.

Dr. Middlecoff Wins Lakewood Open Golf Meet

Gets 13-Under Par 271 And Cops $2,000 Prize

LONG BEACH, Calif., Jan. 22 (AP)—Former U. S. open king Cary Middlecoff, firing a 13 under par total of 271 for the 72 hole distance, captured the $10,000 Lakewood Park Open Golf Tournament today.

The former dentist from Memphis, extracting his fourth straight sub par round from the easy Lakewood Country Club course, wound up his four day stint with a sparkling 68, three strokes under par 35-36—71 for the 6,235 yard lake-dotted layout. His previous tours had brought scores of 70-64-69.

Middlecoff, winning his first tournament in California in four years of trying out here, broke a three way deadlock with another exnational champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, and dark horse Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N. C., soon after play began today.

From then on the personable Southerner was never headed and the ultimate surprise actually came in the collapse of such a powerful challenger as Mangrum and the decline of the previously stubborn Boros.

Mangrum slipped to a 75 for a 278 total, and Boros took a 73 for 276. They started out with Middlecoff at 203.

The surprise runner up to Middlecoff and his $2,000 victory proved to be Manuel De La Toree of Milwaukee, whose 70-67-70-67 rounds gave him a total of 274 and $1,400 second place money.

Tied at third were Henry Ransom with a 67; Jimmy Thomson, the blond belter from New York and California, with a 66, young Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla., 69, and Jimmy Clark, Laguna Beach, Calif., whose 64 was low for the day.

Jim Ferrier of San Francisco whose remarkable 63 yesterday put him just one stroke back of the three leaders, took a 72 for 276. There he was tied with Boros, Ed Oliver of Seattle and Art Doering of Richmond, Va.

Middlecoff played in a threesome just ahead of one made up of Mangrum, Boros and Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., where another surprise took place. Heafner, who was just two strokes behind the leaders at the start of the day, blew up and quit the tournament.

At first he blamed the gallery for alleged thoughtlessness. Later he said he was also just sore at himself after going six strokes over par on the first six holes of the round.

Reckord Named Maryland Jockey Club President

Resignation Of Parr Accepted By Board

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22 (AP)—Henry A Parr, III, quit today as president of the Maryland Jockey Club and was immediately succeeded by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord.

Milton A. Reckord

It was a quick change for Reckord, who only nine days ago presided over a Havre de Grace stockholders meeting at which the owners decided to sell that horse racing plant.

Parr was rounding out his ninth year as president of the Jockey Club and has 14th as a director and treasurer.

He issued copies of his resignation, which noted improvements made at the club's Pimlico track during his directorship and pointed to the fact that the organization was $11,362 in the red when he became treasurer. Last November it reported an accumulated surplus of $1,722,000.

"In view of the foregoing circumstances," the resignation added, "I believe that the Maryland Jockey Club is in a good position for its future development and I therefore tender my resignation as president, treasurer, and director."

Also a member of the four-man voting trust which controls about 80 per cent of the Pimlico stock, Parr refused to say whether there had been any dissention between him and the board. He said the board voted unanimously to accept his resignation.

Janon Fisher, Jr., was elected treasurer.

The Jockey Club's holdings once included Pimlico, Laurel and Timonium race tracks. Last fall it sold Laurel and Timonium, explaining it could use the money to finance a rebuilding program at Pimlico.

But when the Havre de Grace management decided to sell out, the new Laurel owners and the Pimlico owners said they were ready to buy for $1,800,000.

Unbeaten WMI Quint To Seek 10th Win Here

Jackets Shoot For 9th PVC Win At Romney, AHS Is Host To Bruce

Three W.M.I. League games topped by the Fort Hill-Barton game here and five Potomac Valley Conference contests headed by the Moorefield-Romney tilt at the latter place comprise the major portion of tonight's scholastic basketball program in the tri-state area.

Fort Hill, boasting a 3-0 record in the W.M.I. League, puts a nine-game winnin streak on the line when it collides with Barton, which dropped a 48-46 thriller to AHS recently at Campobello. The Sentinels have never lost a basketball ame to Barton on the spacious Fort Hill floor and a Barton victory tonight would come as a stunning upset.

Bruce High invades Campobello tonight to play Allegany in a league game and eBall High tests Central of Lonaconing in Frostburg.

Romney Battles Jackets

Moorefield goes after its 9th straight P.V.C. win tonight at Romney but the Pioneers with Bob Petry and George Baird in top form could toss a monkey wrench into the Yellow Jackets' machinery.

Keyser High, still in the running in the P.V.C. race with a 6-1 record, entertains Parsons' Panthers tonight in Keyser. It was announced yesterday that this game is set for Parsons but this is incorrect and Keyser will be the host.

Other conference games find Elk Garden at Davis, Petersburg at Franklin and Mathias at Capon Bridge.

Fort Ashby High tests the Alumni and Wardensville plays a non-conference game with the Mountaineers of Paw Paw High at Wardensville.

Carver Invades Berlin

Carver High School journeys to Berlin, Pa., to test Berlin High while Douglas High of Winchester, Va., meets Howard High's quint at Piedmont, W. Va.

Ball Expected To Be Retained

Redskins' Mentor Will Get New Aides

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP)—A well-informed source said today that Herman Ball would be retained on a one year basis as head coach of the Washington Redskins of the National Professional Football League.

There has been wide speculation in coaching circles that Ball would be replaced. The Redkins finished last in the American Conference division of the NFL, winning three and losing nine games in 1950.

After canvassing the field, George Marshall, president of the Redskins, was reported to have decided to retain Ball, but give him two new assistants. One of these is reported to be Dick Todd, now backfield coach at Texas A. and M.

Five prominent coaches were under consideration at one time or another for the Redskin job. They are Bo McMillin, formerly head coach of the Detroit Lions; Paul Bryant, head coach at the University of Kentucky; Wally Butts, Georgia; Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech; and Henry Franka, Tulane.

Deluge Scores By Ten Lengths, Returns $23.50

The Poet, 7-1 Shot, Wins Hialeah 7th

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22 (AP)—C. B. Bohn's Deluge and Maine Chance Farm's The Poet, both outsiders, launched their 1951 debuts auspiciously at Hialeah Park today, accounting for the two sections of the Allapattah Purse.

Deluge, inactive since Nov. 23 at Bowie, won the first half of the race by 10 lengths in the sensational time of 1:24 3/5 on a dead track, while the Poet charged home first by a length in the other division. Both are candidates for the $50,000 Widener Handicap, Feb. 24. This was the Poet's first outing since Oct. 17 at Jamaica.

From a time standpoint Deluge's effort was the more impressive, since he covered the seven furlongs in two full seconds faster than The Poet. He was ridden by Frankie Bone, fourth leading jockey of 1950, and paid $23.50, $9.60 and $5.50. The Poet, handled by William McKinley Cook, paid $16.70, $7.60 and $5.30.

Deluge ran as if much the best of his field, widening out in the stretch from Mrs. Frankel's Full Measure, the favorite, J. A. Pallante's Larry A was third, a nose before Mill River Stable's Ode, a two-time winner at Tropical Park.

The Poet was the first starter and first winner of the meeting for Maine Chance Farm, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Graham. He was also the first horse saddled by Trainer Monte Parke, for the noted sportswoman.

The Monday card, favored by warm weather, was witnessed by a crowd of 15,762.

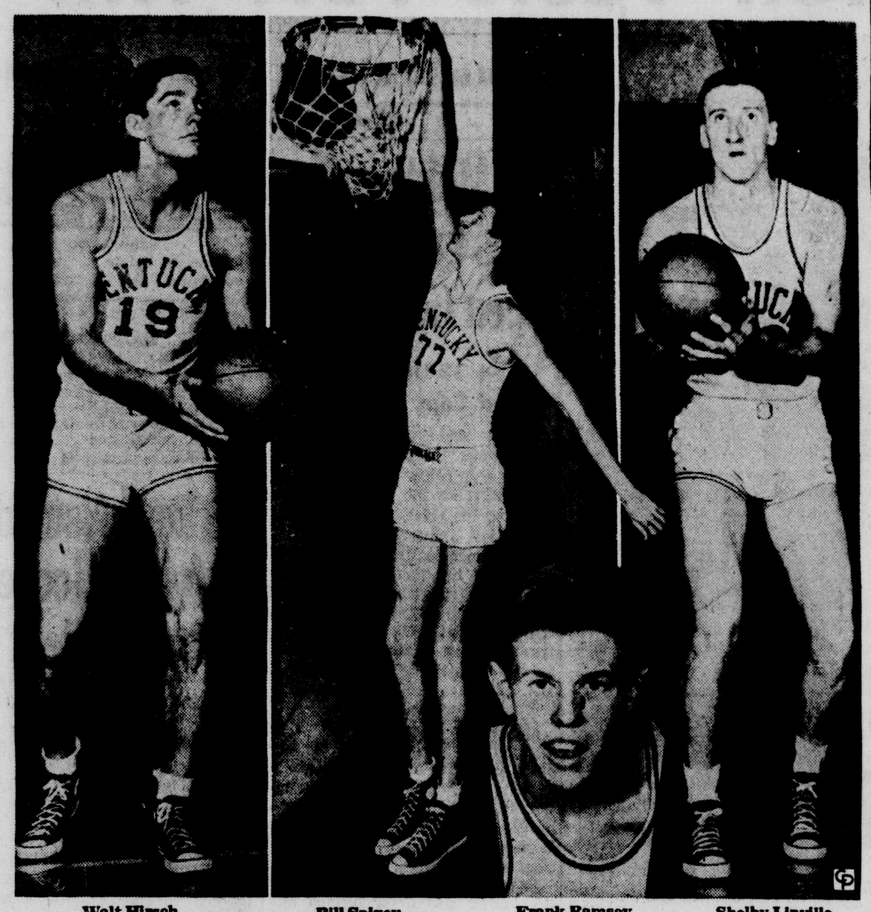

The first disqualification of Hialeah's meeting, now five days old, came when the stewards set back Tamarack Stable's 12 to 1 shot Tiger Scout and placed him last in the fourth event.

Tiger Scout, ridden by Delmar Jones, was penalized for bothering both Texas Reward and Hambone during the running of the seven furlong event.

Texas Reward, ridden by A. Montiero, was moved up first, Ada C. and Fleeterthan, the favorite, automatically advanced to third, after the disqualification.

Ephraim (Red) Rocha, 6-foot 9-inch enter of the Baltimore Bullets in the N. B. A., was born in Hilo, Hawaii.

Six New Pilots Manage In AA

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The American Association will start its 1951 season with more new faces in managerial spots than in any previous year in its 50 year history.

Only at Minneapolis, where Tommy Heath will again lead his defending champs, and at St. Paul, where Clay Hopper mentors the Saints, will there be no change.

Here's how the rest of the league shapes up in the pilot department. Most of the names are familiar to baseball fans.

George Selkirk, one-time Yankee star, replaces Joe Kuhel, former Washington pilot, in Kansas City. Pinky Higgins succeeds Mike Ryba at Louisville. Ryba moves to the St. Louis Cards as a coach. Jack Tighe takes over at Toledo for Eddie Mayo who becomes a Red Sox coach. Don Gutteridge takes the reins at Indianapolis as Al Lopez assumes charge of the Cleveland Indians. Charlie Grimm is the new Milwaukee pilot, following Bob Coleman. Rollie Hemsley has departed from Columbus but as yet his successor has not been announced.

Forestry Personnel Of Maryland To Attend Training Meet Here

The winter training meeting for personnel of the Maryland State Department of Forests and Parks of the district comprising Allegany, Garrett, Washington and Frederick counties will be held at the Court House here Friday.

William H. Johnson, district forester, said that about 25 men will attend the session. The meeting has been set tentatively for the auxiliary court room.

Administrative procedures will be studied and methods of making reports for the department will feature the training meeting.

H. C. Buckingham, state forester, and A. R. Bond, assistant forester, will conduct part of the program.

The spring forest fire control program will be discussed, and it is expected that plans for the formation of forest fire fighting service unit under the civil defense program will be outlined.

New techniques in forest fire fighting and other matters pertaining to the department's operation will be discussed.

Johnson said today that during 1950 there were 70 forest fires in the four-county district. A total of 69½ acres was burned over.

This was an increase over the number of fires in 1949, one of the best years the department experienced in recent years. In 1949 there were 40 forest fires in the district and 52 acres were burned over.

During the spring of 1950 there were a large number of fires in the district due to the unprecedented drought. Fire danger readings were the highest in seven years.

Allegany county led in fires last year with 23 conflagrations. Washington county had 20 blazes, Garrett county eight fires and Frederick county 19 woodland fires.

During 1949 there were only three fires in Washington county and 10 in Frederick county.

The largest single fire last year in the district was a blaze in the Warrior Mountain section which burned over 20 acres.

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)—

EXERPT FROM a news story Korea: "Gen. MacArthur then revealed that he had appealed to the United Nations to decide what to do about the Chinese Communists."

The U. S. delegation went right to work to get Gen. MacArthur his answer right away. He ought to have it in a couple of months.

This assumes, of course, that the Security Council and the 60-nation Political and Security Committee gives the matter undivided attention.

The United States delegation to U. N. sought forlornly for several weeks to line up important co-sponsors of its resolution branding Communist China an aggressor. We felt it would be easy after Peiping scornfully rejected the overtures of a U.N. cease-fire committee. But, if anything, the search for a co-sponsor thereafter became even more disheartening.

No one at U.N. contests the fact that countless tens of thousands of Red Chinese, equipped by Russia, have been pushing back the U.N. forces since last November. All the people of the world, except those living in captive areas where news is a tool of the government, know that the Red Chinese are the aggressors.

Yet it has taken this long for even our own delegation — representatives of a nation that has suffered 50,000 casualties in Korea—to get around to the formal indignation stage. We had to express that indignation on our own. No important power would go along with us.

Worse, we pussy-footed in the language of the resolution we did present. England and France asked us not to sound too realistic and we bowed to them. In time, U. N. may slap Red China on the wrist with a chiding note.

But if the U.N. runs true to form, it will take a very long time to start the machinery of U.N.'s 14-nation Collective Measures Committee —which could order Red China cut off from the world economically, and recommended excommunication from U.N. for any member nation that tried to deal with her under the counter.

Here's what will happen to the watered-down American resolution as it works its way through the U.N. hopper. First, it will have to find a place on the agenda of the political and Security Committee. There will be many speeches for and against placing it there, as written, (and nothing of substance, U.N. type, can be done until the committee is officially "seized" of the matter, as the expression goes.)

Then a half a dozen nations will submit amendments to the resolution, and submit them in long speeches. Each suggested amendment will stimulate further debate, with both sides and countries which prefer to take no side whatever, engaged in perhaps weeks of wrangling.

By spring, let us say, it will be time to vote on the amended resolution, not as a whole but beginning with the latest or last of its amendments. Even then the legality of the resolution as a whole, of any one of its amendments, could be contested by one of its opponents. If Russia did the contesting, then Poland, Byelorussia, Czechoslovakia and the other stooges would want to add something to the basic line of objection, and that would take more time.

In the meantime there will be several counter remedies suggested as a proper way of ending the war in Korea. India will warn U.N. repeatedly, as the months drag on, not to take "hasty action." There will be a call for a Big Five conference, with Red China seated on the panel instead of Natolnalist China.

England, knowing that Hong Kong will stay British as long as the Red Chinese are involved in Korea, will urge caution. France, whose position in Indochina would collapse if the Chinese Reds could concentrate upon it, will string along with that.

Let is assume, however, that the American-resolution finally is put to a vote, en toto, and we line up enough votes to carry the day. The "ultimatum" is rushed to Peiping. Then Peiping says "we are not the aggressors; you are." So the whole thing fritters off into nothingness.

In the meantime, MacArthur's men, with a gun at their heads, get no answer, though they are in desperate need of one every minute of every windblown speech and parliamentary maneuver.

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Do marital woes make problem children?

Answer: Yes, says Violet R. Shapiro of the Jewish Family Service, New York. Where parents are at odds with each other, there is little use in trying to help them set up healthier relations with their children, or trying to solve the children's problems. A mother who cannot get on with her husband, for example, will rarely be able to give her children the devotion and attention they need. If a problem child comes from a home that is a battleground, restoring peace there is more vital than correcting the child's misbehavior.

Can pain be "imaginary"?

Answer: No. Pain is a state of mind (you cannot feel it if you are unconscious) and as such is real whether it has any physical basis or not. If a person says he feels pain, there are three possibilities to think of: (1) that for emotional reasons he is interpreting as painful a sensation which would normally be painless; (2) that anxiety or guilt is making him exaggerate the distress caused by some minor physical disturbance; or (3) that the pain has an organic basis. Treatment will depend on which of these is the case.

Do "secure" people like to argue?

Answer: I do not believe so. It is normal for active-minded adolescents to delight in arguing about everything under the sun, but this is because they are as yet uncertain of their intellectual capacity and of their convictions. But the older person who insists on taking the opposing side of any proposition just "to start an argument" is apt to be one whose insecurity about his own beliefs finds consolation in upsetting other people's. Really secure people try to see what truth there may be in the other fellow's viewpoint.

Profit Taking Clips Stock Prices In Slow Session

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP)—Profit taking clipped stock prices today in the slowest trading session of the new year.

Losses for the bulk of the list ranged from a few cents to around $2 a share. In a few cases, losses were more substantial. Most gains were minor.

Of the 1,206 individual stocks traded, 788 went down, while only 228 were higher. Seventy stocks, however, reached new 1950-51 highs, with only one item, American Bank Note preferred, at a new low.

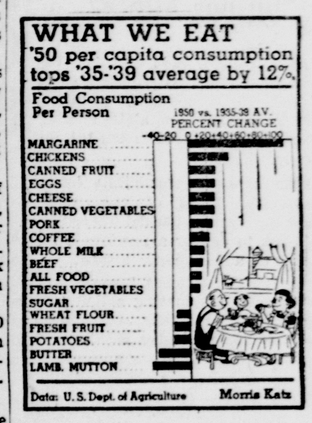

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 90 cents at $92, well out of range of the new 20-year high of $93.30 established last week. The industrial segment of the index was off $1.40, while rails were down 70 cents and utilities 30 cents.

Volume dwindled to 2,570,000 shares, lowest for a full session since 2,410,000 shares were exchnged Dec. 15. Last Friday business amounted to 3,160,000 shares.

Among the bigger losers were Youngstown Sheet, off 1⅛ at 54⅞; U. S. Steel ⅝ at 45⅛; Goodyear 1⅜ at 71; B. F. Goodrich (new) 1¾ at 43½; Distillers Corp.—Seagrams 1 at 27¾; Zenith Radio 1 at 57⅜; Kennecott Copper 1½ at 76¼; Homestake Mining 1½ at 40¼; American Cyanamid 1 at 78¼; American Telephone ⅝ at 153½; Eastman Kodak at 45½; Southern Railway 1 at 56; Ctandard Oil (N. J.) 2⅝ at 95, and U. S. Gypsum 1¼ at 106½.

Baldwin Lima Hamilton, one of the low priced issued in demand, was the most active stock of the day and closed ¼ higher at 15 on turnover of 67,600 shares. Pepsi-Cola was down ⅜ at 11¾ on volume of 34,000, and St. Regis Paper lost ⅛ at 13⅜ on transfer of 32,500 shares.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOCATION A BIG FACTOR

SUCCESSFUL redoubles of high contracts, when they have been doubled by sound players, are usually based on the location of certain cards or extreme peculiarities of distribution. Generally the doubler of a slam contract—unless he is definitely asking for a particular lead with it—considers that whatever he holds in defensive values is located where his assets can obtain the greatest effect. If the ultimate declarer or his partner "sits over" the cards on which the double probably is based, with the high cards that can cancel out the defenders' honors, he has the ideal opportunity.

North made that contract as nicely as you please. East, not knowing just what lead was requested by West's double, if any, laid down his club A. And that was the only trick the defenders took. The second club was won in dummy, East being disappointed when West failed to ruff it. Later on North got three spade tricks by finessing, ruffed out one spade and one club and made his contract easily, guided partly by West's double.

The redouble was not made in a hurry. North reflected on the bidding and recalled several significant facts about it. First, South had opened the bidding, so must have a bunch of kings and undoubtedly one of the two missing aces. Second, South had shown a much better than minimum hand when, after North had bid only once, his 2-Diamonds, the next bid was not just 2-No Trumps, but a whole level higher, 3-No Trumps, after East had bid 3-Clubs. This seemed to indicate that South could take at least the second club trick.

In addition to all this, North's top cards were well located, the diamond honors having a perfect tenace over a possible king and the spade honors furnishing a sure finesse against the doubling West if South had either the king or queen, which his No Trump call indicated. In addition, West probably thought he had useful heart honors, whereas North had a singleton which rendered them null and void. It was a splendid positional redouble, and paid well.

Not seeing the opponents' hands, would you favor a grand slam contract for North on this deal? If so, how would you recommend bidding it?

Kimble Defends Employment Of Family In State Positions

Terms Recent Story "Vicious Attack"

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 22 (AP)—Senator Kimble (R-Allegany) defended in a shouting 44-minute speech tonight the state employment of several members of his family.

The minority republican leader paced the front of the senate chamber with packed spectator galleries to deliver a passionate rebuttal to a newspaper article.

"A most maliciously inspired and untrue and insinuating article," he called it. The article appeared in the Baltimore Sunday Sun.

Kimble sent the senate sergeant-at-arms to bring the writer, Thomas O'Neill, to the chamber so "I can look him in the eye." The sergeant did not find O'Neill who sat in the gallery during Kimble's speecn.

The article listed the employment of Kimble's son as a clerk to his father at $1,080, his wife as deputy commissioner of the Department of Labor at $6,000, his stepson as administrative assistant in the Department of Labor at $3,608, and the wife of his stepson as secretary to Kimble at $900. The stepson's wife is on leave from the Department of Employment Security, a $2,137 post.

Senator Kimble first defended each individually and then generally by stating:

"Each member of my family who has been publicized have secured their positions based on their ability in competition with their fellow citizens. And they hold them because they are competent.

"Our famly has nothing to be ashamed of. They are proud of the fact they do render service to the State of Maryland."

Hits Insinuations

Kimble said the newspaper writer had "attempted to insinuate that the senator from Allegany County has secured positions with the state for members of his family.

"He is a liar."

Besides stating he would prove it "with facts," the 47-year-old senator offered to "do it physically after the senate is recessed."

Senator Kimble offered as "proof" of influence on his part that his wife had been a state "career employe" since 1917, 19 years before he met her, and that his stepson obtained his state job by Competitive examination.

At the time his stepdaughter-in-law took her state examination, she was not married to his stepson, he related. As for his own son, for whom the legislative job was created just last week, Senator Kimble said he employed him as "bill analyst" because of his efficiency.

As a matter of fact, the senator declared, one relatives on the state payroll had been overlooked. "My son has a wife and she is a schoolteacher."

Submits Telegram

Senator Kimble also read telegrams from former Governors William Preston Lane, Jr., and Herbert R. O'Conor stating in substance that at no time in their terms did he "seek preferment for yourself or your family."

The senator also referred to what he called an insinuation that "I was not interested in unemployment in the county I represent" by not hiring residents from there instead of relatives.

He claimed there is no efficient or competent secretarial help available in Allegany County for employment in Annapolis and that "not one secretary-stenographer" is registered there with the employment office.

Senator Kimble said the story on state employment of his relatives was one of three "maliciously" inspired since Jan. 12. That was, he explained, when "I said I was going to support the recommendations of the Case Commission" and efforts to "penalize those who violate Maryland overweight truck laws."

The Case Commission made recommendations on taxes which include a new levy on heavy trucks.

"I do not say that is the cause" of the articles, Kimble declared. "I am merely offering it as one point of evidence that speaks for itself."

Kimble said the other stories involved approval by the Republicans of the appointment or Arthur H. Brice as chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission and a report that Kimble's position as minority leader was endangered as a result.

Buchholtz Asks Change In City Election Dates

Would Give Time To Plan Budget

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz last night suggested that a bill providing for filing fees in city elections be amended to change the dates of the election to conform with the prevailing fiscal year.

His suggestion, which was tabled for one week, would ask the County Delegation to incorporate the date changes in the bill it introduced in the House last Wednesday.

The bill calls for dropping the plan under which candidates for mayor and council here are nominated by petition and sets up filing fees of $25 for council and $40 for mayoral candidates.

The bill also requires candidates to have been residents of the city for at least five years.

Buchholtz asked that the primary be held on the first Tuesday in June and the general election on the third Tuesday, with the newly elected mayor and council taking office on the first Monday in July, unless that date falls on Independence Day.

The change in dates, he said, would give an administration six full weeks to prepare plans for the year's budget.

He pointed out that the effective date of the change would have to be left to the County Delegation, since the change would mean 27 month terms for the council affected.

Buchholtz was emphatic in stating that it was not his intention to secure the additional time for the incumbent Mayor and Council but to fit the terms of any administration into the present fiscal year system.

Area Farmers To Attend Meeting

Probably between 15 and 20 of Allegany county's principal farmers will attend the annual four-state Farmers' Meeting Friday in Hagerstown's Franklin Court Auditorium, according to County Agent R. F. McHenry, who himself will be on hand.

Among features of the day-long program will be a panel discussion of new farm machinery and a discussion of recent advances in design of existing farm machinery. Representatives from nine leading farm machinery manufacturers will comprise half of the farm machinery panel. The remainder will include two farmers each from Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Virginia. George Mullan, farm supervisor of the Potomac Edison Company, will act as panel chairman.

Maryland farmers on the committee planning the Friday program include William H. Johnson and Charles S. Harvey, Allegany county; Herman Stockslager and Fred Downey, Washington county. Among those from West Virginia are Neill Frye and George Brinker, Hampshire county; H. M. Kline and Fred Bosley Mineral county, and Boyd Keesecker and Ray Ambrose, Morgan county.

Dr. W. R. Bell, Department of Veterinary Science, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, will tell the assembled farmers of the latest developments in hog cholera and outbreaks of cholera in hogs that have been double-treated for the disease. Another afternoon speaker will be Dr. James D. Outhouse, Animal Husbandry Department, University of Maryland. "General Economy in Live Stock Feeding with Special Emphasis on the Animal Protein Factor in Feeding Hogs and Poultry." The animal protein factor is another means of speeding growth.

News In Brief

The Allegany Trades Council will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Trades Council Hall. Business will include the nomination and election of officers.

Kave, (left) president of the LaVale 49ers, sponsors of the newly formed Scout troop, makes the presentation of the charter while Stanley Daniels, scout neighborhood commissioner looks on. Willis V. # Bus Line Cited For Its Failure At Cooperation

Mrs. Roeder Notes Several Incidents

"Cooperation between the City f Cumberland and the Cumberland Transit Lines should be a two-way proposition."

That view was expressed last night by Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, as she told her associates and spectators at last night's council meeting of incidents yesterday which indicated the bus firm was not cooperating with the city.

Mrs. Roeder said that when she rode a bus downtown from her North End home about 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning she noticed that the bus detoured two blocks because drainage had damaged a section of street.

Although she got Street Department workmen busy and they had the street repaired by 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the bus still was detouring when she returned home about 4:30 o'clock. When she telephoned G. M. Davis, head of the Cumberland Transit Lines, at 4:30 o'clock to find out why the buses had not returned to their regular route, he told her that messages could not be sent to the drivers, she said.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz joined in the discussion by emphasizing that Mrs. Roeder should not be criticized at such times when the blame should be directed at the transit firm.

"There's a question in my mind as to whether the Cumberland Transit Lines might not be violating franchise rights by failure to resume its stipulated route as soon as the street repairs are made," Buchholtz asserted.

In his remarks Buchholtz also stressed that the city receives no revenue in taxes from the buses which operate over and provide considerable wear and tear to the streets.

Theological Seminaries Emphasized By Church

Sunday, January 28, will be observed as Theological Education Sunday in most Episcopal churches throughout the nation, Rev. H. M. Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, announced yesterday.

The presiding bishop, Right Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, each year appoints the last Sunday in January as a day for the members of the Episcopal Church to think particularly about the education of its future clergy.

Eleven seminaries throughout the country furnish speakers from students and faculty for churches which desire them on this Sunday. The Episcopal Seminary of Virginia in Alexandria has agreed to furnish one of its students to speak at Emmanuel Episcopal Church at the 11 o'clock service Sunday.

Keyser Man To Be Quizzed On Fake Huckster Charge

City Police last night were holding a Keyser, W. Va., man for questioning in connection with the fleecing of housewives in several sections of this city by a fake huckster.

Arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Louis Downey and held for the State's Attorney's Office was Alvin Whetzel, about 30, Keyser.

Police said the man was identified by several victims as the "huckster" who disappeared after collecting money for country sausage and hams.

They said victims described the method as this:

The man went to homes in North End, East Side and the Maryland Avenue sections.

If the man of the house was at home, the "huckster" asked for a three cent stamp.

When the housewife was alone, the man described the country sausage, ham and eggs and promised to return, after collecting money for the items.

He never came back.

Police acted quickly after reports of the victims came in, but were not successful immediately in locating the man or the supposed truck he used to deliver the goods.

Descriptions secured from the victims by Detective Thomas J. See led to the arrest, police said.

Housewives said they gave the man amounts varying from $2.55 to $5. In one case, he went to change a $5 bill and failed to deliver either the change or the ham and sausage.

New Air Raid Sirens Needed At Fire Houses

To fulfill Civil Defense needs the City of Cumberland will have to obtain air raid sirens for its fire stations to replace those given to county volunteer fire companies at the close of World War II.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long said at last night's council session that William G. Barger, LaVale, County Civil Defense director, recently reminded him that the city should get air raid sirens in developing Civil Defense.

Mayor Thomas S. Post suggested that the matter be referred to City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson, who is serving as Cumberland's Civil Defense leader.

Payments Given Approval By City Council

Various Actions Receive Approval

Several payments were authorized last night by Mayor Thomas S. Post and City Council at a brief session at City Hall.

Council approved renewal of Management Information Service at a cost of $100 for 1951 after Mayor Post said that he thought the expenditure worthwhile. This service will include six copies monthly of the journal, Public Management, and four copies of the municipal yearbook.

These publications are distributed by the International City Managers' Association, Chicago, Ill.

Approval also was given to the expenditure of $50 for a page advertisement in the front of the program for "The Ordering of Moses" which will be presented by an all-Negro opera group in the Allegany High School auditorium Sunday, February 25. A letter requesting the advertisement was submitted by William F. Jones, 136 Frederick Street, who is chairman of arrangements. Proceeds from the performance will be used to pay for uniforms for the drum and bugle corps of Fulton Myers Post, American Legion.

Mayor Post and City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery were directed by Council to execute a deed to Albert L. Schade and Edith J. Schade for sale of property on the east side of Valley Street upon payment of $600.

A report was submitted showing that daily average water consumption during the week ending January 21 was 12,617,000 gallons, compared with 10,863,000 gallons during the corresponding period of 1950.

Residents Want Area Ditch Filled

A petition signed by 36 Mapleside residents requesting that a drainage ditch be filled and that an alley be opened between Gleason Street and Utah Avenue was submitted at last night's City Council meeting and was referred to Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, for investigation.

Mrs. Catherine Longerbeam, 104 Gleason Street, acted as spokesman for a group of about 10 men and women who appeared at City Hall last night.

She requested that the drainage ditch (storm sewer) be filled in because a number of persons came there and dumped garbage, dead animals and other filth. In the summer months this would constitute quite a health menace, she added.

Police and Fire Commissioner offered the cooperation of his departments if needed to see that the dumping practice is stopped.

All petition signers lived either on Gleason Street or Utah Avenue.

Lible Resigns Fire Department Electrical Post

Twigg Transferred To Temporary Job

The Mayor and Council last night accepted the resignation of Edward F. Lible as electrician for the Cumberland Fire Department.

The order accepting his resignation, for reasons of health, placed the veteran fire fighter back on the pension lists as of January 16.

Lible said he had been advised by his physician that he should enter the hospital for the removal of a possible tumor.

Commissioner John J. Long, in moving for the acceptance of Lible's resignation, paid tribute to the work of the fireman who for so many years took care of the Fire Department's alarm system in addition to his duties as a fireman.

He expressed deep regret upon the loss of Lible's services.

For several months, Lible and Pipeman Richard Linthicum have been engaged in an extensive program of repairing and grounding the fire alarm system here.

Over half of the work has been accomplished. Work has been delayed recently, however, due to weather conditions.

James F. Twigg was transferred from his post as temporary secretary to the Smoke Abatement Engineer to clerk in the Water Department and Tax Office, effective January 15, at a monthly salary of 196.50. This is a temporary appointment pending a Civil Service Commission examination.

City's Balance Totals $746,027

A report submitted by City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson covering city receipts and expenditures for the fourth quarter of 1950 showed that the city's balance increased from $639,605.51 to $746,027.39 in the period between October 1 and December 31.

The report was received by City Council last night and was ordered published in accordance with legal requirements.

Receipts in the last three months of 1950 totaled $676,816.84, Gibson reported. During the same period the disbursements reached $570,-394.96.

The $746,027.39 balance at year's end, according to Gibson's figures, included $601,369.70 in the general fund, $124,318.70 in the water operating fund, $13,748.82 in the general improvement bond fund, $5,-923.96 in the 1931 sewer bond fund, $631.49 in the flood account and $34.72 in the paving bond fund.

Chest Officers To Be Named

Directors of the Cumberland Community Chest will meet January 30 at 7:30 p. m. to elect officers and members of the Executive Board.

From its members, the board will name a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, plus five directors to comprise the Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee meets each month and carries on the work of the Chest between full meetings of the Board, slated each three months.

Reports of Chest agencies for December will also be acted upon.

Narrows Property Sold

Charles L. Grash and B. Pauline Grash have transferred ownership of three adjacent lots and improvements on the northeast side of National Highway in the Narrows to Kenneth T. Hagen and Margery M. Hagen in an $11,500 transaction, according to a deed filed in the office of the clerk of circuit court yesterday.

Long Suggests Full Time City Magistrate

Plan Is Referred For Further Study

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long last night asked the Mayor and Council to consider the possibility of securing a full time magistrate for the City of Cumberland.

The suggestion was referred to City Solicitor W. Earle Cobey for study and further report.

Commissioner Long pointed out that the services of a full time magistrate would speed the judicial processes in the city.

It would make it possible for city authorities to secure warrants at any time and would save a considerable sum in upkeep at the city jail, he pointed out, through prompt hearings.

He said the plan would be more convenient for everyone as it would allow immediate trials in a majority of cases.

At present, the city pays $1,800 a year for the part time services of two trial magistrates, each of whom receive $75 a month from the city.

The commissioner said he believed the salary paid for part time services of the Cumberland trial magistrates would be sufficient to secure a competent city magistrate.

Hearings are scheduled at Police Court each morning at 9 a. m., with magistrates taking weekly turns at Police Court duty.

Rec Department Offers Aid In Dance Contest

The City Recreation Department will aid groups which wish to enter the Square Dance Festival planned by the Potomac Park Improvement Association for the benefit of the March of Dimes.

Edmund F. Hoey, city playground director, said practice schedules will be arranged for any playground or organized group which wishes to enter the contest.

The practice periods will enable contestants to learn the dance they wish to use in the contest. Arrangements will also be made for practices with the band which will provide music for the set.

Four couples are needed to form a set, the unit which will compete in the square dance fest slated February 1 in the State Armory.

Hoey said three sets have already begun practice for the event. They are composed of students from Potomac State School and Frostburg State Teachers College and one set each from Fort Hill and Allegany High School.

He said the department is eager to have many of the adult playground groups in the city enter sets in the competition.

Decision Made On Law Appeal

A decision on the appeal case of Officer Leo E. P. Law, of the Police Department, was reached last night by the Civil Service Commission.

H. Clifford Spiker, chairman, said the decision will be submitted formally to the Mayor and City Council today or tomorrow.

Law, suspended for seven days on a charge of sleeping on duty, appealed the disciplinary action to the three-man board which held a hearing January 12, but held its decision in abeyance.

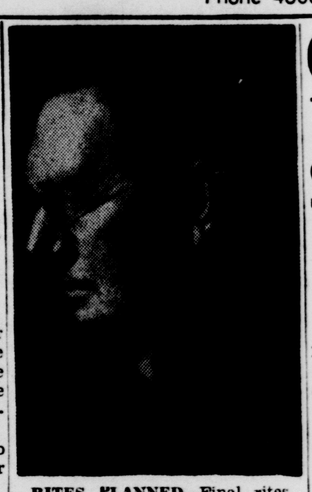

Plans were also made at last night's meeting in City Hall for an examination for the position of warehouse clerk in the street department.

The tests will be given February 15 at 7 p. m. in City Hall.

Louis T. Helman, 742 Gephart Drive received a temporary appointment to the post which pays $216 a month, the commission said.

Radio Club To Meet

The Mountain Radio Club will meet Friday at 7:30 p. m. in the Canada Hose House. Movies will be shown. All members and persons interested in short wave radio are invited to attend.

Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. The body will arrive at the church this evening and will lie in state until the funeral hour. Father Lawless served here from 1911 to 1934.

Six Children Deserted Near Frostburg

Had Been Living In House Foundation

A family of six destitute children, ranging in ages from 2 to 10 years and apparently deserted by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Binnix, have been turned over to authorities at the County Infirmary, state police reported last night.

The children, three boys and three girls, had been living in a foundation of a home in Consolidated Village near Frostburg, police said, and had apparently been left alone since about 5 p. m. Sunday. The incident was related to state police who turned it over to the county sheriff. Deputy George Harris, Frostburg, and Trooper Donald of Maryland State Police investigated.

Harris said the eldest child, a girl, told him her father had left their home to look for work Saturday and that her mother and another woman left Sunday to look for the father. Neither had returned when the authorities investigated the case around 6 o'clock yesterday evening.

The girl had been taking care of her brothers and sisters, Harris stated, and apparently cooked a meagre supper prior to the arrival of the authorities. Poorly fed and clothed, the children were immediately taken to the county infirmary where they were fed and put into warm beds for the night.

Police said the report had been turned over to them from a neighbor who called after observing the plight of the luckless children.

County authorities said last night they will continue the investigation and the children will appear before Juvenile Court today.

Eagles Will Hold District Meeting

Delegates from four Aeries of the Fraternal Order of Eagles in District No. 2 will meet Sunday at the home of Cumberland Aerie No. 245, President Floyd S. Elliott, of the local Aerie, announced yesterday.

The meeting will get underway at 2 p. m. and is one of a series of monthly meetings planned for District No. 2 organizations to promote better relationship between the aeries and to plan membership and delinquency drives, Francis T. Twigg, district director, said.

John L. Ferrin, Cumberland Aerie member and state membership board representative, will be principal speaker. Ferrin will represent the Eagles organization department. He is secretary and treasurer of the Maryland Membership Board.

Twigg will be in charge of the district session while Elliott will preside over the local meeting.

Aeries which will be represented at the Sunday meeting will be from Hagerstown, Cresaptown Cumberland and Frostburg.

14-Year-Old Boy Unhappy As Pet Parakeet Is Lost

Pete, the parakeet, has disappeared!

The Thomas A. Reinhart family of 11 South Lee Street is offering a reward for the return of their son Tommy's pet parakeet which flew from the house Saturday and has failed to return.

The little nine-month-old bird was a friend of all and especially got along fine with the family's dog, Flip, and with Tommy and Michael, the Reinhart boys.

Fourteen-year-old Tommy always liked to play with the small bird, often carrying it around with him on his shoulder. He even built a small ladder from his construction kit from the floor of the house to the bird's cage. Pete would climb up and down the ladder rather than fly from his cage which always had the door left open.

Having the run of the Reinhart household, Pete made friends easily. He would like anyone who was friendly with Flip as the parakeet and the small black and white dog were boon companions as so often happens in the strange world of animals. He and Tommy were great pals, too! Pete often ate at the family table and Tommy liked to feed him.

Saturday, it happened!

Tommy was playing with Pete, carrying the bird on his shoulder while Flip was romping around outdoors. Finally Tommy went to the door to call Flip and as he opened the door Pete flew off his shoulder and disappeared.

Although the Reinharts have two other parakeets, Bill and Mike, and some 200 tropical fish, Pete was the favorite. Tommy has been heartbroken since the little bird flew away and Michael, 4, also misses Pete.

Mrs. Reinhart said Pete was an intelligent bird and was learning to speak very well. She expressed the hope Pete had found someone who was friendly and went home with them. "He might have perched on some stranger's shoulder and was carried away," the mother said.

The Reinharts want Pete to come home and would appreciate any information about the little bird.

Governor Asked To Name Parkway Study Group

Funds Requested For Patapsco Park

The Board of Natural Resources yesterday asked Governor McKeldin to appoint a special commission to study the proposed Chesapeake and Canal Parkway.

The parkway would extend through Montgomery, Frederick, Washington and Allegany counties.

Plans for the proposed parkway approved by the Federal authorities call for the acquisition of some lands by the State of Maryland.

The board also voted to ask the state legislature for $1,000,000 to develop the Patapsco River Valley State Park.

Acting on a report of the State Planning Commission, the board requested the money be provided during the next two years and made avaibable to the Department of State Forests and Parks.

Specifically, it requested $800,000 to acquire the land needed for the project and $200,000 for preliminary development of the area.

Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the forestry department, said he had discussed the matter with Governor McKeldin, and the governor had indicated his support of the plan.

The board's first action was to elect Philip Winebrenner, an appointive member, acting chairman during the absence of Arthur H. Brice, who as appointed chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission automatically becomes chairman of the Board of Natural Resources.

However, Brice has not taken over his official duties yet. The fisheries commission was represented by Capt. Amos Creighton, acting commission head.

House bills introduced yesterday included:

HB98—by Tawney—to make failing to stop after an accident a felony and to set a mandatory punishment upon conviction of from 30 days to one year's imprisonment and a fine of from $50 to $1,000 (Judiciary)

HB103—by Wagner—to provide that ballistics tests must be made for all pistols and revolvers sold or transferred in Maryland and that the state police shall keep records of all such tests (Judiciary)

Truman Sets Up Materials Policy Group

Paley Heads Commission To Study Nation's Vast Problems Of Supply

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—President Truman today named a new materials policy commission to study the nation's vast supply problems in the years ahead—and keep the growing defense effort from throttling economic growth.

In doing so, Mr. Truman emphasized the long-range aspects of the materials problem as distinct from "immediate defense needs."

Appointing William S. Paley, board chairman of the Columbia Broadcasting System to head the group, Mr. Truman said:

"We cannot allow shortages of materials to jeopardize our national security nor to become a bottleneck to our economic expansion. By wise planning and determined action, we can meet our essential needs for military security, civilian welfare, and the continued emonomic growth of the United States."

Asking the group to make its report in six to nine months, Mr. Truman selected these men to serve with Paley:

Duties Differ From NSRB's

George Rufus Brown, Houston, Tex., Businessman; Eric Hodgins, author and editor of New Milford, Conn. Arthur H. Bunker, New York banker and president of the Climax Molybdenum Co.; and Edwards S. Mason, head of the Harvard University School of Economics.

Specifically the President asked the commission to study:

(1) The long-range requirements outlook; (2) The long-rang supply outlook; (3) the prospect for an estimated extent of shortages; (4) the "consistency and adequacy of existing government policies, plans and programs"; and (5) the "consistency and adequacy of private industry practices."

A spokesman for the National Security Resources Board told a reporter the Paley commission duties would differ from those of NSRB, which is the top level security policy body. He said it was his understanding the new group will deal with "long-range problems as contrasted with NSRB's role in the present defense program."

The President's action climaxed a series of fast moves today in the defense mobilization effort. Developments included:

Committee Okays Johnston

1. The Senate Banking Committee approved, 9 to 0, the appointment of Eric A. Johnston to head the Economic Stabilization Agency, succeeding Alan Valentine, fired by Mr. Truman last week. The Senate is expected to take up Johnston's nomination quickly.

2. Johnston told the senators he sees no reason for putting off wage-price controls longer but doesn't know exactly when they will be applied.

3. The National Production Authority clamped down on use of tungsten, a vital defense material, for non-essential purposes and announced the scarce mineral will be placed under allocation March 1.

4. The NPA also tightened its entire steel regulations by increasing the amount of steel output that must be used in orders carrying military priorities. It also cut down on the amount of steel products users may have on hand in their "minimum working inventory."

U.S. Could Cope With Invaders, Bradley Says

Retaliation Would Be Swift And Hard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley told Congress today there is "little real danger now" that enemy invasion forces could overrun the United States "so far as we can see."

The five-star General, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said that in the event of war, some enemy bombers might get through to attack American cities, but he declared:

"Our own program of defense against air attack, combined with the efforts of the Canadians, will provide such air defense for this country that complete disaster will not overtake us."

Bradley gave that firm estimate of the nation's readiness to cope with air or land assault in testimony before the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee. The group is studying a Defense Department bill to extend the draft to 18-year-olds and lengthen draft service from 21 to 27 months.

Bradley told the senators what is needed to strike back by air if attack comes. He explained:

"The initial retaliation against an enemy by strategic bombing will be provided if the air power and the necessary Army and Navy support to seize and hold the bases from which to operate are in our hands the moment an emergency arises.

"Our strategy does not include a retraction of all our military power to the continental limits of the North American continent when we are attacked."

Coupled with Bradley's testimony, two big veterans organizations endorsed the administration - backed measure in separate statements to the committee.

Erle Cocke, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, said it would be "unfair and unnecessary" to exempt the present crop of 18-year-olds from service.

Omar B. Ketchum, legislative director of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, told the committee that veterans should not be drafted back into service unless a major war develops.

Ketchum supported the drafting of 18-year-olds, but said non-veterans up to 35 years old should also be called.

Ticket For Parking Leads To $181 Loss

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 22 (AP)—It seemed like a harmless thing, that ticket Edward Brewer of Hagerstown got for double parking. But instead of $1, Brewer soon found $181 charged against him.

While in the City Hall paying the parking fine, his car rolled into another parked vehicle, causing $80 in damages.

When police investigated the accident they found Brewer was operating the car on a revoked license. For that the judge fined him $100.

"Ike" To Report To Legislators On Europe Tour

Senate Votes Today On Wherry Proposal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Administration leaders alerted Congress today for a report by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower on the outlook for reinforcing the defenses of Western Europe.

Senate Democratic Leader McFarland (Ariz) said Eisenhower is expected to report informally to the lawmakers Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, following his return from a European inspection tour in his capacity as supreme military commander for the Atlantic pact nations.

What Eisenhower says is expected to bear compelling influence on the attitude of Congress toward committing more U. S. troops to duty east of the Atlantic.

Big Question Is How Many

It is beginning to seem pretty sure that a majority of the 531 members of Congress will support the dispatch of additional American forces abroad to join the international army of the pact allies. The big question now appears to be how many, and under what conditions.

Even Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Republican policy leader who favors placing America's main dependence on absolute controls of the sea and the air, conceded over the weekend that he is willing to dispatch some U. S. troops to Europe.

He emphasized, however, that he will insist on some sort of a limit, set by Congress, on the number sent.

Vote On Wherry Proposal

The prospective Eisenhower report to members of Congress was disclosed by Democratic leaders from Capitol Hill after a conference with President Truman this morning. House Speaker Rayburn said the General would not address a formal joint session of Congress, but instead probably would speak informally to the members of House and Senate in the auditorium of the Library of Congress, at a session open to the press.

The Senate has agreed to vote tomorrow on what to do with a proposal by Sen. Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, to forbid sending any further U. S. troops to Europe until Congress acts on the policy involved.

Withdrawal-From-U. N. Resolution Introduced

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—A resolution to withdraw United States membership from the United Nations was introduced today by Rep. Rankin (D-Miss).

Rankin told the House the U. N. has been one of "the greatest failures in the history of all mankind."

Dulles Tokyo-Bound For Peace Pact Talks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP) — John Foster Dulles left for Tokyo today to speed the completion of a peace treaty with a bid to the Japanese to join the free world in meeting "new armed aggression."

Dulles voiced confidence that the Japanese people, "now that their militaristic ambitions have been buried," will become worthy members of the free world and share its "common purpose to surmount the dangers."

Accompanied by a group of State and Defense Department officials, Dulles plans a series of talks with Japanese leaders to clear the way for a final peace settlement before the end of the year. The group is due at Tokyo at 5 p. m. Wednesday (Japanese time).

At Least Three Russian-Made MIGs Downed

Flareup Reported In Ground Fighting

TOKYO, Tuesday, Jan. 23 (AP)—American jet pilots shot down at least three Russian-made jet planes over the Yalu River today in what may have been the largest air battle of the Korean war.

On the ground, Allied forces thrust searching steel fingers from seven to 20 miles into Communist territory across the width of Korea without finding reds in strength.

The Allies pulled out voluntarily from recaptured Wonju airfield in the central sector at dusk Monday. There was no enemy pressure. The U. N. troops had taken the field and surrounding hills Monday morning—the fifth time in six days they have moved in and out of the vital transport area.

The sharpest ground action Monday was a clash between Allied troops and a force of about 2,000 North Korean Reds southeast of Tanyang. That is 37 miles southeast of Wonju. The U. N. force killed 400 reds.

ROK Battalion Cut To Pieces

A battalion of South Korean engineers was cut to pieces by North Koreans in an ambush near Andong. Andong is 34 miles southeast of Tanyang and 50 miles North of Taegu, Northwest corner of last summer's Pusan beachhead.

Elements of two North Korean divisions—the Second and Tenth—have been identified in hills north of Andong. At full strength this would indicate 20,000 Reds were sifting southward.

U. S. Seventh Division elements and other Allied troops have been fighting in this barren east-central area against infiltrating Red Korean regulars and local guerillas.

In startling contrast, reinforced Allied hunter-killer teams on the Central and Western Korean fronts slammed back into Wonju airfield and three other key towns within 25 miles of Seoul without finding the fight they were seeking.

Other towns reentered and then again abandoned at nightfall included Osan, Ichon and Kumyangjang.

Reds Are Reluctant

The Chinese and Korean Reds, massed on those fronts for the past fortnight, showed marked reluctance—at least for the present—to give battle to the strong tank-infantry columns of the U. S. Eighth Army.

Around Yongwol, where only North Koreans have been reported, small but bitter struggles were reported. An intelligence officer there said, "the enemy is showing a desire to make and maintain contact."

AP Correspondent Tom Stone reported from the Yongwol front that "thousands of enemy troops already have slipped through the Allied lines and vanished in the barren country to the south."

Stone reported a missing American platoon (normally 40 to 50 men) evidently had been ambushed by a strong force of North Koreans and wiped out. There were no details, but a wounded survivor was found, and the platoon was 24 hours overdue in returning to its lines.

Discuss Reds' Cease-Fire Plan

India's Sir Benegal N. Rau (left) discusses Communist China's limited Korean cease-fire plan which he read to the U. N. Political Committee yesterday with Lester Pearson, chief Canadian U. N. delegate who was a member of the U. N. Committee which tried to arrange a cease-fire with Peiping.

Pearson Target Of New Charges By Sen. McCarthy

Printed Decoded "Secret" Message

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) told the Senate today that Columnist Drew Pearson had printed without change a decoded "secret" message received at the Pentagon from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

McCarthy gave a date which he said the message bore, and said it was stamped with a red-ink warning that it contained information affecting the security of the United States within the meaning of the espionage laws.

Pearson's Reaction

Pearson, reached at his home here, promptly retorted that McCarthy had opened the way for Moscow to break the U. S. secret code by disclosing the date of the message.

"Sen. McCarthy has now given the Russians a real chance to decipher our secret code because he now has given the date of one of the messages which I hitherto had kept secret," Pearson told a reporter.

"In other words, he has played directly into Moscow's hands. It is impossible to break down a code unless the other side knows a date. This I never gave."

Pearson said he also "paraphrased" the messages he published in his syndicated column.

"Not One Word" Changed

In his Senate speech, McCarthy contended that despite Pearson's previous statements to the contrary, "not one word or punctuation mark" in the message published by Pearson was "at variance with the decoded message."

McCarthy also gave a number which he said was on the message. He termed it a daily intelligence summary from Gen. MacArthur's Far East headquarters. He did not say when Pearson published it.

U. S. Asks Russia To Cease Showing 'Mutilated' Films

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22. (AP)—The State Department today demanded Russia stop showing two "mutilated versions" of American movies, saying they distort life in the United States.

The Russians are displaying the films in an effort to prove their favorite propaganda theme — that all Americans are money-grubbing, scheming villians, the department said.

The two Hollywood productions—"Mr. Deeds Goes To Town" and "Mr. Smith Goes To Washington"—are luring thousands of Russian movie fans to Moscow theaters even though they date back to 1936 and 1939.

As "Mr. Deeds" unreels in Moscow, it was stated, the story pictures the hero being sentenced to a mental hospital for wanting to give away his money to farm victims of the depression.

Actually, the movie left the hero in no such plight. He turns the tables on a crooked lawyer and a psychiatrist.

'Let-Japan-Help' Sponsor In U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The governor of the Bank of Japan, Hisato Ishimada, arrived in Washington today to discuss a "let-Japan-help" program with American government officials.

He said Japan now has reached a point where it can begin to assist the United Nations "to meet the threat in the Orient."

Ishimada is on a private mission. But because of his position, he undoubtedly represents the official Japanese government view. He said he would see Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of Defense Marshall and Secretary of the Treasury Snyder during his 10-day stay here.

He said, "Chinese intervention in Korea has entirely changed the situation in the Far East. This is a definite threat to Japan and in fact to all of East Asia. I am not here to ask for any more American assistance but to discuss ways and means that Japan can help.

"We think we are strong enough to stand on our own feet now."

Swiss Say Relief May Be In Sight

VIENNA, Austria, Jan. 22 (AP)—The death toll from an unprecedented series of avalanche disasters in Austria, Switzerland, Italy and France climbed to 198 tonight. New avalanches claimed more lives in Austria, but first word that relief may be in sight came from Switzerland.

A three-day snowfall over the alpine region abated and the Swiss federal institute for avalanche research said in a bulletin "with the setting of the snow and the drop in temperature tonight the avalanche danger had decreased sharply."

112 Dead In Austria

In Austria 112 have lost their lives; Switzerland 68; Italy, 15; France, three. New avalanches tonight in Styria in the British zone of Austria claimed additional victims, includng a two-year-old child.

Most of the casualties and destruction struck small communities in isolated valleys, but tonight a large city was threatened in a new way.

Innsbruck, capital of the Austrian Tyrol, suffered a serious drinking water shortage because slides of snow, ice and rock had destroyed the greater part of its waterworks. Innsbruck has a population of 100,000, not counting occupation troops.

45,000 Isolated In Austria

The troops of seven nations, including the United States and Britain, were offered to the authorities or were called out for rescue service and in restoring communications.

Austrian authorities said 45,000 persons in Austria's Alpine districts were cut off by snowdrifts and enormous masses of snow and debris. Among the isolated were 20,000 foreign tourists, 1,000 of them Americans.

Several thousand tourists at Swiss ski resorts also were cut off, but they were believed in no danger. However, some of the Austrian resorts were reported without light, power and telephones.

Two Soap Companies Hike Prices 6 Per Cent

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (INS)—Two of the nation's "big three" soap companies announced today a six per cent price boost on household soap.

Procter & Gamble and the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company said the price boost was necessitated by the rising costs of raw materials.

The third company, Lever Brothers, advised the Economic Stabilization Board last week that it intended to raise its prices but has not yet done so.

Arrangements Could Be Made At Conference

Austin Denounces Surprise Message

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 22 (AP)—Communist China agreed in a surprise message today that a cease-fire could be arranged by a seven-nation conference on Korea, Formosa and all Far East problems. The United States branded it a "transparent attempt to divide the free world" but lost a passionate move for a quick aggressor verdict against Peiping.

The U. N. Political Committee thus put off for 48 hours any possible action on an American resolution which calls Red China the aggressor in Korea and opens the way for eventual action against Red China. Warren R. Austin, United States scornfully told the committee that it was "extending 48 hours the time in which our sons will be shedding blood on the field of battle."

The vote was an unprecendented 27 to 23 in favor of a move by Sir Benegal N. Rau, India, to meet Wednesday after delegates have time to study Peiping's answer.

Day Of Tense Debate

The vote was taken immediately after Austin capped a day of tense debate with a demand for the committee to continue discussion tomorrow of the U. S. resolution.

The Latin American countries, Turkey, Greece and the Philippines alone stood with the United States against delay. Canada, Britain, France, the Scandinavian countries and others favored time for further examination of the Chinese Communist statement.

Using bitter words, Austin said the Chinese statement "is not even new. It is not a proposition. It is not addressed to the United Nations."

He said those who want to study the statement "will have plenty of time." He said while those who have not yet spoken or who want to speak again are talking, "the can be hugging this to their bossoms—they can extract from it what comfort that is in it for their purpose."

Communist China said a limited Korean cease-fire could be arranged at the first meeting of a proposed seven-nation conference on Korea, Formosa and other Far East problems.

Reds Answer Questions

The point was contained in a series of answers to questions addressed to Peiping by the government of India which had asked for clarification of Peiping's latest reply to U. N. cease-fire efforts. The statement was read to the U. N. Political Committee by Rau, who has been trying for weeks to hit upon a way to end the fighting in Korea and settle all Far East problems.

Some delegates in the Political Committee hailed the Peiping answers as an important concession. Others said they did not go far enough.

The Chinese Communists made the following major points:

1. A cease-fire for a limited time period can be agreed upon in the first meeting of the seven-nation conference and put into effect so that the negotiations may proceed further.

2. All conditions for concluding the war in Korea and for peace in East Asia must be discussed in connection with the political problems as follows:

A. Steps for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea.

B. Measures for the Korean people to settle their own afafirs.

C. Withdrawal of United States armed forces from Formosa and Formosa Straits in accordance with the Cairo and Potsdam declarations, both of which recognized Formosa as Chinese territory.

D. Other Far East problems, not specified in this statement.

Finally, Peiping said that the definite "affirmation of the legitimate status of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations must be insured."

Probe Of Princess Anne Building Mystery Takes Assembly Spotlight

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 22 (AP)—A Senate investigating committee hoped to clear up tonight the building mystery of Princess Anne.

A five-member group headed by Sen. Redden (D-Caroline) scheduled a conference with Charles E. Brohawn, Cambridge contractor who estimates he completed $30,000 worth of construction without a contract on a new agricultural building at the University of Maryland's College for Negroes.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, also was asked to appear, as were John B. Funk, former state engineer, and Wilson Booth, architect for the building.

Delegate Whitworth (R-Allegany) said he also wants to appear before the committee.

He offered to present the probers with copies of monthly reports from the Department of Public Improvements which showed work began in November on the projected $271,000 agricultural building.

The Board of Public Works had that information available when it turned down all bids, including Brohawn's, at a meeting on Jan. 5, Whitworth said.

The committee wants to find out who told Brohawn to proceed with construction at the Princess Anne institution. Neither the board nor any of the state agencies involved has accepted responsibility.

The committee's scheduled meeting with Brohawn overshadowed Senate and House sessions which opened the fourth week of General Assembly deliberations.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a measure to give state workers who failed to join the employes retirement system when it was set up in 1941 a chance to join now. They would have to pay into the system the amounts they would have contributed if they had been members for the last nine years.

The House brushed off its Monday night meeting in just 14 minutes.

Delegate Tawney (D-Balto 3rd) introduced a bill to make a jail sentence of from 30 days to a year, plus a heavy fine, mandatory for persons convicted of hit-and-run driving resulting in injury.

USAF To Open Sixth English Base In March

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP) — The United States Air Force will open its sixth big English base in March, the British Air Ministry announced today. The field is Sealand, Cheshire, 180 miles northwest of London.

Both the ministry and U. S. air headquarters declined details, but it was reported that up to 3,000 airmen will be sent to man the field as an aircraft engine maintenance center. It was used for this purpose by the Royal Air Force during World War II.

The maintenance personnel, together with 3,000 antiaircraft gunners expected here in the next few weeks, will increase U. S. Air Force strength in England to around 21,000 men.

Peruvian Plane Missing

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 22 (AP) — A Peruvian air force special military transport plane, with 15 persons aboard, has been missing since Saturday on a 475-mile flight to Arequipa, in southeastern Peru, it was disclosed today.

Situation On Wonju Front "Perfect," Ridgeway Says

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea, Jan. 22 (AP) — Lt. Gen. Matthew B Ridgway said today the United Nations situation on the central front is "perfect — and getting better all the time."

The U. S. Eighth Army commander landed at Wonju a few hours after Allied forces, for the fifth time in six days, retook the airstrip and a hill nearby. In enthusiastic mood, the General told a news conference:

"I've just learned that the company I commanded 25 years ago has retaken a strategic hill near the Wonju airstrip."

This was the first announcement that Hill 233 had been reoccupied. The hill and airstrip were wrested from a reinforced Communist platoon after a fight which began at 11:30 a. m. (9:30 a. m. EST, Sunday) and continued until 2:30 p. m.

Allied troops still held the area tonight. Eight Reds were killed in the fight. The others fled northward.

Rock Hurled By Blast Kills Child, Injures Grandmother

WOODBINE, Md., Jan. 22 (AP)—A chunk of rock from a road blasting job sailed through the air about 800 feet and crashed through two walls of a home today, killing a five-year-old girl and critically injuring her grandmother.

The girl, who was playing in the living room was Jeanette E. Davis, 5, daughter of Mrs. Naomi Davis. In critical condition in University Hospital in Baltimore is Mrs. Annie E. Davis, 54.

Dr. Jens W. Hentzen, Sykesville, said the victims must have been close together, since both were struck in the face. He said the boulder, weighing about 30 pounds, ripped through one outside wall, sailed through another wall and into the living room.

The doctor said both the child and Mrs. Davis suffered compound skull fractures of the skull.

Father Admits Hammer Slaying To Absolve Son

DETROIT, Jan. 22 (AP)—The father of a 30-year-old son who previously confessed the hammer-and-meat cleaver slaying of a Detroit man today absolved the son, police said, and confessed he killed Rocco Aronne, 48.

The father is Luigi Castelveter, 55, the son, Joseph Castelveter, 55, the son, Joseph Castelveter, 30.

Aronne's body, the head bashed and throat slit, was found in his burning car near Martin's Ferry, O., last week. Joseph, police said, still admits he drove the body to Ohio, spilled gasoline in the car and set it afire.

Previously, Joseph had accepted full responsibility, Detective Sgt. Glenn Coller said, claiming that Aronne had threatened members of his family and that he thought he was reaching for a gun when he hit him with a hammer Jan. 13.

Finding discrepancies in the son's story of the slaying, Detective Sgt. Arthur Anderson accused the father, who, he said, confessed.

"I met him with a hammer," Anderson quoted Luigi as saying. "He wanted to run my house. He made me mad. I hit him with a hammer. He yelled and then fell down. Then I hit him with an axe. I tied him up and put him in the coal bin."

Remington Says He Never Was Communist

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP)—William W. Remington told a federal court jury today that his college-day acquaintances used to call him a Communist, but that he never was one—then or later.

Taking the stand in his own defense at his perjury trial, the former Commerce Department economist said his ideas were "quite left" in his youth, and he belonged to so-called "radical groups" in college.

But he said he never condoned Communism. Nor approved the Marxist theories of "revolt and revolution."

The debonair, 33-year-old Remington, center of two-and-a-half years of investigation, is accused of falsely denying to a federal grand jury that he ever was a Communist.

Howser Fails To Win Suit Against Pearson

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—A federal court jury tonight ruled against Fred N. Howser, former California attorney general, in his $350,000 libel suit against Columnist Drew Pearson.

The jury decided unanimously that Pearson proved that the statement he made about Howser in a radio boardcast Sept. 12, 1948, was true.

Pearson said in the broadcast that he had an affidavit that Howser accepted a $1,200 bribe passed on to him by a Long Beach, Calif., gambler for protection.

Trolley Motorman Fined $100 And Costs

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22 (AP)—Jonas H. Geatty, 64-year-old Baltimore motorman, today was fined $100 and costs for operating a trolly car while under the influence of liquor or drugs.

Geatty was also assessed $10 and costs on a second charge of failing to use reasonable care and caution to avoid an accident.

He pleaded innocent to the charges but testified in court that shortly before the accident he took three aspirin tablets in a cola drink, and "had a little liquor put in."

Police testified that the trolley operated by Geatty Saturday crashed into the rear of an auto which in turn struck another car. Then, the court was told, the trolley careened across a street and smashed into a vehicle in a filling station.

Hound Keeps Vigil

WILLIAMSPORT, Ind., Jan. 22. (AP)—A lonely mongrel hound dog has maintained a 'round-the-clock vigil near here for two weeks, waiting for a party of hunters who left without him.

The hunters parked their car where a road crosses Pine Run Creek and entered a woods with the dog, nearby farmers said. After they left, the farmers saw the dog run from the woods and start a watch at the place where the car was parked.

AFTER NIGHT OF HORROR—Nurses Aide Kay Langdon comforts Miss Bess Christy in a Huntington W. Va., hospital after the 66-year-old woman was rescued from under a five-ton rock which crashed into her home and pinned her for more than eight hours. Miss Bess suffered a broken wrist, broken hip and possible other injuries.

Spinster Tells Of Her Night Of Horror Under Huge Rock Which Crashed Into Home

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Jan. 22 (AP)—A little, gray-haired old woman told in a hoarse whisper tonight of her night of horror after a five-ton boulder crashed from a hillside into her small home, pinning her for more than eight hours.

Miss Bess Christy, 66-year-old pensioner who lives alone in a one story, four-room house at Lesage, about 10 miles up-river from here, came through the ordeal with a broken wrist, broken hip and suffering from exposure, shock and possible other injuries.

She was rescued earlier today from underneath the hugh rock which rolled 300 feet down a steep hillside, made her frame home a shables and nearly crushed her to death.

More than 15 rescuers, state police, sheriff's deputies and others, wrestled with the boulder for more than two hours after a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad section crew found Miss Christy.

From her hospital bed, the heavy-set little woman told a newsman of the harrowing experience.

She was awakened from a sound sleep about 2 p. m., she judged, by "a crashin' in the bushes outside."

"I had the covers off and my feet on the floor," she said, when suddenly the whole house shook.

The back wall just caved in, Miss Christy said, and she threw her arms in front of her face.

The big boulder bent a wall board which snapped against her arms pinning them in an "x" in front of her face.

The bed collapsed and the next thing she knew she and the bed were flat on the floor. The big rock pressing down.

"It was restin' agin my hip," she said, "I couldn't move any."

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 22 (AP)—A Kearny man applied today for a divorce from his wife, claiming she deserted him 33 years ago—one month after their wedding on April 1, 1917.

"Why did you wait so long to apply for a divorce?" the court asked.

"I had hoped she would come back to me," replied Charles J. Sotile.

Divorce granted, the court ruled.

'Ike" Completes His Appraisal

FRANKFURT, Germany, Jan. 22 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower completed his military appraisal of Western Europe tonight after private talks with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, two generals and other German leaders.

The meetings were described by the Germans as friendly and communicative, so much so that Carlo Schmid, top parliamentarian of the Socialist Party, said afterwards:

"World War III will not take place."

Eisenhower flies tomorrow to France, with whose officials he already has conferred at great length. His two-day stay in France will see the completion of arrangements for setting up at least an interim headquarters in Paris or its environs. He expects to return to Europe in mid-February.

The supreme commander's talks with the Germans were at a reception in the home of U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy, at Bad Homburg, 10 miles from Frankfurt.

A cold and sore throat, which had obliged Eisenhower to cancel formal afternoon conferences with the three western high commissioners, appeared not to bother him.

Copies Of Md. Constitution For Students Proposed

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 22 (AP)—Senate Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert), wants every Maryland student to have a copy of the state constitution.

He drew up a resolution tonight that would give a copy to all children from the ninth grade up. College students would be included.

Goldstein said copies would cost 23.5 cents apiece. That would amount to a total of more than $25,300 for the initial distribution on the basis of a schools' department estimate that 106,000 youngsters are eligible.

Sen. Douglas Defends Acheson Position

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 22 (AP)—Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) tonight defended the foreign policy position of Secretary of State Dean Acheson, saying "since Korea he and Mr. Truman have been the strongest opponents aggressive Communism has had."

Douglas, in what he described as his first public defense of Acheson, declared that "Acheson's attitude is one of uncompromising opposition to aggression by the Chinese Reds and Communists elsewhere."

"His attitude has been misunderstood," the Senator added.

His remarks about Acheson came during a question and answer discussion following his regular talk at the opening of the 12th annual Institute of Religion here.

FACES LIE TEST—Kenneth Scholz (above), 17-year-old Crete, Ill., high school student charged with murdering a 13-year-old schoolmate, left for Chicago yesterday for a lie test. Scholz has signed a statement that he killed Billy Rodenberg but police are not satisfied with his explanations of his motives and are investigating the possibility that more youths may be involved. Billy's body was found in a ditch beside a road. In his confession, Scholz said he killed Billy because he was afraid the younger boy would tell about being held captive in a shack near the Scholz home.

23 Killed When Volcano Erupts

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 22 (AP)—The first survivors told today how a terrific eruption of Mt. Lamington in New Guinea's equatorial jungle caught them in a huge ash cloud and took at least 23 lives.

Ashes sifted an inche deep on the streets of Port Moresby, famous as an Allied base in World War Two, 100 miles away.

The surprise eruption last Thursday was the first recorded for the four-peaked mountain, known locally as the "Marx Brothers." A government spokesman at Port Moresby put the death toll at 23, with 34 missing.

Other unconfirmed radio reports from the area said up to 50 Europeans were killed, along with at least 30 New Guineans. The radio reports said 68 Europeans and whites including Anglican, Catholic and Seventh Day Adventists missionaries, traders and officials were in the eruption area.

Accused Slayer To Be Baptized

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 22 (AP) — Millard Cochran, white-haired father of six who allegedly killed his wife and 19-year-old son because they attended church at night, will be baptized Sunday into the Church of Christ.

But the 58-year-old Cochran, who keeps a Bible and a New Testament handy in his Pike County jail cell, denies that he "got religion" after the shooting orgy in which he also wounded a second son and a daughter.

He told Jailer Lacy Goodman that he's been a Christian nine years — just never got around to joining the church.

The church he'll join is one of two in the Feds Creek community where he resided. It's the same church to which his murdered wife, Cynthia, 51, and son, 19-year-old Chester, belonged.

But it's not the one that he objected to them attending.

Furniture Trend Swings Toward Cooler Colors

CHICAGO—(AP)—The trend in interior decoration is toward cooler colors, a New York fabric designer reports.

The so-called "hot" colors of the Southwest, which have gained greatly in popularity in recent years, will be modified toward more restful shades. And you'll see a lot of white and off-white in fabrics and furnishings. Even blue, once shunned as a cold color, is regaining adherents.

That was the statement today of Miss Tammis Keefe of New York, at a news conference at the 1951 winter furniture market.

The only possible stumbling block to ascendancy of the muted shades would be all-out war, she said. In that event, purer tones would remain the rage—not for a psychological boost, but because the softer colors require top quality dyestuffs and fabrics, both short in wartime.

Miss Keefe and two New York furniture designers, Harold Schwaryz and Paul McCobb, said the "monotone look" would be important in home decoration, with whites and beiges for background colors because "they are the most flattering to the human being." The monotone look would avoid monotony by accents of color in small accessories.

The trend toward muted shades, McCobb said, means "simply that we are going to use better taste in color."

"A few years ago," he stated, "the housewife was practically limited to buying bottle green, chartreuse and lipstick red. Then we began to bring in mustard and tangerine. Now we're becoming more subtle and thus in better taste."

William Lyon Phelps, who delivered an average of one hundred paid lectures every season, also made a number of appearances "on the cuff" at church bazaars, benefits, and the like. In one courtesy appearance at a New Haven church, Dr. Phelps had the audience in stitches with some choice anecdotes, then begged reporters present not to include them in printed reports of the meeting.

"I'll be using these stories all season," he explained, "and it would take the edge off them if they appeared in print."

The reporters respected his entreaty. One, in face, wound up an extremely complimentary review with the statement, "Dr. Phelps punctuated his remarks with a number of hilarious stories that cannot be published here."

The lady obviously found the proximity of the seedy gent highly objectionable. In fact, she took the extraordinary step of leaning across the aisle and whispering, "I think you should know that my little girl is just recuperating from a bad case of small-pox, which is still probably contagious."

"Don't let that worry you for a moment," said the seedy one mournfully. "I'm going to cut my throat in the first tunnel anyhow."

Early Use Of ACTH Lessens Heart Damage In Rheumatic Fever Cases

By ROBERT N. SCHWARTZ

CHICAGO (INS)—Two New York physicians report that early use of ACTH, the hormone drug from swine glands, lessens damage to the heart in cases of rheumatic fever—public enemy No. 1 among childhood diseases.

Drs. May G. Wilson and Helen N. Helper, of Cornell University Medical Center, New York City, reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association a study of 11 patients, aged 6 to 18, treated with ACTH. They wrote:

"From this limited experience it would appear that the early treatment of acute carditis with adequate amounts of pituitary adrenocorticotropic hormone (ACTH) should shorten the course, result in minimal cardiac damage and prevent death due to progressive cardiitis and resultant congestive failure."

Origin of rheumatic fever is a mystery. Until the advent of the two hormone drugs, ACTH and cortisone, there was no really adequate treatment for the disease, the number one killer of children.

It results in calification (bony growths) in and around the heart valves, leading in many cases to permanent damage to that vital organ—and early death.

Extent of damage to the heart is marked by the degree of inflamation of the heart—acute carditis.

According to the two physicians inflamation of the heart stopped within three to seven days after administration of ACTH was begun.

They added that after treatment they found:

1—Diminished enlargement of the heart chambers; 2—Disappearance of heart murmurs, denoting weakness of the valves; 3—electrocardiograph tracings showed disappearance of disturbances to the muscular walls of the heart; and 4—an increase in the heart reserve.

Within two to four weeks after treatment was begun all the patients were able to walk about freely. This is in sharp contrast to prehormone treatments when many children were forced to spend months flat on their backs in bed.

"Some degree of heart damage was possibly sustained by all patients," the two specialists observed, but after a period of from four to 12 month after the illness, five showed no increased damage, three showed what might possibly be damage and two had no visible damage. No check was made on the 11th patient.

Nature of the chemical action by which ACTH and cortisone alleviate rheumatic fever, the doctors pointed out, "remains obscure."

Any Use Studying?

Uncertainty about the immediate future is deeply troubling young American college students. Will they be drafted, and if so, how soon? They are troubled, just as young men were in 1940 and 1941. That was the period of another semi-emergency, the training with wooden guns, the gradual welding of the will to enter the war. There was still hope that the U. S. would stay out of it.

A decade later the students—and the country—are in much the same state of mind again. Now, as then, the best and sanest counsel is what young men deserve but do not always get. Those who need it most, of course, are the ones in danger of becoming quitters. They are saying all over the country, "What's the use of studying? The draft will get me anyway."

Some eloquent counsel has been offered students by the president of the University of Delaware, Dr. John A Perkins. He led his hearers back beyond the scientific miracles to the human brains that designed them. He noted that "the Russians are seeing to it that all their ablest young people are being given the maximum educational opportunity." And he added:

"America needs educated young people desperately . . . We must continue to emphasize in our educational processes not only chemistry, physics, mathematics, or engineering, but the modern counterparts of what once was called moral philosophy. . . . Should you forget or not acquaint yourself with the cultural heritage of Western civilization, we might win a war but emerge from it just as uncivilized as those we war against."

Courage and faith Dr Perkins called upon his students to have—and to show by earnest study in college. His words may have been aimed at those lads whose maturity is still to be attained. The same words can reinforce the spirit of the rest who will always do their best, in college or in battle.

Europe's Troubled Past

Addressing the freshmen members of Congress, President Truman compared our present peril to the time of the Mongol invasion of Europe in the Middle Ages. He pointed out that the threat was halted.

It was the Turks and not the Mongols, however, who were stopped only at the walls of Vienna. The 13th century Mongols conquered Russia, overran Poland and Hungary, and won a battle at Liegnitz in German Silesia. Then came word that their emperor had died in far off Asia, and the Mongol army returned home to take part in possible disputes over the succession.

The Turks threatened not once but twice. In 1529 the greatest of all Turkish sultans, Suleiman the Magnificent, besieged Vienna, hoping perhaps to transfer his capital there from Constantinople. Earlier sultans had similarly transferred the capital to Constantinople from the far less noted town of Brusa. The siege failed; it was one of Suleiman's few rebuffs. This ranks as one of history's decisive battles; had it succeeded, there is no telling when the Turks would have been ejected from the heart of Europe.

A second siege of Vienna, in 1683, was more a raid than a systematic attempt at conquest. Neither the Turks nor the Austrians were then at top strength, so that had the city been captured, it might not have been held for long. The siege was lifted through rescue brought by Poland's most famous king, John Sobieski. This was the last great venture for both Poland and Turkey on the international stage.

Turks and Mongols alike threatened the liberty of Europe. Both finally had to give up their planned conquests.

For The Long Pull

Before the trouble in Korea burst into our lives last summer, a number of careful observers of the world scene had been advising that Americans must accept the prospect of a long period of international tensions and recurring critical situations. During the last few months this advice has been pushed into the background as we have struggled with the problems of fighting a war actually begun and wondering if a bigger war is inevitable. The war and the question of bigger war are still with us, but once more we are beginning to hear counsel to prepare for a long period of troubled times.

If a great war can be avoided, the alternative probably is the long period of uncertainty and stress. Some estimate that conditions of world relations like those of the past few years may continue for 25 years or more. Some prophets also believe that the troubles will not be merely diplomatic, but will include small wars in various areas.

This is a grim outlook, whichever way the immediate situation turns out. But it is hard to find flaws in the reasoning which produces these prophecies. Until events take a course which promises more cheer, we should do well to consider the theory that we are at the beginning, not the climax, of a time of world trials and uncertainty. This may affect the attitude toward the more immediate questions of specific policy and plans for the present situation.

No Ration Books

The American people share the hope of Charles E. Wilson, director of Defense Mobilization, that consumer rationing can be postponed indefinitely. Their memories of that sort of thing—shortages, coupon books, long lines of waiting customers—are recent enough and unpleasant enough to make them shudder at the very thought of it.

So long as the international conflict remains as it is at present, tense but not punctuated by global shooting, there is no reason for contemplating restriction of the purchase of such essential household commodities as food, clothing, gasoline, fuel oil, etc.

It is true that a growing army will make larger and larger demands on the nation's agriculture and productive facilities, but it is also the fact that the country is raising more and creating more than ever before.

The waste of war makes it inevitable that there will be scarcities. In some fields they are already apparent. Building materials are in short supply. The manufacture of automobiles is being curtailed somewhat, although it is still above the best prewar figure. But there is no need for consumer rationing, and its imposition would only create chaos.

Wasting Muscles In Children

SEVERAL YEARS AGO I was sitting in the living room of patients of mine who were questioning me about their 4 year old son. He had developed normally until three months previously, when he began to have trouble maintaining his balance in walking. In addition, it was becoming increasingly difficult for him to go upstairs and a few days before this condition had become so acute that the lad asked to be carried.

The youngster was sitting in the middle of the living room. He was stocky and looked healthy, was smart as a whip, and had the calf muscles of a boy twice his age. There was nothing in his appearance to suggest muscular weakness or clumsiness. But when he decided to stand, he rolled over on his stomach and gradually got on his hands and knees. He extended his legs so that the weight of the body was resting on his hands and feet, with the knees slightly bent. With great effort he worked his hands back to the legs and by grasping them at higher and higher levels was able to assume an upright posture.

It was this maneuver of climbing up on himself by pushing his body upward with his hands that suggested muscular dystrophy, a disease characterized by progressive wasting and paralysis of the muscular system. He had difficulty maintaining balance, walking upstairs, and rising from a sitting or lying down position because the muscles of his legs, pelvic girdle, and back were weak. The overdevelopment of the leg muscles was more real than apparent; the enlargement consisted of connective tissue and fat deposited between weakened muscle fibers.

It is estimated that there are more than 100,000 victims of muscular dystrophy in the United States; the majority are between the ages of 3 and 13 years. Unless a remedy is found, few will reach maturity because the disease invariably is fatal. The cause is not known except that heredity plays a role; in some instances the trait has been traced thru many generations. A metabolic disturbance is believed to be responsible for muscle weakness. Some authorities implicate creatine; others, lack of vitamin E.

• — • — •

The malady starts so gradually that most parents are vague as to when it began. The most noticeable symptoms are the clumsy gait, difficulty in climbing stairs, and an unduly prominent abdomen. There is no pain. The exact manifestations vary depending upon the muscles affected. The boy mentioned above exemplifies one of the more common types. Involvement of the shoulder girdle affects the arms. The weakness may become so pronounced that when the physician lifts the child by placing the hands in the armpits, the shoulders are brought up to the ears and the youngster tends to slip thru the hands. It is almost inconceivable that muscles are capable of becoming so flabby that the shoulders collapse in this fashion. As the youngster becomes weaker and weaker he is confined at first to a wheelchair and later to bed.

There is no specific remedy. Massage and exercise improve the efficiency of the remaining muscle tissue. Many drugs have been used, including glycin, curare, insulin, ephedrine, ACTH, and vitamin E. Dr. S. Stohe, for example, used the latter product in combination with vitamins B and C on 25 patients. None was cured by the majority showed improvement while under treatment; they were able to get up faster from a sitting position, walk longer distances without giving out, and appeared more lively generally. When the medication was discontinued, symptoms returned.

GALL BLADDER INFECTION

Mrs. H. D. writes: Would any of the antibiotics be effective against a chronic gall bladder infection? I have been on a low fat diet for many years.

REPLY

The antibiotics have been used in the treatment of gall bladder infections but are more useful in the acute than the chronic varieties. Infection over a long period of time leads to thickening and scarring of the walls of the gall bladder, a condition that will persist even tho the infection is brought under control with the antibiotics.

Mrs. O. writes: Is it possible that congenital syphilis would not show up in a blood test until a woman became pregnant?

REPLY

Not if a blood test had been taken previously. Evidentaly, in the case you mention, a Kahn or Wassermann had never been done. One of the advantages of taking a blood test in pregnancy is that syphilis can be detected and treated in cases where the blood had never been tested.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Small Towns Are The Foundation Of America; Perhaps My Police Records Burned With Old Town Hall; Watch Concentration Of Power In Washington

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.—Last week I went up to the little Pennsylvania town where I spent most of my boyhood, to help dedicate the beginning of a new town hall. It brought back a lot of memories. It also set me thinking about what forms the real foundation of government in this country—namely, the small towns of America.

Swarthmore boasted about 2,000 people when I grew up there, and it still isn't much bigger now. The houses are of that early penitentiary, mansard-roof type; solid, a little ugly, but both the hearthstones and the hearts of the people inside are warm.

A few things about my town have changed in the 20-odd years since I moved away—but not many. There's a new movie house—unheard of in my day. And an underpass has replaced the old railroad grade crossing where watchman Mike McCarthy, friend of every kid in town, used to fret and fume until school was out and all the children had been herded across the tracks.

Some swank new homes have been built in the cow pastures and woods where I once trapped skunks; but Frank Getts, now the town tax assessor, greeted me with the observation: "The skunk-catching isn't so good up here any more, but I see you're still catching them down in Washington."

Pearson's Police Record

Biggest change in Swarthmore, however, is going to be the new town hall, for which—with proper ceremonies—he broke ground. The old town hall, a gaunt, ungainly eyesore, caught fire last year, which reminded me that maybe the police records had burned with it, thereby removing from the clutches of my senatorial well-wishers the criminal evidence they have been so diligently trying to find.

A certain senator has been eagerly digging into my past of late, and last week an attorney close to the McCarthyites stood up in court and indicated by his cross examination of me that they were even trying to track down an incident in Reidsville, N. C., where, after taking down a chautauqua tent, I was arrested at 3 a. m., for taking a sponge bath in the murky Southern Railroad yards.

This is a story which I tell every time I go to North Carolina, the last time having been to the North Carolina Press Association in Chapel Hill about a year ago. I also get humorous letters from Judge Ira Humphries who presided over the court, and Rev. William A. Lambeth, then Methodist minister in Reidsville, reminding me of my wicked past.

I have also had kidding reminders from Attorney P. W. Gliddewell of Reidsville, who kindly volunteered to defend me and who predicted that, if I ever became a public figure, my enemies would investigate my seamy past.

Grist For Sen. McCarthy

Presiding at the town hall ceremonies in Swarthmore was William H. Ward, now a top executive of the duPont Company, who, like me, worked his way through college by spending his summers on a chautauqua tent crew. And I couldn't help but remember how Bill Ward and Gibson Bradfield, now Barnesville, Ohio's, leading banker, once took advantage of the liquid coolness of the fountain in the public square at Wellsboro, Pennsylvania, to remove the all-night grime of taking down a tent.

I hope Senator McCarthy doesn't go after them, too!

At any rate, I was acquitted in Reidsville, N. C., and there was even a little lecture by the judge to the arresting cop that was the duty of very citizen to keep clean.

What Senator McCarthy doesn't know, however, is that the burned records in the old town hall at Swarthmore would have showed that I was also arrested on an entirely different charge at an earlier age (about 15) and that time found guilty.

It was after a college football game. Swarthmore had beaten its old rival, Haverford. The two Quaker colleges were supposed to practice brotherly love, but didn't. Afterward, I rang the village fire bell and got caught. Fine: $5.

Backbone of America

Well, all these memories and a lot of others came crowding back at that dedication ceremony last week. And among them was the realization that our small towns are the backbone of America, and that if we ever lose our small-town independence, and the community spirit that goes with it, then we might really be in danger of going the way of Russia.

The tendency of our modern, streamlined nation is to concentrate too much power in Washington. Most people blame Washington for this, though actually part of the blame belongs at home. For, when some towns can't or do not raise enough taxes to build new schoolhouses or pay their teachers, then they come to Washington for federal aid to education. And when cities want new roads, they are eager beavers in tapping the public roads subsidy in Washington.

So Washington can't be blamed for exercising the power which local communities abdicate.

Meanwhile, the most centralized government in the world today is the Soviet, where local communities have almost no power and where only 14 men sitting in the Kremlin can throw a nation and the world into war. The more we urge that scheme of things the greater chance for us someday to fit into the Soviet pattern.

That's why I got a kick out of playing a part in launching a new town hall for the small town where I used to live. That's why every town and city should keep its vigor and independence. That's why the John Finnans and the Dilleys Donnells and the E. C. Wallens the ought are ringing the fire bells and the others who serve faithfully on town councils are the nation's greatest bulwark against Communism.

As long as our communities have folks like the Joe Seals, for whom I once delivered newspapers; and the Joe Collins, who mend a pair of shoes as carefully as Michelangelo painted a fresco; and the J. Russell Smiths, friends and teachers to mankind, I am not much worried about the country's future.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

The Chance Of War—1

WASHINGTON—

WITHIN THE LAST six months, the Kremlin has quietly taken a series of steps which at least look like preparations for an attack in Europe in the spring or summer. This is really the central fact in the existing world situation, transcending in possible significance all the more immediate news. It is time—indeed it is past time—to have a look at what the Kremlin has done, and to try to see what it may mean.

Among many changes in the European pattern, the most alarming have occurred on the borders of Yugoslavia. Until six months ago, there was no doubt that Marshal Tito's army of 400,000 men could defeat the combined forces of the Kremlin's Hungarian, Rumanian and Bulgarian satellites. This is no longer the case.

Beginning shortly after the opening of the Korean War, the satellite armies have been progressively strengthened. The 1927 class, which should have been demobilized by now, has been kept in uniform. Selected specially trained men have been called up from the reserves. Thus the armed forces of the satellites have been expanded by over 30 per cent, to the combined total of 600,000 men given by Tito himself in a recent speech. Meanwhile, the Soviets have also sent heavy shipments of tanks, artillery pieces, other arms and ammunition to remedy the satellite armies' formerly grave deficiencies in equipment.

In addition, although the Soviets have not as yet reinforced their Hungarian, Rumanian and Bulgarian garrisons, they have significantly strengthened their forces in the Carpatho-Ukraine. This new Russian province lies west of the Carpathian Mountain chain. Mechanized spearheads striking from the Carpatho-Ukraine, across the Pannonian Plain and down the Danube Valley, could reach Belgrade in a matter of a couple of days.

Views Have Some Credibility

On their face, these seem to be preparations for an attack on Yugoslavia by the surrounding satellites, followed up, if Yugoslavia resistance should prove too short, by the Soviet Army itself. Such at least is Marshal Tito's belief. Such is the reason for his effort to be ready for War in April or May. His own guess (publicly, moreover, from other steps taken by the Kremlin in Eastern Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Here the issue that the Kremlin can move on short notice remain approximately the same, except for the strong measures taken in the last twelve months to make sure of the political reliability of the Czech and Polish armies. There are still 25 Soviet divisions in Eastern Germany and ten in Poland, most of them either mechanized or armored. Here, in fact, the change in the picture takes the form of seeming preparations to move these forces, which of course are far stronger than any that can be mustered in the West.

Until last summer, only very ignorant persons parroted the cliche that Russian armies could occupy Western Europe in a matter of weeks.

Great modern armies require transport; and at the end of the war, the Soviets tore up and carted home as loot most of the railroad trackage in their new Eastern European Empire. While this situation had not been improved, Western Europe could feel reasonably secure.

Form Startling Pattern

Now, however, the work that began last year, with the construction of the Berlin rail by-pass, has been greatly extended. According to authoritative information, the line from Berlin to the important junction of Frankfurt-on-Oder has been quadruple-tracked, while the line from Frankfurt-on-Oder to Breslau, where the change to Russian gauge occurs, is being double-tracked. It is also probable that the autobahn from Berlin to Warsaw, of which Hitler laid the foundations, is now being completed by order of Marshal Sokolowski.

Concurrently, the program of building new airfields and strengthening and lengthening existing runways for jet aircraft, revealed in this space last year, is being completed under forced draft, now in Eastern Germany, particularly, the most worrying of all signs has recently appeared. Large military dumps have been established of gasoline, ammunition and other supplies.

All these meaningful developments form a startling pattern. No one in the Western World, unless the secrets of the Kremlin have been penetrated, can tell whether or not the pattern indicates a genuine Soviet intention to attack in Europe.

The fact must be squarely faced, however, that almost every obstacle to a Soviet move in Europe has now been, or is now being removed. The preparations in Eastern Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland are still on a small enough scale to have a "just-in-case" look about them; but those on the borders of Yugoslavia are at least indistinguishable from the real thing. In short, the situation requires most careful analysis, which will be attempted in a second report.

Red China's Defeat Now More Probable Than Ever

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 — The "flower" of the Red Chinese Army has been taking such intensive punishment in Korea that all previous appraisals about the future course of events there now must be revised. This is what's really behind the day-to-Korea statements flowing lately out of the Far East and Washington.

The general impression heretofore has been that Red China has an unlimited number of troops ready to be committed to the fighting in Korea. But what has been overlooked is that most of these are untrained and badly equipped and that it is risky business for Red China to take the devastating losses which she is now taking among her trained and best-equipped troops.

The announced decision of the high command to stay in Korea is based upon a firm belief that the Red Chinese cannot afford a prolonged action and that some peaceful outcome must eventually emerge in which the objectives of the U.N. in promoting an independent Korea will be realized.

Political Question Too

It's all a question now of how long the occupation should last. Shall it be months or perhaps years if necessary as in the case of the occupation of Japan? The Red Chinese in the last few days have shown an unwillingness to press the fighting southward in Korea and the toll has been variously interpreted throughout the world. It could mean that Red China is up against some top-level decisions too and that last week's defiance of the "cease fire" proposal was really an attempt to outbluff and outmaneuver the allies and bring about, if possible, a voluntary withdrawal from Korea.

Thus the question of withdrawal itself has become political as well as military. So long as the Chinese Communists bought a growing American opinion strengthened by policies of the British Commonwealth of States would result in a voluntary withdrawal of troops there was no sense in accepting the "cease fire" proposal. Now, however, that the American attitude has stiffened and the high command here has been permitted to say publicly in positive terms that we intend to remain in Korea, the Red Chinese know the fighting must continue.

The stipulation here now is that Red China cannot take the losses or the punishment being given the flower of her armies by our air and naval power and ground forces and that a change in the political attitude of Red China soon will emerge.

Helping Red China

In the meantime those nations in the UN which are counselling delay and are hesitating to vote for a resolution condemning Red China as an aggressor are playing into the hands of the Red Chinese. If these nations were really united behind the resolution, the Red Chinese would face up to a serious set of circumstances. Here is how our high officials view it:

1. If Red China isn't an aggressor then there is no sense in humiliating any allied troops, including Americans, in Korea and the UN might better announce now that invasion of Hong Kong, Indo-China, Japan and the Philippines will not be resisted and that Red China can take them all at her pleasure.

2. But if Red China is an aggressor, then the UN must support its grounds for pressure to reach agreement. This means more troops from UN members to help carry on the fighting in Korea where the punishment will be inflicted against the aggressor. In other words, the UN can contact itself with boosting the air, naval and ground operations in Korea itself and wage the battle there as long as is necessary to bring Red China to terms.

The whole situation is not one that need be studied at this moment from the military standpoint. It's the political side that needs the attention. Each month the situation can be examined in the light of the progress made by our armies in Korea toward punishing the aggressor. Meanwhile Red China runs the risk of counterattack from within it and she will not be able to supply equipment to her millions of troops without drawing heavily upon sources of supply. It is getting to be a pretty costly war from the Soviet standpoint, too.

So time and the policy of attrition must eventually bring a favorable result to the UN. The critical decision comes now in branding Red China an aggressor for, if approved, its ouster will be continued military pressure until such time as the Red Chinese government is defeated and admits its defeat which is now much more probable than any time since the Chinese intervention began on October 30 last.

There is every reason to reiterate now the statement made in these dispatches last June that the prompt action taken by the UN in general and the United States in particular in meeting aggression in Korea may have truly prevented World War III from being fought in the immediate future—and perhaps from being fought at all.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Where Do We Stand?

A NATION has to face up with reality sooner or later. We can wander in a miasma of hopes and wishes, but sooner or later we come up slap-bang against cold facts. No swatting and squirming helps.

No matter how much we talk about what we need to do in Europe, we are actually fighting in Asia. Americans are being killed there. Our troops have been at it since June 25, six months of heart-breaking, mind-searing, deadly fighting. Many have been killed; many are permanently disabled. I recently saw a preview of a motion picture, "Steel Helmet," which, with sure realism, dramatizes our Korean War as a fact.

While we sit comfortably ruminating on what General Eisenhower may or may not succeed in doing in Europe, General MacArthur is actually, day to day, hour to hour, facing a merciless and formidable foe. Nor is it possible to forget Korea, while we wait for Eisenhower to make his deals in Europe. There is no waiting time while our boys are being killed.

Maybe we should never have gone into Korea! Maybe we should, in humiliation and abjectly, get our troops there and get out! Maybe we should recognize the Soviet world as our master!

Is not all that academic? The fact is that we are in Korea and that we cannot accept the infamy of humiliation and defeat without suffering diplomatically and economically throughout the world. A defied nation has no standing. Nor can we long remain an independent people if we accept the Soviets as our masters.

Therefore, Dean Acheson has taken the correct step when he rejected the counter-terms of Soviet China in the matter of the cease-fire. Their counter-terms involve total humiliation for the United States. They are inviting terms—the offer of a conqueror to a defeated foe who is tolerated.

Our government has no alternative but to acknowledge that Soviet China is an enemy nation making war upon the United States. That nation has rejected every effort on our part to meet them three-quarters of the way. They demand total humiliation.

If the United Nations deems the United States at this point, there is nothing for Congress to do but to abrogate the treaty which makes us a party to the United Nations charter.

Therefore, the next step is up to the United Nations. Either that body declares Soviet China to be an aggressor or it denounces itself to be a conglomeration of cowards, accessories of our murderers. It seems to me that those are the alternatives.

True, if the United Nations abandons the United Nations, that parliament of curs would have little reason for existence. Nevertheless, it would be an interesting legal point as to whether they could not, in such circumstances, continue to meet in New York. They are housed in this city by the terms of contracts with the Government of the United States and the State of New York, fully covered by acts of federal Congress and the New York State Legislature.

Would our withdrawal from the United Nations affect those contracts? One of the clauses of the contract with the Government of the United States guarantees to those who have business with the United Nations free access to it. That includes spies and saboteurs if they have the proper credentials. The United States is not the judge of the credentials, although such agents of foreign governments must live in our cities and move about in them.

In our present troubles with Soviet Russia and Soviet China, this can become tremendously important whether we remain in the United Nations or withdraw from it. Thousands of Europeans and Asiatics, in one way or another, have proper business with the United Nations who may, as a sideline, have other highly improper business in the United States. How

McAvoy May Be Tried In Hampshire County

KEYSER, W. Va.—The current term of Mineral County Circuit Court has the appearance of a short term of action, since the first case set a pattern for quick disposition. The first case was the only criminal action set for hearing at the term, but at the session Monday morning, Prosecuting Attorney Donald C. Hott moved that the case against William Carl McAvoy be nolle possed and referred to the Hampshire County Circuit Court for action.

The prosecutor explained that since the case was set, information had been received by him that the wool alleged stolen in the indictment returned against McAvoy, had been taken from the farm of Creed Mott, in Mineral County, and removed to a point less than 100 feet within Hampshire county. The case should be tried there, as it is charged that McAvoy's part in the case was disposition of the wool through sale, from the place in Hampshire county where it had been hidden after its theft.

Carl Lee Baer and Alvie Harold Mayhew were indicted with McAvoy in the theft, and these two entered guilty pleas and were given sentences at the last term of court, but McAvoy pleaded not guilty and the trial date was set for yesterday. McAvoy was freed by a jury at the last term of Mineral County Circuit Court on another indictment on which the other two defendants also pled guilty.

The second case set for hearing yesterday in court, Cumberland & Allegheny Gas Company vs Hilda B. Crawford, was continued when attorneys said they believed it could be settled without trial.

At today's session the case of Lelia D. Wendell vs G. C. Murphy Company will go to trial before a jury. Repossession of equipment claimed to have been sold to the defendant and not paid for is the basis of the action.

On Wednesday morning, the jury will be called to hear evidence in the case in which the Potomac Light & Power Company is plaintiff in a condemnation proceeding against Lillian F. Wagoner. The case involves placing of poles and a transmission line through the property of the defendant. The case was heard at the last term of court and resulted in a jury disagreement.

At yesterday's session, attorneys met to discuss several pending court actions and it is believed that several more will be settled out of court before the term ends. However there is one more case in which the fatal accident of Thomas Daskal will be brought for jury action. There were five cases filed by the heirs of Thomas Daskal, who died as a result of injuries sustained when his car and a truck owned by the Schriver Company, Cumberland, collided last summer on the Knobley Mountain Road just outside the city limits of Keyser.

The case to be heard at this term is brought by James Daskal, a son of the deceased. He is asking $15,000 damages.

The case docketed as Guy L. Reel, vs Beatty Motor Express, Inc., which is a joint action in which three other suits were joined with this one, has been continued for the term, with the belief that a settlement may be reached out of court. The Reel case is the result of an automobile accident and damages in the amount of $25,000 are asked by the plaintiff.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—(INS)—Gene Kelly is really an amazingly talented lad. He did most of the choreography on "American In Paris," did the narrating, and is an author of considerable ability. That was evident when he wrote one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's top musicals, "Take Me Out To The Ball Game," a few years ago.

Gene Kelly

Now Gene comes through with another idea about the New York Fire Department, probably to be called "Take Me Out To The Fire!" He and Director Stanley Donen, Elizabeth Taylor's boyfriend, have written this story, which was inspired by Maurice Evans.

The idea came after Maurice told Gene that he lives in an old firehouse in New York which he has converted into a studio.

On his way to Paris, Gene will stop in New York to get more data for his musical, which will be made later in 1951.

• — • — •

While Sam Goldwyn is in New York he's doing advance work on his next two pictures. One of his contracts is getting George Balanchine to do the choreography on "Hans Christian Andersen" with Danny Kaye and lovely Ballerina Moira Shearer.

Sam couldn't have got a better boy. Balanchine is thoroughly familiar with creating ballets for the screen camera. He worked with Moira in London. When he was married to Vera Zorina they spent a good deal of time here and he created many sensational dances for musical pictures.

Since their divorce, both have remarried and are very happy (at least at press time) with their respective mates.

• — • — •

The long gone, but not forgotten, Luise Rainer, two-time winner of the Academy Award, is coming back to Hollywood—but ironically enough, not for a movie. She'll star on the stage in "Joan Of Lorraine" at the new Ivar Theater. She has promised Producer-Director Harold J. Kennedy that she will be here about February 5.

What a strange career Luise, the dark-haired, dark-eyed European actress, has had. For two years she was the darling of Hollywood—hailed for her wonderful acting in "The Good Earth" and "The Great Ziegfeld." Then, flooey—for some reason she couldn't get a job.

• — • — •

Chit-chat:

Next month Irene Wrightsman becomes the bride of Kirk Douglas. His divorce becomes final February 9. When they were both east, they received the blessings of her father, Oil Millionaire Charles Wrightsman.

Even before she becomes Mrs. Douglas, Irene will make her stage debut with her future husband in "Detective Story" when it opens at the Sombrero Theater in Phoenix, Ariz., on January 23. She'll play a minor role, which will give her an excuse to be close to her fiance.

• — • — •

There was a report going the rounds a few days ago that Judy Garland is going back to M-G-M to make a picture—weight and all.

This, of course, is fantastic, but the story (which was pretty widely circulated, too) said that it was decided that M-G-M had taken too much criticism in requesting her to diet—hence the new contract.

The movie would be made showing Judy with all her poundage. I don't know what a such a move would serve to prove—if anything.

• — • — •

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Faye Emerson is shopping for the right script to make a movie comeback. Well, she's certainly the queen of the TV field.

Ginger Rogers, who went to Miami for the premiere of "Storm Warning," will return by way of New York—bet she'll see Greg Bautzer there.

The MacDonald Careys are adding a third room to their house for their third baby due March 9, which is, incidentally, Mac's birthday.

Releases of Arthur Kennedy's picture, "Light Out," are being held up by Universal-International because U. I. thinks he has a chance for the Oscar in 1951.

Dorothy Kirsten returned from New York today after finishing the Met season. She will open her house in Hollywood and get ready for her marriage to Dr. Gene Chapman.

The Brown Derby has bought $300 worth of tickets to the premiere of "Mudlark" and has given them to veterans. That's a wonderful thing to do.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

For tasks that can be performed while sitting, choose your chair carefully. Here are tests for its fitness!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

WHEN you can sit, why stand to perform household tasks? This is not an invitation to laziness but to freedom from fatigue!

Many household chores can be sedentary ones—ironing, dishwashing, vegetable preparation, silver and metal polishing, just to mention a few. The stress and strain you can avoid by sitting for these jobs will pay handsomely in a prettier face and disposition when evening rolls around.

But to gain this goal, you must be fussy about your work chairs. You must select them to fit your figure requirements—try them for size!

Does the Chair Fit?

To test the suitability of your present work chair, sit in it this way: Slide your hips back until they touch the back of the chair, and place both feet on the floor.

Now notice whether the backs of your knees are being hard pressed by the front of the seat. If they are, the chair seat is too long for your build. The pressure will slow up your circulation to the point where you will have to slide forward to relieve the constriction in your legs. Then, with no support for you back, you'll slump into poor posture, which is a guaranteed fatigue maker. That's not the chair for you!

If the depth of the seat is adequate, note next whether your feet are resting comfortably on the floor so that your thighs are parallel to it. You need to have the legs cut down if the chair is too high for you. Or, if you require an elevated chair to work comfortably at a high sink, shelf or table, have a platform attached to the legs at the height to which your feet reach with ease.

For Restful Support

Very tall women, of course, have the reverse problem. They are forced to place their feet in an ungainly and tiring sprawl if the chair is too low. Their best solution is a new chair that is right for both figure height and work surfaces.

The third check of how well your chair fits you is made in two areas of the back: Your chair must touch you across the small of the back and between your shoulder blades.

Last and most important, no chair is better than the use you make of it. Sit erect to do your tasks, hold your back straight, keep your abdomen in and your shoulders relaxed. You'll look and feel like a million when you hear the key in lock just before dinner!

Ordinary Western Europeans Have Desperate Time Making Ends Meet

By JOHN RODERICK

LONDON — (AP) — The ordinary Joes and Janes of Western Europe, soon to be asked to dig deep into their pockets to pay for more and bigger guns, are having a desperate time making ends meet.

All over non-Communist Europe, the reports are the same: Soaring commodity prices and less money than before to meet them.

Thus, Western Europeans find themselves in the same boat with the Americans, who have been sending funds and goods to Europe for many kinds of aid almost since the war. If it were not for Marshall Plan aid, Truman Plan aid to Greece and Turkey and arms aid under the military assistance program over the last few years Europeans might be feeling the pinch even more than they are.

Only in the controlled economies of Communist Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland and Albania is the trend apparently in the other direction.

With billions of dollars needed to build up defenses against Communism, the West's leaders are confronted with a vexing problem:

How can the rising cost of living be checked in time?

Most European nations are turning to more and more controls in a desperate attempt to stay the worsening economic crisis.

They are thus, paradoxically, forced to adopt temporarily forms of state interference in labor and industry which communist nations already have on a permanent basis.

Even in Socialist Britain, where controls are comparatively familiar, the man in the street is struggling to cope with rising prices. Rocky as the road now is, Britons have been given even more disconcerting news. They are due for the big blow in retail price increases sometime soon when wholesale hikes now underway are put into effect.

To this burden will be added more and bigger taxes to float the defense program.

In Britain, as elsewhere in Western Europe, these developments have been accompanied by demands for higher wages. Even the government-dominated Trades Union Congress, which controls most of Britain's workers, was unable to stifle the hue and cry which recently went up on that score.

Its rank and file voted to overthrow a year-old agreement to keep all wages frozen.

With Communists active in most countries on the continent, especially so in France, Italy and Belgium, what this wage rebellion may mean can be spelled out in one word—strikes.

Unless western governments are able to bring wages and living costs nearer together, the prospect of work stoppages which could paralyze vital defense production is a real one.

And, while Western Europe's factories grind to a halt, the industries of Communist nations — where strikes are illegal—are sure to keep humming.

What is the reason for the present startling upswing in commodity prices? Most sources agree that the primary one is the Korean war and the dislocations it produced.

Though the shock of ballooning prices was universal throughout Western Europe, its effect was not uniform.

In France, for example, a 15 per cent jump in wages throughout 1950 cushioned the blow. As a result, there has been little pressure for wage increases since the government knocked the ceiling off wages last February.

Though prices in some Communist countries are undeniably high—travelers to the recent peace congress at Warsaw reported astronomical charges for food and some services—reports indicate that there is no grave cost of living crisis.

In Czechoslovakia, the general trend of consumer prices is downward. Meat has dropped an average of 43 per cent, sugar 12, and butter nine during 1950.

Trucks' Salary Cut 25 Per Cent

DETROIT, Jan. 22 (AP)—Fireballer Virgil Trucks took a 25 per cent salary cut today in signing his 1951 contract to pitch for the Detroit Tigers.

Trucks balked last week at taking the maximum cut allowed by baseball law and said he wouldn't do it, but Tiger General Manager Billy Evans said Virgil inked the original contract after a conference today.

He made $30,000 last year. The new contract cuts him to $22,500.

Trucks, bothered by a sore arm all season, won only three games for Detroit last year. He lost one.

In 1949 Trucks won 19 and lost 11.

SPORT SLANTS

Why Whistle Is Blown • • • League Heads Pleased
Matty's Average Is 15 • • • Schools Meet 31st Time

By C. V. BURNS

Arthur G. Ramey of the Allegany County Board of Education ran across an amusing sports article the other day and he mailed it to the writer for publication, figuring it would get many a chuckle out of our readers.

The item entitled "The Basketball Official," appeared in Fred Russell's sports column in the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner and quotes an account written by Harry Kiehn, editor of the Lamberton (Minn.) News after a conversation with a gentleman who had just seen his first basketball game.

"I didn't have the opportunity to play basketball when I was a kid, so I don't know much about the game. But the other night I bought a ticket and went.

"Well, a bunch of boys came out and two men with shirts like a zebra came out with them. They stood and talked in the center of the floor and then the zebra shirt guy gave them a ball and all the boys dashed to one end of the hall and tried to throw the ball in a contraption that looked like a landing net.

"They finally got it in all right, but it fell right through, so they dashed to the other end of the hall, and they couldn't make the ball stay in that landing net either. So they kept running from one end to the other, and the guy in the zebra shirt would run after them.

"When he couldn't keep up with them, he'd blow a whistle and the boys would wait for him to catch up. Then one boy would hold up his hand like I used to when I knew the answers. Mr. Zebra Shirt would point to the ceiling and the boys would start running again.

"When the boys left the floor I figured everything was over. Nobody told me that was half a game, otherwise I wouldn't have walked out."

Mr. Russell made only one comment:

"Now there's an angle I have overlooked . . . when the official couldn't keep up with the players he'd blow a whistle."

Victorious in their last nine All-American League games, the Wheeling Blues have averaged 88.3 points per contest. They haven't scored less than 78 points a game and their highest total was 102. And the league leaders have won four of their nine games on the road.

Officers of the Interstate Baseball League — John J. Long, Frank J. Davis and Roy Clites — are pleased with the 1950 financial report and stress that it shows the circuit is making definite progress.

The 7-team loop started the year with a bank balance of 582.37. Receipts for 1950 were 604.88 and disbursements 740.04, leaving a balance of $447.21 for 1951.

Two all-star games at Hyndman and Moorefield netted the league $107.65 and the playoffs brought in $117.94.

Every club showed a balance at the close of the season — totaling $328.55.

Five of the 1950 clubs are expected to be back for this year's campaign. It is hoped that a 6th club joins the race.

• — • — •

Harry J. Barton, Pinto dairyman and sportsman, reports that Jonathan Longfellow of Salisbury has been appointed to fill out the unexpired term of chairman of the State Department of Game and Inland Fish. He replaces A. Gordon Fleet of Annapolis, resigned.

The annual meeting and election of the commission is set for July when the term of Barton, who replaced Fulcher P. Smith, resigned, in 1949, expires.

There's no pay connected with the job of fish and game commissioner, therefore no foot race to Annapolis to get such jobs.

Dr. Middlecoff Wins Lakewood Open Golf Meet

Gets 13-Under Par 271 And Cops $2,000 Prize

LONG BEACH, Calif., Jan. 22 (AP)—Former U. S. open king Cary Middlecoff, firing a 13 under par total of 271 for the 72 hole distance, captured the $10,000 Lakewood Park Open Golf Tournament today.

The former dentist from Memphis, extracting his fourth straight sub par round from the easy Lakewood Country Club course, wound up his four day stint with a sparkling 68, three strokes under par 35-36—71 for the 6,235 yard lake-dotted layout. His previous tours had brought scores of 70-64-69.

Middlecoff, winning his first tournament in California in four years of trying out here, broke a three way deadlock with another ex-national champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, and dark horse Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N. C., soon after play began today.

From then on the personable Southerner was never headed and the ultimate surprise actually came in the collapse of such a powerful challenger as Mangrum and the decline of the previously stubborn Boros.

Mangrum slipped to a 75 for a 278 total, and Boros took a 73 for 276. They started out with Middlecoff at 203.

The surprise runner up to Middlecoff and his $2,000 victory proved to be Manuel De La Toree of Milwaukee, whose 70-67-70-67 rounds gave him a total of 274 and $1,400 second place money.

Tied at third were Henry Ransom with a 67; Jimmy Thomson, the blond belter from New York and California, with a 66, young Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla., 69, and Jimmy Clark, Laguna Beach, Calif., whose 64 was low for the day.

Jim Ferrier of San Francisco whose remarkable 63 yesterday put him just one stroke back of the three leaders, took a 72 for 276. There he was tied with Boros, Ed Oliver of Seattle and Art Doering of Richmond, Va.

Middlecoff played in a threesome just ahead of one made up of Mangrum, Boros and Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., where another surprise took place. Heafner, who was just two strokes behind the leaders at the start of the day, blew up and quit the tournament.

At first he blamed the gallery for alleged thoughtlessness. Later he said he was also just sore at himself after going six strokes over par on the first six holes of the round.

Reckord Named Maryland Jockey Club President

Resignation Of Parr Accepted By Board

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22 (AP)—Henry A. Parr, III, quit today as president of the Maryland Jockey Club and was immediately succeeded by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord.

Milton A. Reckord

It was a quick change for Reckord, who only nine days ago presided over a Havre de Grace stockholders meeting at which the owners decided to sell that horse racing plant.

Parr was rounding out his ninth year as president of the Jockey Club and has 14th as a director and treasurer.

He issued copies of his resignation, which noted improvements made at the club's Pimlico track during his directorship and pointed to the fact that the organization was $11,362 in the red when he became treasurer. Last November it reported an accumulated surplus of $1,722,000.

"In view of the foregoing circumstances," the resignation added, "I believe that the Maryland Jockey Club is in a good position for its future development and I therefore tender my resignation as president, treasurer, and director."

Also a member of the four-man voting trust which controls about 80 per cent of the Pimlico stock, Parr refused to say whether there had been any dissention between him and the board. He said the board voted unanimously to accept his resignation.

Janon Fisher, Jr., was elected treasurer.

The Jockey Club's holdings once included Pimlico, Laurel and Timonium race tracks. Last fall it sold Laurel and Timonium, explaining it could use the money to finance a rebuilding program at Pimlico.

But when the Havre de Grace management decided to sell out, the new Laurel owners and the Pimlico owners said they were ready to buy for $1,800,000.

Unbeaten WMI Quint To Seek 10th Win Here

Jackets Shoot For 9th PVC Win At Romney, AHS Is Host To Bruce

Three W.M.I. League games topped by the Fort Hill-Barton game here and five Potomac Valley Conference contests headed by the Moorefield-Romney tilt at the latter place comprise the major portion of tonight's scholastic basketball program in the tri-state area.

Fort Hill, boasting a 3-0 record in the W.M.I. League, puts a nine-game winnin streak on the line when it collides with Barton, which dropped a 48-46 thriller to AHS recently at Campobello. The Sentinels have never lost a basketball ame to Barton on the spacious Fort Hill floor and a Barton victory tonight would come as a stunning upset.

Bruce High invades Campobello tonight to play Allegany in a league game and eBall High tests Central of Lonaconing in Frostburg.

Romney Battles Jackets

Ball Expected To Be Retained

Redskins' Mentor Will Get New Aides

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (AP)—A well-informed source said today that Herman Ball would be retained on a one year basis as head coach of the Washington Redskins of the National Professional Football League.

There has been wide speculation in coaching circles that Ball would be replaced. The Redkins finished last in the American Conference division of the NFL, winning three and losing nine games in 1950.

After canvassing the field, George Marshall, president of the Redskins, was reported to have decided to retain Ball, but give him two new assistants. One of these is reported to be Dick Todd, now backfield coach at Texas A. and M.

Five prominent coaches were under consideration at one time or another for the Redskin job. They are Bo McMillin, formerly head coach of the Detroit Lions; Paul Bryant, head coach at the University of Kentucky; Wally Butts, Georgia; Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech; and Henry Franka, Tulane.

Deluge Scores By Ten Lengths, Returns $23.50

The Poet, 7-1 Shot, Wins Hialeah 7th

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22 (AP)—C. B. Bohn's Deluge and Maine Chance Farm's The Poet, both outsiders, launched their 1951 debuts auspiciously at Hialeah Park today, accounting for the two sections of the Allapattah Purse.

Deluge, inactive since Nov. 23 at Bowie, won the first half of the race by 10 lengths in the sensational time of 1:24 3/5 on a dead track, while the Poet charged home first by a length in the other division. Both are candidates for the $50,000 Widener Handicap, Feb. 24. This was the Poet's first outing since Oct. 17 at Jamaica.

From a time standpoint Deluge's effort was the more impressive, since he covered the seven furlongs in two full seconds faster than The Poet. He was ridden by Frankie Bone, fourth leading jockey of 1950, and pa. $23.50, $9.60 and $5.50. The Poet, handled by William McKinley Cook, paid $16.70, $7.60 and $5.30.

Deluge ran as if much the best of his field, widening out in the stretch from Mrs. Frankel's Full Measure, the favorite, J. A. Pallante's Larry A was third, a nose before Mill River Stable's Ode, a two-time winner at Tropical Park.

The Poet was the first starter and first winner of the meeting for Maine Chance Farm, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Graham. He was also the first horse saddled by Trainer Monte Parke, for the noted sportswoman.

The Monday card, favored by warm weather, was witnessed by a crowd of 15,762.

The first disqualification of Hialeah's meeting, now five days old, came when the stewards set back Tamarack Stable's 12 to 1 shot Tiger Scout and placed him last in the fourth event.

Tiger Scout, ridden by Delmar Jones, was penalized for bothering both Texas Reward and Hambone during the running of the seven furlong event.

Texas Reward, ridden by A. Montiero, was moved up first, Ada C. and Fleeterthan, the favorite, automatically advanced to third, after the disqualification.

Ephraim (Red) Rocha, 6-foot 9-inch enter of the Baltimore Bullets in the N. B. A., was born in Hilo, Hawaii.

Six New Pilots Manage In AA

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The American Association will start its 1951 season with more new faces in managerial spots than in any previous year in its 50 year history.

Only at Minneapolis, where Tommy Heath will again lead his defending champs, and at St. Paul, where Clay Hopper mentors the Saints, will there be no change.

Here's how the rest of the league shapes up in the pilot department. Most of the names are familiar to baseball fans.

George Selkirk, one-time Yankee star, replaces Joe Kuhel, former Washington pilot, in Kansas City. Pinky Higgins succeeds Mike Ryba at Louisville. Ryba moves to the St. Louis Cards as a coach. Jack Tighe takes over at Toledo for Eddie Mayo who becomes a Red Sox coach. Don Gutteridge takes the reins at Indianapolis as Al Lopez assumes charge of the Cleveland Indians. Charlie Grimm is the new Milwaukee pilot, following Bob Coleman. Rollie Hemsley has departed from Columbus but as yet his successor has not been announced.

Forestry Personnel Of Maryland To Attend Training Meet Here

The winter training meeting for personnel of the Maryland State Department of Forests and Parks of the district comprising Allegany, Garrett, Washington and Frederick counties will be held at the Court House here Friday.

William H. Johnson, district forester, said that about 25 men will attend the session. The meeting has been set tentatively for the auxiliary court room.

Administrative procedures will be studied and methods of making reports for the department will feature the training meeting.

H. C. Buckingham, state forester, and A. R. Bond, assistant forester, will conduct part of the program.

The spring forest fire control program will be discussed, and it is expected that plans for the formation of forest fire fighting service unit under the civil defense program will be outlined.

New techniques in forest fire fighting and other matters pertaining to the department's operation will be discussed.

Johnson said today that during 1950 there were 70 forest fires in the four-county district. A total of 69½ acres was burned over.

This was an increase over the number of fires in 1949, one of the best years the department experienced in recent years. In 1949 there were 40 forest fires in the district and 52 acres were burned over.

During the spring of 1950 there were a large number of fires in the district due to the unprecedented drought. Fire danger readings were the highest in seven years.

Allegany county led in fires last year with 23 conflagrations. Washington county had 20 blazes, Garrett county eight fires and Frederick county 19 woodland fires.

During 1949 there were only three fires in Washington county and 10 in Frederick county.

The largest single fire last year in the district was a blaze in the Warrior Mountain section which burned over 20 acres.

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)—

EXERPT FROM a news story Korea: "Gen. MacArthur then revealed that he had appealed to the United Nations to decide what to do about the Chinese Communists."

The U. S. delegation went right to work to get Gen. MacArthur his answer right away. He ought to have it in a couple of months.

This assumes, of course, that the Security Council and the 60-nation Political and Security Committee gives the matter undivided attention.

The United States delegation to U. N. sought forlornly for several weeks to line up important co-sponsors of its resolution branding Communist China an aggressor. We felt it would be easy after Peiping scornfully rejected the overtures of a U.N. cease-fire committee. But, if anything, the search for a co-sponsor thereafter became even more disheartening.

No one at U.N. contests the fact that countless tens of thousands of Red Chinese, equipped by Russia, have been pushing back the U.N. forces since last November. All the people of the world, except those living in captive areas where news is a tool of the government, know that the Red Chinese are the aggressors.

• — • — •

Yet it has taken this long for even our own delegation — representatives of a nation that has suffered 50,000 casualties in Korea—to get around to the formal indignation stage. We had to express that indignation on our own. No important power would go along with us.

Worse, we pussy-footed in the language of the resolution we did present. England and France asked us not to sound too realistic and we bowed to them. In time, U. N. may slap Red China on the wrist with a chiding note.

But if the U.N. runs true to form, it will take a very long time to start the machinery of U.N.'s 14-nation Collective Measures Committee —which could order Red China cut off from the world economically, and recommended excommunication from U.N. for any member nation that tried to deal with her under the counter.

Here's what will happen to the watered-down American resolution as it works its way through the U.N. hopper. First, it will have to find a place on the agenda of the political and Security Committee. There will be many speeches for and against placing it there, as written, (and nothing of substance, U.N. type, can be done until the committee is officially "seized" of the matter, as the expression goes.)

Then a half a dozen nations will submit amendments to the resolution, and submit them in long speeches. Each suggested amendment will stimulate further debate, with both sides and countries which prefer to take no side whatever, engaged in perhaps weeks of wrangling.

• — • — •

By spring, let us say, it will be time to vote on the amended resolution, not as a whole but beginning with the latest or last of its amendments. Even then the legality of the resolution as a whole, of any one of its amendments, could be contested by one of its opponents. If Russia did the contesting, then Poland, Byelorussia, Czechoslovakia and the other stooges would want to add something to the basic line of objection, and that would take more time.

In the meantime there will be several counter remedies suggested as a proper way of ending the war in Korea. India will warn U.N. repeatedly, as the months drag on, not to take "hasty action." There will be a call for a Big Five conference, with Red China seated on the panel instead of Natoinalist China.

England, knowing that Hong Kong will stay British as long as the Red Chinese are involved in Korea, will urge caution. France, whose position in Indochina would collapse if the Chinese Reds could concentrate upon it, will string along with that.

Let is assume, however, that the American-resolution finally is put to a vote, en toto, and we line up enough votes to carry the day. The "ultimatum" is rushed to Peiping. Then Peiping says "we are not the aggressors; you are." So the whole thing fritters off into nothingness.

In the meantime, MacArthur's men, with a gun at their heads, get no answer, though they are in desperate need of one every minute of every windblown speech and parliamentary maneuver.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Don't place any furniture, rug or other obstruction over any portion of cold air returns in your home. Leave them entirely uncovered.

Loch Ness, second largest lake in Scotland, is reputed to be inhabitated by a "monster" resembling the old-time sea serpents.

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Do marital woes make problem children?

Answer: Yes, says Violet R. Shapiro of the Jewish Family Service, New York. Where parents are at odds with each other, there is little use in trying to help them set up healthier relations with their children, or trying to solve the children's problems. A mother who cannot get on with her husband, for example, will rarely be able to give her children the devotion and attention they need. If a problem child comes from a home that is a battleground, restoring peace there is more vital than correcting the child's misbehavior.

Can pain be "imaginary"?

Answer: No. Pain is a state of mind (you cannot feel it if you are unconscious) and as such is real whether it has any physical basis or not. If a person says he feels pain, there are three possibilities to think of: (1) that for emotional reasons he is interpreting as painful a sensation which would normally be painless; (2) that anxiety or guilt is making him exaggerate the distress caused by some minor physical disturbance; or (3) that the pain has an organic basis. Treatment will depend on which of these is the case.

Do "secure" people like to argue?

Answer: I do not believe so. It is normal for active-minded adolescents to delight in arguing about everything under the sun, but this is because they are as yet uncertain of their intellectual capacity and of their convictions. But the older person who insists on taking the opposing side of any proposition just "to start an argument" is apt to be one whose insecurity about his own beliefs finds consolation in upsetting other people's. Really secure people try to see what truth there may be in the other fellow's viewpoint.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOCATION A BIG FACTOR

SUCCESSFUL redoubles of high contracts, when they have been doubled by sound players, are usually based on the location of certain cards or extreme peculiarities of distribution. Generally the doubler of a slam contract—unless he is definitely asking for a particular lead with it—considers that whatever he holds in defensive values is located where his assets can obtain the greatest effect If the ultimate declarer or his partner "sits over" the cards on which the double probably is based, with the high cards that can cancel out the defenders' honors, he has the ideal opportunity.

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

| East | South | West | North |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | 1 ♥ | Pass | 2 ♦ |
| 3 ♣ | 3 NT | Pass | 4 ♠ |
| Pass | 5 ♦ | Pass | 6 ♦ |
| Pass | Pass | Dbl | Redbl |

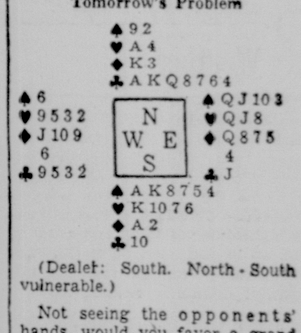

North made that contract as nicely as you please. East, not knowing just what lead was requested by West's double, if any, laid down his club A. And that was the only trick the defenders took. The second club was won in dummy, East being disappointed when West failed to ruff it. Later on North got three spade tricks by finessing, ruffed out one spade and one club and made his contract easily, guided partly by West's double.

The redouble was not made in a hurry. North reflected on the bidding and recalled several significant facts about it. First, South had opened the bidding, so must have a bunch of kings and undoubtedly one of the two missing aces. Second, South had shown a much better than minimum hand when, after North had bid only once, his 2-Diamonds, the next bid was not just 2-No Trumps, but a whole level higher, 3-No Trumps, after East had bid 3-Clubs. This seemed to indicate that South could take at least the second club trick.

In addition to all this, North's top cards were well located, the diamond honors having a perfect tenace over a possible king and the spade honors furnishing a sure finesse against the doubling West if South had either the king or queen, which his No Trump call indicated. In addition, West probably thought he had useful heart honors, whereas North had a singleton which rendered them null and void. It was a splendid positional redouble, and paid well.

Tomorrow's Problem

Not seeing the opponents' hands, would you favor a grand slam contract for North on this deal? If so, how would you recommend bidding it?

Kimble Defends Employment Of Family In State Positions

Terms Recent Story "Vicious Attack"

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 22 (AP)—Senator Kimble (R-Allegany) defended in a shouting 44-minute speech tonight the state employment of several members of his family.

The minority republican leader paced the front of the senate chamber with packed spectator galleries to deliver a passionate rebuttal to a newspaper article.

"A most maliciously inspired and untrue and insinuating article," he called it. The article appeared in the Baltimore Sunday Sun.

Kimble sent the senate sergeant-at-arms to bring the writer, Thomas O'Neill, to the chamber so "I can look him in the eye." The sergeant did not find O'Neill who sat in the gallery during Kimble's speecn.

The article listed the employment of Kimble's son as a clerk to his father at $1,080, his wife as deputy commissioner of the Department of Labor at $6,000, his stepson as administrative assistant in the Department of Labor at $3,608, and the wife of his stepson as secretary to Kimble at $900. The stepson's wife is on leave from the Department of Employment Security, a $2,137 post.

Senator Kimble first defended each individually and then generally by stating:

"Each member of my family who has been publicized have secured their positions based on their ability in competition with their fellow citzens. And they hold them because they are competent.

"Our famly has nothing to be ashamed of. They are proud of the fact they do render service to the State of Maryland."

Hits Insinuations

Kimble said the newspaper writer had "attempted to insinuate that the senator from Allegany County has secured positions with the state for members of his family.

"He is a liar."

Besides stating he would prove it "with facts," the 47-year-old senator offered to "do it physically after the senate is recessed."

Senator Kimble offered as "proof" of influence on his part that his wife had been a state "career employe" since 1917, 19 years before he met her, and that his stepson obtained his state job by Competitive examination.

At the time his stepdaughter-in-law took her state examination, she was not married to his stepson, he related. As for his own son, for whom the legislative job was created just last week, Senator Kimble said he employed him as "bill analyst" because of his efficiency.

As a matter of fact, the senator declared, one relatives on the state payroll had been overlooked. "My son has a wife and she is a schoolteacher."

Submits Telegram

Senator Kimble also read telegrams from former Governors William Preston Lane, Jr., and Herbert R. O'Conor stating in substance that at no time in their terms did he "seek preferment for yourself or your family."

The senator also referred to what he called an insinuation that "I was not interested in unemployment in the county I represent" by not hiring residents from there instead of relatives.

He claimed there is no efficient or competent secretarial help available in Allegany County for employment in Annapolis and that "not one secretary-stenographer" is registered there with the employment office.

Senator Kimble said the story on state employment of his relatives was one of three "maliciously" inspired since Jan. 12. That was, he explained, when "I said I was going to support the recommendations of the Case Commission" and efforts to "penalize those who violate Maryland overweight truck laws."

The Case Commission made recommendations on taxes which include a new levy on heavy trucks.

"I do not say that is the cause" of the articles, Kimble declared. "I am merely offering it as one point of evidence that speaks for itself."

Kimble said the other stories involved approval by the Republicans of the appointment or Arthur H. Brice as chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission and a report that Kimble's position as minority leader was endangered as a result.

Buchholtz Asks Change In City Election Dates

Would Give Time To Plan Budget

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz last night suggested that a bill providing for filing fees in city elections be amended to change the dates of the election to conform with the prevailing fiscal year.

His suggestion, which was tabled for one week, would ask the County Delegation to incorporate the date changes in the bill it introduced in the House last Wednesday.

The bill calls for dropping the plan under which candidates for mayor and council here are nominated by petition and sets up filing fees of $25 for council and $40 for mayoral candidates.

The bill also requires candidates to have been residents of the city for at least five years.

Buchholtz asked that the primary be held on the first Tuesday in June and the general election on the third Tuesday, with the newly elected mayor and council taking office on the first Monday in July, unless that date falls on Independence Day.

The change in dates, he said, would give an administration six full weeks to prepare plans for the year's budget.

He pointed out that the effective date of the change would have to be left to the County Delegation, since the change would mean 27 month terms for the council affected.

Buchholtz was emphatic in stating that it was not his intention to secure the additional time for the incumbent Mayor and Council but to fit the terms of any administration into the present fiscal year system.

Area Farmers To Attend Meeting

Probably between 15 and 20 of Allegany county's principal farmers will attend the annual four-state Farmers' Meeting Friday in Hagerstown's Franklin Court Auditorium, according to County Agent R. F. McHenry, who himself will be on hand.

Among features of the day-long program will be a panel discussion of new farm machinery and a discussion of recent advances in design of existing farm machinery. Representatives from nine leading farm machinery manufacturers will comprise half of the farm machinery panel. The remainder will include two farmers each from Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Virginia. George Mullan, farm supervisor of the Potomac Edison Company, will act as panel chairman.

Maryland farmers on the committee planning the Friday program include William H. Johnson and Charles S. Harvey, Allegany county; Herman Stockslager and Fred Downey, Washington county. Among those from West Virginia are Neill Frye and George Brinker, Hampshire county; H. M. Kline and Fred Bosley Mineral county, and Boyd Keesecker and Ray Ambrose, Morgan county.

Dr. W. R. Bell, Department of Veterinary Science, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, will tell the assembled farmers of the latest developments in hog cholera and outbreaks of cholera in hogs that have been double-treated for the disease. Another afternoon speaker will be Dr. James D. Outhouse, Animal Husbandry Department, University of Maryland. "General Economy in Live Stock Feeding with Special Emphasis on the Animal Protein Factor in Feeding Hogs and Poultry." The animal protein factor is another means of speeding growth.

Scouts Receive Charter

Vernon Adams, district commissioner of local Boy Scouts of America, receives the charter in behalf of Troop 10, of the LaVale Methodist Church, in ceremonies last night in the church chapel. Jesse M. Kave, (left) president of the LaVale 49ers, sponsors of the newly formed Scout troop, makes the presentation of the charter while Stanley Daniels, scout neighborhood commissioner looks on. Willis V. Smith, executive secretary of Potomac Council Boy Scouts of America, presided at the 8 p. m. ceremony.

Bus Line Cited For Its Failure At Cooperation

Mrs. Roeder Notes Several Incidents

"Cooperation between the City f Cumberland and the Cumberland Transit Lines should be a two-way proposition."

That view was expressed last night by Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, as she told her associates and spectators at last night's council meeting of incidents yesterday which indicated the bus firm was not cooperating with the city.

Mrs. Roeder said that when she rode a bus downtown from her North End home about 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning she noticed that the bus detoured two blocks because drainage had damaged a section of street.

Although she got Street Department workmen busy and they had the street repaired by 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the bus still was detouring when she returned home about 4:30 o'clock. When she telephoned G. M. Davis, head of the Cumberland Transit Lines, at 4:30 o'clock to find out why the buses had not returned to their regular route, he told her that messages could not be sent to the drivers, she said.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz joined in the discussion by emphasizing that Mrs. Roeder should not be criticized at such times when the blame should be directed at the transit firm.

"There's a question in my mind as to whether the Cumberland Transit Lines might not be violating franchise rights by failure to resume its stipulated route as soon as the street repairs are made," Buchholtz asserted.

In his remarks Buchholtz also stressed that the city receives no revenue in taxes from the buses which operate over and provide considerable wear and tear to the streets.

Theological Seminaries Emphasized By Church

Sunday, January 28, will be observed as Theological Education Sunday in most Episcopal churches throughout the nation, Rev. H. M. Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, announced yesterday.

The presiding bishop, Right Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, each year appoints the last Sunday in January as a day for the members of the Episcopal Church to think particularly about the education of its future clergy.

Eleven seminaries throughout the country furnish speakers from students and faculty for churches which desire them on this Sunday. The Episcopal Seminary of Virginia in Alexandria has agreed to furnish one of its students to speak at Emmanuel Episcopal Church at the 11 o'clock service Sunday.

Keyser Man To Be Quizzed On Fake Huckster Charge

City Police last night were holding a Keyser, W. Va., man for questioning in connection with the fleecing of housewives in several sections of this city by a fake huckster.

Arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Louis Downey and held for the State's Attorney's Office was Alvin Whetzel, about 30, Keyser.

Police said the man was identified by several victims as the "huckster" who disappeared after collecting money for country sausage and hams.

They said victims described the method as this:

The man went to homes in North End, East Side and the Maryland Avenue sections.

If the man of the house was at home, the "huckster" asked for a three cent stamp.

When the housewife was alone, the man described the country sausage, ham and eggs and promised to return, after collecting money for the items.

He never came back.

Police acted quickly after reports of the victims came in, but were not successful immediately in locating the man or the supposed truck he used to deliver the goods.

Descriptions secured from the victims by Detective Thomas J. See led to the arrest, police said.

Housewives said they gave the man amounts varying from $2.55 to $5. In one case, he went to change a $5 bill and failed to deliver either the change or the ham and sausage.

New Air Raid Sirens Needed At Fire Houses

To fulfill Civil Defense needs the City of Cumberland will have to obtain air raid sirens for its fire stations to replace those given to county volunteer fire companies at the close of World War II.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long said at last night's council session that William G. Barger, LaVale, County Civil Defense director, recently reminded him that the city should get air raid sirens in developing Civil Defense.

Mayor Thomas S. Post suggested that the matter be referred to City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson, who is serving as Cumberland's Civil Defense leader.

Payments Given Approval By City Council

Various Actions Receive Approval

Several payments were authorized last night by Mayor Thomas S. Post and City Council at a brief session at City Hall.

Council approved renewal of Management Information Service at a cost of $100 for 1951 after Mayor Post said that he thought the expenditure worthwhile. This service will include six copies monthly of the journal, Public Management, and four copies of the municipal yearbook.

These publications are distributed by the International City Managers' Association, Chicago, Ill.

Approval also was given to the expenditure of $50 for a page advertisement in the front of the program for "The Ordering of Moses" which will be presented by an all-Negro opera group in the Allegany High School auditorium Sunday, February 25. A letter requesting the advertisement was submitted by William F. Jones, 136 Frederick Street, who is chairman of arrangements. Proceeds from the performance will be used to pay for uniforms for the drum and bugle corps of Fulton Myers Post, American Legion.

Mayor Post and City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery were directed by Council to execute a deed to Albert L. Schade and Edith J. Schade for sale of property on the east side of Valley Street upon payment of $600.

A report was submitted showing that daily average water consumption during the week ending January 21 was 12,617,000 gallons, compared with 10,863,000 gallons during the corresponding period of 1950.

Residents Want Area Ditch Filled

A petition signed by 36 Mapleside residents requesting that a drainage ditch be filled and that an alley be opened between Gleason Street and Utah Avenue was submitted at last night's City Council meeting and was referred to Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, for investigation.

Mrs. Catherine Longerbeam, 104 Gleason Street, acted as spokesman for a group of about 10 men and women who appeared at City Hall last night.

She requested that the drainage ditch (storm sewer) be filled in because a number of persons came there and dumped garbage, dead animals and other filth. In the summer months this would constitute quite a health menace, she added.

Police and Fire Commissioner offered the cooperation of his departments if needed to see that the dumping practice is stopped.

All petition signers lived either on Gleason Street or Utah Avenue.

Lible Resigns Fire Department Electrical Post

Twigg Transferred To Temporary Job

The Mayor and Council last night accepted the resignation of Edward F. Lible as electrician for the Cumberland Fire Department.

The order accepting his resignation, for reasons of health, placed the veteran fire fighter back on the pension lists as of January 16.

Lible said he had been advised by his physician that he should enter the hospital for the removal of a possible tumor.

Commissioner John J. Long, in moving for the acceptance of Lible's resignation, paid tribute to the work of the fireman who for so many years took care of the Fire Department's alarm system in addition to his duties as a fireman.

He expressed deep regret upon the loss of Lible's services.

For several months, Lible and Pipeman Richard Linthicum have been engaged in an extensive program of repairing and grounding the fire alarm system here.

Over half of the work has been accomplished. Work has been delayed recently, however, due to weather conditions.

James F. Twigg was transferred from his post as temporary secretary to the Smoke Abatement Engineer to clerk in the Water Department and Tax Office, effective January 15, at a monthly salary of 196.50. This is a temporary appointment pending a Civil Service Commission examination.

City's Balance Totals $746,027

A report submitted by City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson covering city receipts and expenditures for the fourth quarter of 1950 showed that the city's balance increased from $639,605.51 to $746,027.39 in the period between October 1 and December 31.

The report was received by City Council last night and was ordered published in accordance with legal requirements.

Receipts in the last three months of 1950 totaled $676,816.84, Gibson reported. During the same period the disbursements reached $570,-394.96.

The $746,027.39 balance at year's end, according to Gibson's figures, included $601,369.70 in the general fund, $124,318.70 in the water operating fund, $13,748.82 in the general improvement bond fund, $5,-923.96 in the 1931 sewer bond fund, $631.49 in the flood account and $34.72 in the paving bond fund.

Chest Officers To Be Named

Directors of the Cumberland Community Chest will meet January 30 at 7:30 p. m. to elect officers and members of the Executive Board.

From its members, the board will name a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, plus five directors to comprise the Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee meets each month and carries on the work of the Chest between full meetings of the Board, stated each three months.

Reports of Chest agencies for December will also be acted upon.

Narrows Property Sold

Charles L. Grash and B. Pauline Grash have transferred ownership of three adjacent lots and improvements on the northeast side of National Highway in the Narrows to Kenneth T. Hagen and Margery M. Hagen in an $11,500 transaction, according to a deed filed in the office of the clerk of circuit court yesterday.

Long Suggests Full Time City Magistrate

Plan Is Referred For Further Study

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long last night asked the Mayor and Council to consider the possibility of securing a full time magistrate for the City of Cumberland.

The suggestion was referred to City Solicitor W. Earle Cobey for study and further report.

Commissioner Long pointed out that the services of a full time magistrate would speed the judicial processes in the city.

It would make it possible for city authorities to secure warrants at any time and would save a considerable sum in upkeep at the city jail, he pointed out, through prompt hearings.

He said the plan would be more convenient for everyone as it would allow immediate trials in a majority of cases.

At present, the city pays $1,800 a year for the part time services of two trial magistrates, each of whom receive $75 a month from the city.

The commissioner said he believed the salary paid for part time services of the Cumberland trial magistrates would be sufficient to secure a competent city magistrate.

Hearings are scheduled at Police Court each morning at 9 a. m., with magistrates taking weekly turns at Police Court duty.

Rec Department Offers Aid In Dance Contest

The City Recreation Department will aid groups which wish to enter the Square Dance Festival planned by the Potomac Park Improvement Association for the benefit of the March of Dimes.

Edmund F. Hoey, city playground director, said practice schedules will be arranged for any playground or organized group which wishes to enter the contest.

The practice periods will enable contestants to learn the dance they wish to use in the contest. Arrangements will also be made for practices with the band which will provide music for the set.

Four couples are needed to form a set, the unit which will compete in the square dance fest slated February 1 in the State Armory.

Hoey said three sets have already begun practice for the event. They are composed of students from Potomac State School and Frostburg State Teachers College and one set each from Fort Hill and Allegany High School.

He said the department is eager to have many of the adult playground groups in the city enter sets in the competition.

Decision Made On Law Appeal

A decision on the appeal case of Officer Leo E. P. Law, of the Police Department, was reached last night by the Civil Service Commission.

H. Clifford Spiker, chairman, said the decision will be submitted formally to the Mayor and City Council today or tomorrow.

Law, suspended for seven days on a charge of sleeping on duty, appealed the disciplinary action to the three-man board which held a hearing January 12, but held its decision in abeyance.

Plans were also made at last night's meeting in City Hall for an examination for the position of warehouse clerk in the street department.

The tests will be given February 15 at 7 p. m. in City Hall.

Louis T. Helman, 742 Gephart Drive received a temporary appointment to the post which pays $216 a month, the commission said.

Radio Club To Meet

The Mountain Radio Club will meet Friday at 7:30 p. m. in the Canada Hose House. Movies will be shown. All members and persons interested in short wave radio are invited to attend.

Six Children Deserted Near Frostburg

Had Been Living In House Foundation

A family of six destitute children, ranging in ages from 2 to 10 years and apparently deserted by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Binnix, have been turned over to authorities at the County Infirmary, state police reported last night.

The children, three boys and three girls, had been living in a foundation of a home in Consolidated Village near Frostburg, police said, and had apparently been left alone since about 5 p. m. Sunday. The incident was related to state police who turned it over to the county sheriff. Deputy George Harris, Frostburg, and Trooper Donald of Maryland State Police investigated.

Harris said the eldest child, a girl, told him her father had left their home to look for work Saturday and that her mother and another woman left Sunday to look for the father. Neither had returned when the authorities investigated the case around 6 o'clock yesterday evening.

The girl had been taking care of her brothers and sisters, Harris stated, and apparently cooked a meagre supper prior to the arrival of the authorities. Poorly fed and clothed, the children were immediately taken to the county infirmary where they were fed and put into warm beds for the night.

Police said the report had been turned over to them from a neighbor who called after observing the plight of the luckless children.

County authorities said last night they will continue the investigation and the children will appear before Juvenile Court today.

14-Year-Old Boy Unhappy As Pet Parakeet Is Lost

Pete, the parakeet, has disappeared!

The Thomas A. Reinhart family of 11 South Lee Street is offering a reward for the return of their son Tommy's pet parakeet which flew from the house Saturday and has failed to return.

The little nine-month-old bird was a friend of all and especially got along fine with the family's dog, Flip, and with Tommy and Michael, the Reinhart boys.

Fourteen-year-old Tommy always liked to play with the small bird, often carrying it around with him on his shoulder. He even built a small ladder from his construction kit from the floor of the house to the bird's cage. Pete would climb up and down the ladder rather than fly from his cage which always had the door left open.

Having the run of the Reinhart household, Pete made friends easily. He would like anyone who was friendly with Flip as the parakeet and the small black and white dog were boon companions as so often happens in the strange world of animals. He and Tommy were great pals, too! Pete often ate at the family table and Tommy liked to feed him.

Saturday, it happened!

Tommy was playing with Pete, carrying the bird on his shoulder while Flip was romping around outdoors. Finally Tommy went to the door to call Flip and as he opened the door Pete flew off his shoulder and disappeared.

Although the Reinharts have two other parakeets, Bill and Mike, and some 200 tropical fish, Pete was the favorite. Tommy has been heartbroken since the little bird flew away and Michael, 4, also misses Pete.

Mrs. Reinhart said Pete was an intelligent bird and was learning to speak very well. She expressed the hope Pete had found someone who was friendly and went home with them. "He might have perched on some stranger's shoulder and was carried away," the mother said.

The Reinharts want Pete to come home and would appreciate any information about the little bird.

Governor Asked To Name Parkway Study Group

Funds Requested For Patapsco Park

The Board of Natural Resources yesterday asked Governor McKeldin to appoint a special commission to study the proposed Chesapeake and Canal Parkway.

The parkway would extend through Montgomery, Frederick, Washington and Allegany counties.

Plans for the proposed parkway approved by the Federal authorities call for the acquisition of some lands by the State of Maryland.

The board also voted to ask the state legislature for $1,000,000 to develop the Patapsco River Valley State Park.

Acting on a report of the State Planning Commission, the board requested the money be provided during the next two years and made avaibable to the Department of State Forests and Parks.

Specifically, it requested $800,000 to acquire the land needed for the project and $200,000 for preliminary development of the area.

Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the forestry department, said he had discussed the matter with Governor McKeldin, and the governor had indicated his support of the plan.

The board's first action was to elect Philip Winebrenner, an appointive member, acting chairman during the absence of Arthur H. Brice, who as appointed chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission automatically becomes chairman of the Board of Natural Resources.

However, Brice has not taken over his official duties yet. The fisheries commission was represented by Capt. Amos Creighton, acting commission head.

House bills introduced yesterday included:

HB98—by Tawney—to make failing to stop after an accident a felony and to set a mandatory punishment upon conviction of from 30 days to one year's imprisonment and a fine of from $50 to $1,000 (Judiciary)

HB103—by Wagner—to provide that ballistics tests must be made for all pistols and revolvers sold or transferred in Maryland and that the state police shall keep records of all such tests (Judiciary)
